"How did Lafayette beat you?" I asked. "They protested 10 of my men, leaving me only one regular," Moran said. This went on from game to game. Each opponent would protest 10 men, leaving Charlie with a lone regular. The next to the last game on Bucknell's schedule happened to be with Foster Sanford's powerful Rutgers team, one of the best in the country. Among its stars, as I recall from a long ago day, was Homer Hazel, an All-American end in 1923 and an all-American fullback in 1924. Rutgers hadn't lost a game that year, beating a good Lafayette team, 43 to 7. Bucknell's one man team had lost to Lafayette, 21 to 3, so Moran wrote Rutgers, asking that he be allowed to play his regular squad.

"Play anybody you want to," the Rutgers coach wrote back. "Play yourself."

Moran didn't play, but his regular Bucknell team, playing for the first time together, beat Rutgers, 12 to 7. That's how good it was.

"I had three sets of brothers on that team: the Wilsbachs, Blaisdells and Goodwins," Charlie said. "They all played in the backfield At one time I had young Wakefield He was a brother of Vanderbilt's Hek Wakefield. The one I had was the greatest football player I ever saw, barring nobody. He killed himself."

God Can Be Trusted

Lesson for July 31, 1949

EVEN if you do nothing else with this lesson, it will be a good thing to learn by heart some of the Psalms of Trust which have been selected for your study this week. They are far too rich to be treated in one column.

Who Can Trust in God?

PSALM 34:16-22.) Not every one has a right to trust in God. Those who do not believe in him, do not love him, work against him, try to break down and corrupt those who do believe in him — these need expect nothing at his hand. But there are three classes of persons who are encouraged to put their trust in God. One is the "contrite," the repentant, those who sincerely wish to be cut free from their sins—these can surely trust in God for forgiveness. One who cannot trust God for forgiveness has no right to trust him for anything else. Then the "righteous," as the Psalmist calls them, have a right to trust in God.

Dr. Foreman

If that word means only the perfectly and altogether good people, it would leave all of us out. But in the light of the Bible as a whole, the righteous are those whose dominant desire is to love and serve God.

Their service is imperfect, their love is far from perfect, and no man is without sin But if you can say with Peter, "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," then you have a right to trust in God. Also the broken-hearted can safely trust in him. Whoever else may break your heart, God will not. He is the great Mender of hearts. For the little sorrows there may be lesser comforters; but the real heartbreaks only God can cure.

Why Trust God?

PSALM 37 gives one answer: The opposite of trust is worry, and worry never did any good at all. Worry eats into the mind, casts no light, gives no strength, solves no problems, worry makes any trouble worse. Then the writer of Psalm 34 gives another reason for trust: he had tried it. If trust in God were simply a doctrine of theology or a theory of preachers, not many people would take it seriously.

Trust is really passed on by a kind of contagion from heart to heart. If there are not more people who know what trust means, it is because those who have known have kept it too much to themselves.

It would be a wonderful stimulus to most churches to have a little "cell" of people who would really agree to trust God every day.

When to Trust in God

ONE of Dicken's famous characters used to make a great point of being cheerful under the most un-cheerful circumstances. Anybody can be jolly when everything is lovely, he said There's no credit in not worrying when there's nothing to worry about. Although the writers of the Bible, one and all, trusted in God, not one had an easy life. Read Psalm 46, for example; it gives a picture of a world much like ours of today, shaken to its foundations, torn by wars, a desolate, discouraged world. If it made sense to trust only under bright skies, religion would have perished long ago.

For What Shall We Trust God?

NO ONE PSALM puts the whole truth in one nutshell. If you read Psalm 91, for example, by itself, it would seem to prove that if you trust in God you will never die a violent death, nor an early one; but too many saints (and indeed our Lord himself) had died early and violent deaths, for us to take Psalm 91 in that way. Trusting in God does not mean he will give us long life. It means he will give us strength to match our days.

It does mean he will give us all we need. It does not mean we shall be shielded from troubles. It does mean he will save us from troubles greater than we can bear. It does not mean that in this life we shall be wholly free from burdens or from pain; It does mean we shall have strength in our souls (Ps. 138:3).

Which is the greater thing—to be a weakling wearied by a straw's weight, or to be one of God's athletes, able to bear the worst the world can pile on?

MIRROR Of Your MIND

'Fussing' Won't Get Service

By Lawrence Gould

Is making a fuss the way to get good service?

Answer: Only for the moment, though there are times when it may be necessary. For at bottom, grownups react much like children. If you scare a child into behaving, he will disobey you just as soon as he thinks he can get away with doing so, whereas if he knows that he can count on your approval when he's good, he'll do almost anything to please you. Unless he is "soured," the fellow who knows you can tell good service from bad will usually work his hardest for you because he also is aware that you will give him critical appreciation for a good job.

Is it possible to be "too human"?

Answer: Fundamentally, you can't be anything BUT human. Regardless of race, sex, or ancestry, every human being has the same instinctive "drives" or urges, and the only difference between one person and another is in what he does about them. A drive may be repressed (which distorts, but does not kill it); expressed in its primitive form, regardless of consequences; or "adjusted to reality" in such a way as to bring satisfaction to oneself and others. The "too human" person is one unable or afraid to "adjust."

Can a "heart attack" be a blessing?

Answer: Yes, maintains novelist Charles Yale Harrison in his recent book, "Thank God for My Heart Attack!" A close brush with death gives you a new sense of the meaning and potentialities of life, while the "warning" it provides may help you to live longer than you otherwise would by making you recognize your limitations The author's account of his experience and reactions as a victim of coronary thrombosis is a notable example of the way in which a basically healthy-minded person may adjust himself to a physical and emotional shock.

Just 'Enough' Food Isn't Enough

By Dr. James W. Barton

WHILE SOME COUNTRIES mostly are interested in getting "enough" food to eat, there are others—United States and Canada particularly—who are most interested in getting enough of the right "kinds" of food to maintain physical and mental strength in adults and, in addition, proper growth in children.

One of the few benefits obtained from World War II was the emphasis placed on the proper diet for the armed forces and also for civilians at home doing their part to win the war.

There was no lack of food in the United States and Canada. In fact, so abundant was the supply that in order to make it more attractive to the eye and taste, food manufacturers left out important food elements (vitamins and minerals), with harmful effects upon the structures and working processes of the body. That is why we see these food elements being added to bread, milk and other dairy products.

Research workers have shown that through delay in marketing food loses much of its nutritional value, as does keeping food in the kitchen instead of in the refrigerator.

As some of the valuable food elements are not eaten in the home by children, our school authorities —recognizing the importance of food to growing children—now supply school lunches outlined by food experts.

In addition to keeping the child robust physically, it has been found that where these especially prescribed school lunches are eaten regularly, the children are more interested in their lessons, are better behaved and attend more regularly.

As boys at school, we thought that "domestic science," as taught to the girls, was just a play hour. We have only to think of the school lunch to realize that the training of the young girl in the right kinds of food to eat, their preparation and preservation before use, will mean much to her home and its health and happiness.

BEES NEEDED FOR RED CLOVER SEED

Must Have Colonies In Field If Good Pollination Is To Be Assured

Farmers planning on harvesting red clover seed this year should be making arrangements to have colonies of bees placed in their fields, Floyd Paddock, extension apiarist at Iowa State College, said this week.

Bees play a most important role in red clover seed production in Iowa. Further, the element most necessary for good pollination is a heavy concentration of bees. Large numbers of bees are needed to offset the competition red colver receives from other nectar-producing plants which bees prefer.

Best Source

Paddock said the best source of bees for this purpose is the local man who specializes in beekeeping. But, because red clover is not considered a honey-producing plant, some means of compensation other than the honey produced must be provided to induce the beekeeper to move his colonies to red clover fields. The plan that has been working best in Iowa is for the farmer to share equally with the beekeeper all the seed produced in excess of 1 bushel per acre.

It is difficult to say exactly what should be the division of the seed produced, but some variation of the above plan generally will be satisfactory, Paddock pointed out.

Hives Per Acre

When sweetclover is within the flight range of the bees, four hives per acre will be needed to do a satisfactory job of pollinating. If no sweetclover or other choice bee pasture is within the flight range, the number could be three hives per acre. Paddock said best results will be obtained when bees are placed inside red clover fields in groups of 20 If bees are not placed inside the fields they must at least be placed at the edges of the field.

SUMMERTIME RESOLUTIONS - - -

SAVE HURRY AND WORRY

Hot weather strategy for homemakers is to plan easy-to-make meals, and to resolve to really take it easy at all those household tasks. Slow down a bit, say the home management authorities.

For busy homemakers facing a hot Iowa summer, July is an appropriate a time as January for good resolutions.

To enjoy the summer in spite of the rush of the canning season, the mounting laundry and the heat, resolve number one is to simplify family living, says Fannie Gannon, home management specialist, Iowa State College.

A little "roughing it" at home won't hurt dad and the youngsters. And it will leave time and energy for more family outings, for relaxing a little every day, for enjoying the children while they're at home and entertaining guests.

Less Cleaning

You can devote less time to keeping up the house this summer, Miss Gannon says. Put away the heavy draperies and whisk some of the bric-a-brac out of sight. Your rooms will have an orderly look, and you'll have less "picking up" to do.

An inventory of the family wardrobe will suggest ways to cut down on ironing time. Be sure there's a good supply of knit play clothes for the youngsters and T-shirts for the male family members. Seersucker housedresses for you call for only a quick pressing after drying on hangers. Miss Gannon suggests stretchers for men's trousers to save ironing time.

As for the linens, use table mats this summer insted of the tablecloths. Use the informal, rough-textured, fabric kind that don't require much ironing, or plastic or coarse woven fiber ones which can be wiped off after using. Towels can go back on racks and sheets back on the beds, fresh from the line, without ironing, if you shake them well and hang them carefully.

Get the habit this summer of sitting at your work whenever you can. Use a lap table for preparing vegetables, and arrange an "ironing center" where you can do the ironing sitting down. When you need to stand to work, as when you hang clothes on the line, prop your work up to save bending and stooping. Don't forget to make good use of the portable feature of your electric fan. Carry it with you and turn it on whereever you're working.

Simple meals are best for the family these warm days as well as for the cook. Serve plenty of easy-to-fix salads, fresh fruits, and menus prepared with broiler and pressure saucepan. If you plan your meals in advance, you can prepare foods ahead of time.

Take It Easy

Let's avoid hurry and flurry this summer, emphasizes Miss Gannon, as good resolution number two. Shift out of high gear into second, and find an easy speed for doing your work. Nerve strain from hurrying is often more fatiguing than heavy physical work.

Fretting and stewing over tasks to be done. like hurrying, is tiring. The way to avoid agonizing over your work, says Miss Gannon, is to organize. This doesn't mean making out a rigid schedule. That never works, much less in the summer when there are unexpected guests, foods ready for canning, hot weather and other interruptions. But if you set down a flexible plan for the summer, things will go more smoothly and the extra tasks will fit in better.

WORK STUBBLE FIELDS EARLY, SAYS WEED EXPERT

'Prompt working of stubble fields this summer will pay off with extra bushels of flax and small grain next summer," according to Dr. W. W. Brookins, Upper Midwest agronomist and weed authority.

August working has proved to be the simplest, yet, one of the most effective methods of controlling annual weeds, Brookins explains. If done promptly after the crop is removed, the weeds already growing in the stubble will be plowed under and destroyed before they can produce seed With harvest as early as it is this year, he recommends that fields be worked in July whenever possible July-worked fields, however, may require spraying or additional work late in August if seeds have begun to develop.

This is the way it works:

1 The weeds now in the stubble are prevented from reseeding.

2 Deep-lying weed seeds are brought near the surface where they can sprout.

3. A light disking or dragging immediately after plowing encourages fall germination of these weed seeds.

4. When working is done in August, resulting weed growth usually freezes before producing seed.

The top two or three inches of soil is thus left compartively free from weed seeds. A light, shallow working in the spring will put it in excellent condition for sowing.

In 1948, Dr Brookins conducted an extensive series of on-the-farm interviews in three of Minnesota's leading flax producing counties. The results indicated a close connection between use of August working and high flax yields.

"When properly done, August working is a sound soil conservation practice," explains Brookins. "An abundant fall growth of weeds and volunteer grain helps hold down soil and eliminates much of the loss from erosion which occurs on late-plowed fields which lack such protection When worked into the soil the following spring, these same dead weeds continue to hold the soil until the new crop takes over"

GROUND SPRAY BEST TO KILL CORN BORERS

Marshalltown—Iowa State College said Friday that it has obtained its first concrete information on the comparative values of the various types of corn borer control practices now in use.

The college has completed an experiment on a 65-acre field on early-planted corn in Marshall county The results were disclosed by Dr. Harold Gunderson, state extension entomologist.

It was found that a low gallonage ground spray proved to be the best method of killing corn borers in the experiment. This type of control produced a 96.4 per cent kill, Gunderson said.

Gunderson said the 2nd best control was aerial spraying. In the experiment a 70.5 per cent kill was obtained by this method.

Third best killer of corn borers, according to Gunderson, is ground dusting In the experiment 25.9 per cent of the borers were killed by ground dusting

Aerial dusting was not included in the experiment because it has proven inferior to the 3 control methods used, Gunderson said.

The entomologists said conditions were all equal in each of the control plots. DDT was applied at the rate of 1½ pounds per acre in each of the experiments.

See Farm Debt Near Low Ebb

Farm land indebtedness seems to be at a low ebb in Hancock County if a recent title search for the Corn Belt Power Co-op. is any criterion.

The search covered 5 sections of Orthel township land involving 19 parcels owned by 18 individuals and in the 5 sections only 2 parcels were found to be encumbered.

Cottage Cheese Good Summer Salad Standby

Fruit plates and lettuce and tomatoe salads aren't the only places for cottage cheese in summertime meal planning, according to Mildred Nelson, nutritionist at Iowa State College.

Try making sandwiches of cottage cheese to go with soup or a fruit plate, she suggests. Whether or not cottage cheese sandwiches will make a hit with the family depends on the way you season them Use some imagination, Miss Nelson suggests. Add chopped nuts, olives, parsley, grated carrots and a bit of cooked salad dressing. Or add chives. And make the sandwiches of whole grain bread.

Melon balls plus cottage cheese, gelatin with cottage cheese mixed in, or peach halves filled with cottage cheese and garnished with nuts, are all nutritious summer salads.

When you serve cottage cheese along with fruit, season it with chopped onion and green pepper and then garnish with chopped nuts and parsley. Top off with your family's favorite salad dressing

Miss Nelson says cottage cheese adds the body building food values we need in the summer without adding to many calories to raise the body temperature.

KILL WEEDS WITH HOE

Weeds in newly planted windbreaks are a problem this year because of the ample rains and ideal growing weather.

E. T. Gardiner, extension forester at Iowa State College, says that if weeds are too thick they will choke out small evergreens. For the farmer who is too busy with other farm work, the best solution to the problem is to take time to hoe around each tree. Then he should cultivate the windbreak as soon as possible.

A disk or row-crop cultivator used between the rows will do a satisfactory job of removing the weeds. Gradiner warns against straddling rows the way corn is cultivated because the evergreen trees will not tolerate bending over; instead, the tops will be broken out.

The forester also warns against the use of chemicals to control weeds in windbreaks until more is known about the effects on evergreens.

. . . . YOU WISH TO BE SWITCHED TO THE MINORS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A PSYCHIATRIC EXAM

(Wherein Elmer Twitchell, having shot a first baseman, is questioned for reasons.)

Doctor.—Now, then, I want you to relax and let your thoughts run freely.

Elmer.—Are you a good psychiatrist?

Doctor.—Yes, I never played first base in my life.

Elmer.—What position did you play?

Doctor.—I was a southpaw pitcher in my college days.

Elmer.—That does it! I must have my gun back . . . Please, my gun! . . . It rests my nerves so!

—o—

Doctor.—Quiet! I'm trying to help you out of a very serious jam. You shot a ballplayer and can go to prison.

Elmer.—Do they put people in prison for shooting ballplayers?

Doctor.—If they didn't some clubs would be bumped off in a single afternoon. Now, listen, there must be a psychopathic reason for what you did. As a child how was your home life, and you'd better make it bad. Was there, for instance ever a Christmas when your folks spent $5 on your brother for a first baseman's mitt and only $2 on you for a book?

Elmer.—That could have done it.

—o—

Doctor.—Did your father ever read the baseball summaries aloud? Did you ever live in Brooklyn back in the days of those eccentric infields? Was anybody in your family a baseball fanatic?

Elmer.—I had an uncle who used to recite that Costello thing entitled "Who's on First?"

Doctor —Good. I'll make a note of that. In your infancy were you ever chased with a ball bat for not doing your homework?

Elmer.—I seem to remember something like that. And I recall that as a little child I was taught to walk too early. I developed an aversion to walks

Doctor —That would explain it if you shot a pitcher. In school did you ever have a teacher who wore a mask and chest protector?

Elmer.—No, but I had a kindergarten principal who carried a sawed-off bat and insisted he had been ordered to bunt.

Doctor.—In your immature years did you ever play softball?

Elmer —Yes. I was such a poor hitter I never got to first except when hit by the pitcher. And I never got to second because there wasn't a 300 hitter on the team.

Doctor.—Now it's all clear. If you ever were to get to second base you knew you would have to shoot the first baseman . . . The idea took possession of you! . . . It became an urge! . . . You couldn't resist it! . . . We can explain everything to the court. You are as good as free.

Elmer.—Goody! Goody! Can I have my gun back?

Doctor.—Probably, but we may have to switch you to some other league!

Baccalaureate

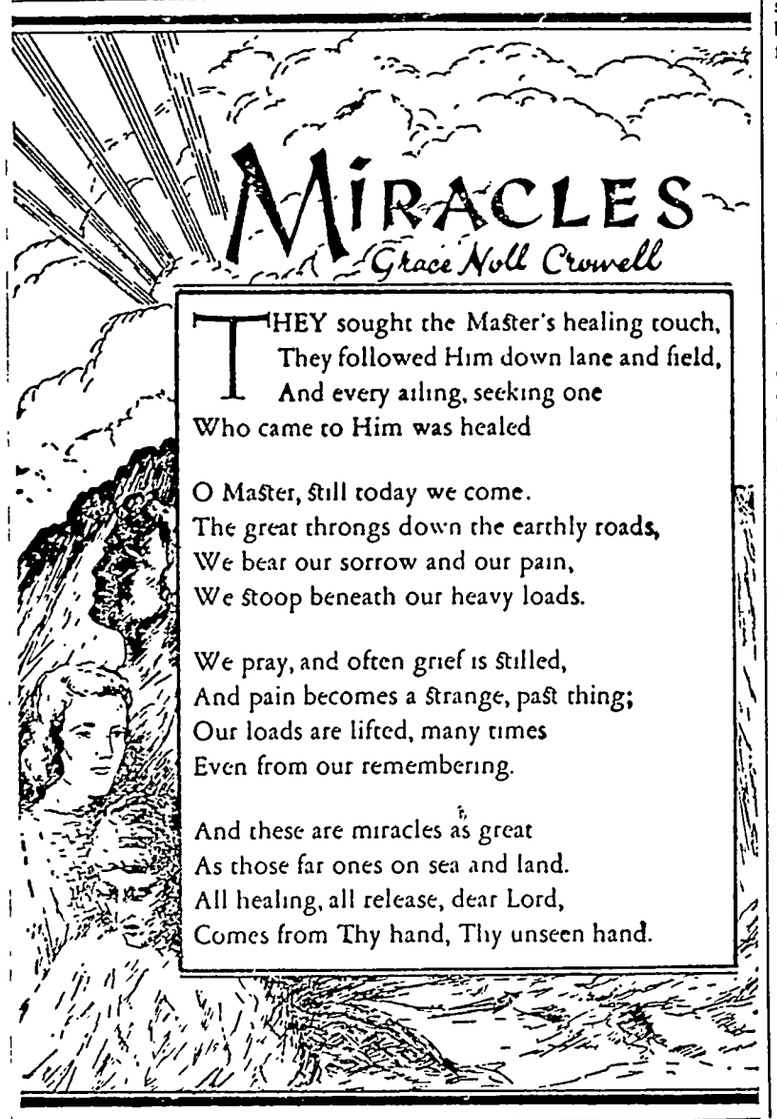
Gentlemen of the classes of 1949: I am going to scrap the platitudes, ignore the old rhetorical patterns and skip anything resembling baloney balonus

It will be a novelty, I am sure, to hear a baccalaureate a little different from the one delivered last year. I give you these three all-important words of three and four letters which rate paramount importance in the struggle ahead: "Use your head!"



THEY sought the Master's healing touch,
They followed Him down lane and field,
And every ailing, seeking one
Who came to Him was healed

O Master, still today we come.
The great throngs down the earthly roads,
We bear our sorrow and our pain,
We stoop beneath our heavy loads.

We pray, and often grief is stilled,
And pain becomes a strange, past thing;
Our loads are lifted, many times
Even from our remembering.

And these are miracles as great
As those far ones on sea and land.
All healing, all release, dear Lord,
Comes from Thy hand, Thy unseen hand.

KATHLEEN NORRIS
Taking First Step

One of the blessed miracles of life is that we can always make a fresh start.

In moments of depression, of course, that is exactly what you feel you cannot do. That's one reason why they are moments of depression.

But the truth is that no matter how hopelessly tangled, how fixed and unchangeable the circumstances in which you find yourself may be, there is always the divine right to start all over again.

You begin this process by a little clear thinking You ask yourself "what do I want my life and myself to be, and what is the first step toward realizing that ideal?" You may not be able to see the outcome, or indeed even the second step, but the first is there before you if you can recognize it.

Considers Suicide

Take the case of Lauranna Jackson, for example. Lauranna's affairs have become so miserably unsatisfactory that she cannot see any way out—except suicide, and she says she hasn't the courage to try that.

"I am 36, healthy, good looking and smart enough to have kept several good jobs at different times," says Lauranna's long letter. "At 22 I married the man who was immediately ahead of me in the office, and four years later our daughter, now 10, was born. That year Keith went to the South Pacific and I went back to my mother and my job.

Those were busy, prosperous years for my little Sharon and me, but when Keith came back I was ready to return to the old basis.

However, he was so completely changed that after much quarrelling and making-up and quarrelling again, we got a divorce. My mother died at this time, and Sharon went to her other grandmother.

Two years ago I married again, a man who promised me every comfort, and agreed that I should have my own daughter back. He has two daughters, now aged 14 and 11, by an earlier marriage, and I have tried to do my duty by them. They have been badly spoiled and are difficult to handle, and financial reverses have made it advisable for me to resume my office position. My husband, cheated by his partner and unlucky in investments, is broken in health and spirits and may have to retire.

Not Happy With Mother

"Sharon has visited us, but is not happy here, and assures me that she is well treated in her grandmother's comfortable home. And the most unwelcome prospect of another baby's arrival has just about wrecked my nerves. I find myself faced with the prospect of stopping work—stopping paid work, that is—but working as an actual servant in this inharmonious household, and replacing my own child with two utterly undisciplined little girls. Moreover, presently there will be the exacting care of a small baby when our finances are unable to stand the strain of present expenses.

What can I do to extricate myself from this slough of despondency, bad nights, quick temper, anxiety, and the dread of fresh responsibilities when my baby is born? There must be a solution, I'm still sane enough to believe that. For I feel as if I could not stand this situation any longer."

Here is one more case of an impulsive woman, herself undisciplined, who builds up trouble through long years, and expects to escape from the result of her actions in a matter of days or weeks.

Trouble has to be unravelled the way knitting does. You have to go right back to the wrong stitches, and start over from there. Lauranna's predicament wouldn't seem trouble at all to half the women of the world. Thousands of discouraged husbands have been helped along by a wife's courageous example to the rebuilding of fortune. This is an everyday story with the right man and woman.

New babies arrive every day by the hundred, all over the big world, under circumstances infinitely more distressing than these. Small girls are trained to be gentle and useful under the influence of a good example.

And making her home a place of harmony and interest is the quickest and the unfailing way for Lauranna to lure little Sharon back into it.

The important problem in the picture is Lauranna herself. She's been shirking all along the line.

The Fiction Corner ★ ★ BEST ALIBI ★ ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

MAX SANDERS' home had been robbed of jewels valued at $50,000. The jewels were kept in a wall safe behind a picture in Max's study, which was located on the second floor of his Beverly Hills home.

Inspector Ray Beatty was assigned to the case. Leo MacDougal, a police officer, who had been summoned from his beat, showed Inspector Beatty the evidence that had thus far been discovered.

3-Minute Fiction

First there was a ladder placed against a window that opened into a second floor hall. This window had been discovered open.

Inspector Beatty told MacDougal to summon all the servants. Then he questioned them. They all had good excuses. Sid Firbush, a secretary, had spent the night at the movies with a friend. Edwards, the butler, had read in his room until Mr. and Mrs. Sanders returned from a party, when he admitted them.

It was right after that, that Mrs. Sanders went to the safe to replace the jewels she had worn, and found the others gone.

Martha Greene, the housekeeper, had been in her room all evening. Her room was located on the second floor. She had gone down to the kitchen about 10 o'clock for a bite to eat and found Viola Matson, the maid, there with her boy friend. Returning, Martha had passed Edwards' room and seen Edwards sitting by his table, reading.

INSPECTOR BEATTY dismissed the servants and went back to the study. He examined every inch of it. Then he went into the hall and examined that. He also examined the window and the ladder and the ground below the window. It had rained a little the night before and he found some footprints beside the ladder. They looked like men's footprints.

Inspector Beatty sought out Sid Firbush. He asked the secretary if Max Sanders held business conferences in his study. Firbush said that he did.

"The chances are, then, that he's had occasion to open the safe when others were present?"

"It's quite likely."

"I want as complete a list as you can make me of all the people you've known to be in the study during the past month."

Inspector Beatty left Sid Firbush making out the list, summoned MacDougal and went down the hall. He entered one door after the next, first knocking to make sure the room was empty. Presently he returned to the hall, bearing a pair of shoes.

Carrying the shoes he returned to the study and asked Firbush if they were his shoes.

"Why, yes,' said Firbush. "Why? Where did you get them?"

"Out of your closet. I searched the closets of all the servants till I found a pair of shoes with some mud on the soles. It was you who committed the robbery."

"You're crazy. That's a cockeyed theory. The robber came up the ladder."

"No," said Inspector Beatty, "that's only what you expected us to believe. That's why you put the ladder there and left the window open. The robbery was committed before you placed the ladder there."

"How do you know that? You can't prove it."

"I won't have to. What I can prove is that no one came up the ladder. It rained last night. There was mud There's mud on your shoes The shoes fit the footprints at the foot of the ladder. Yet there is no mud at all on the rungs of the ladder. If there had been I would have probably been fooled and not been sure that some one inside committed the theft. Besides you had the best alibi. I checked with the man with whom you said you attended the movie. He broke down and confessed everything "

MacDougal was amazed. Afterwards he said to Beatty: "I didn't know you checked with Firbush's friend. When did that happen?"

"It didn't," said Beatty

MAN'S AMBITION . . . To take over the throttle of a big railroad engine is a universal desire. n. Dwight D. Eisenhower shows he's no exception. The engineer of the allied invasion of Europe r the Pennsylvania railroad's streamlined train, the "General," for the first 100 yards of trip from Penn station. Aboard the train are member's of Ike's family who were enroute to Iowa. The train is on a New York to Chicago run. The general looks as much at home in the cab engine as he did at a military staff meeting during the war, or as he does now in the president's chamof Columbia university.

Flatter Summer Meals With Properly Cooked, Attractive Vegetables

WHEN the thermometer speeds into the nineties, every homemaker worries about meals and family appetites. Even though appetites appear robust on picnics, they are apt to seem on the slim side for a meal in the family dining room.

Is there a certain remedy for the waning appetite amidst the wilting heat of hot summer days? Yes, certainly, there are several surefire ways of coaxing the family into eating what they should. One of the best ways is to serve attractive vegetables which are so plentiful for they add zip, in the form of vitamins and minerals, into a scanty diet.

Vegetables add color, and consequent interest, too, to the family dinner table with their glorious greens, reds and orange yellows. Who could ask for a better artist's palette with which to decorate the mealtime scene?

Serve vegetables fresh, whenever possible since this saves food value. When they are cooked, however, use only a small amount of water, season carefully, but not heavily, and cook until tender. Vegetables are best if they have some of their natural crisp texture, even though cooked.

Seasonings should be mild so that you don't mask the delicious natural flavors and thus jade the appetite further. You may add some of the nice sauces for variety, however, and thus create interest that might not otherwise be present.

YOU CAN'T BEAT a salad bowl of summer vegetables, especially when there's a tasty dressing to go along with it. Here's a suggestion with a delightful dressing seasoned with blue cheese and anchovies:

*Summer Salad Bowl
(Serves 6-8)

2 cups fresh spinach leaves
1 small head lettuce
2 cups shredded green cabbage
1 bunch watercress
Fresh dill
Tarragon
1 cup diced celery and tops
½ cup green pepper rings
1 cup crumbled blue cheese
⅔ cup French dressing
1 2-ounce can anchovy fillets

Rub salad bowl with cut clove of garlic. Break spinach and lettuce into bite-sized pieces in the salad bowl. Add cabbage and watercress; sprinkle with the herbs, fresh dill and tarragon. Add celery and green pepper. Sprinkle with cheese. Chill. Just before serving, add French dressing and anchovy fillets. Toss lightly.

Chinese Salad
(Serves 4-6)

2 cups canned bean sprouts, drained
½ cup diced celery
1 medium cucumber, sliced thin
1 green pepper, minced
2 tomatoes, cut in small cubes
French dressing
Minced chives

Combine all vegetables and toss with French dressing, to which may have been added one teaspoon of soy sauce, if desired. Refrigerate the salad ingredients for one hour. Drain off extra dressing and serve with mayonnaise. Sprinkle top with minced chives before serving.

Treat fresh vegetables kindly and you'll be well rewarded for their acceptance at meals. New potatoes, quick cooked in their skins, are tender and delicious when teamed with cheese-crusted tomatoes and plump, green asparagus spears with a nippy sauce.

Vegetables, cooked or fresh, chilled and seasoned, arranged attractively on a salad platter add appetite appeal to the main course. Arrange mounds of the small vegetables like corn kernels, green lima beans or peas with strips of carrots, asparagus or celery on lettuce and pass with a tangy dressing.

HERE'S an excellent way to prepare and serve asparagus:

Asparagus
with Sour Cream Sauce
(Serves 6)

2 pounds asparagus spears
¼ cup thick sour cream
⅓ cup drained horseradish
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Cook asparagus in a small amount of boiling, salted water until tender, about 25 minutes; drain. Meanwhile, make sauce by beating the sour cream slightly, add remaining ingredients and blend thoroughly. Serve with cooked asparagus spears.

Broiled Tomatoes
(Serves 6)

3 medium tomatoes, cut in halves
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup buttered bread crumbs
½ cup grated American cheese

Season each tomato half with salt and pepper. Blend crumbs and cheese and sprinkle on each tomato half. Arrange in a baking pan and bake in a moderate (375°) oven for 15 minutes, or broil 8-10 minutes under low heat.

A GOOD main dish to serve at home or to tote to a picnic uses corn and tomatoes, seasoned beautifully with bacon, green pepper and a cheese topping.

Corn-Tomato Casserole
(Serves 6)

4 strips bacon, diced
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup minced green pepper
2½ cups chopped tomatoes
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2½ cups corn, cut from cob, or canned corn
⅔ cups dry bread crumbs
⅔ cup grated cheese

Fry bacon in a skillet until crisp. Place in a 1½ quart casserole. Add onion and green pepper to bacon fat and cook until tender. Add tomatoes, sugar and seasonings. Simmer for 15 minutes. Stir in corn. Cook for eight minutes, if using uncooked corn. Place all mixture from skillet into the casserole. Top with bread crumbs, then with cheese, and bake, uncovered, in a moderate (350°) oven for 30 minutes.

Don't discard cold, fried trout. Serve it on a bed of watercress or lettuce and pass with sour cream in which are floating thin slices of cucumber. Serve with a lemon wedge.

Lamb chops take well to barbecue sauce and broil quickly to keep your kitchen cool. Serve with a fruit garnish of pineapple, banana half and grapefruit segments.

Chilled soups are ideal for starting off the meal with proper spirit. You might try jellied consomme or icy cold cream vichyssoise.

LYNN SAYS:

Keep Meals Cool When Thermometer Soars

Refreshing fruit platters come in for a big bid during summer. Place cherries and grapes in the center of your largest, coolest platter. Surround with a mound of each of the following: peach halves with a cluster of blueberries in the center; cantaloupe edges, pineapple chunks mixed with halved strawberries, honeydew melon wedges and watermelon triangles.

Britain Charges Belgians With Eating Work Horses

LONDON.—Despite Belgian importers' guarantees, the 2,000 British horses shipped there annually practically all are slaughtered for food, instead of being worked as agreed, Arthur W. Moss, of the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, charged.

"The meat is processed and mostly sold in the form of Antwerp sausages," he said, after returning from Belgium.

'Immediately the horses on my ship were disembarked, they were branded on the neck with a hot iron and a hole was punched in the right ear to insert a number peg. The following day they were slaughtered."

EXPLOSION AT MACHINE SHOP HEARD ALL OVER KLEMME SATURDAY

An explosion occured at the Pavey machine shop Saturday afternoon that could be heard all over town, but luckily no one was injured by the blast.

Pavey was welding a carbide tank for his acetylene welding machine with a torch when accumulated gas in the chamber exploded, the concussion breaking all the windows in the shop and rocking the immediate neighborhood. Men on the street rushed to the shop and were surprised when Mr. Pavey was calmly viewing the wreckage and was uninjured by the blast. The tank which he was welding was not even damaged as the force of the ignited gas was discharged through the bottle-neck like part of the tank. Pavey resumed his welding as soon as the excitement had subsided.

Howeve., the blast might have caused severe injury to Mr. Pavey. As it happened he was standing behind the tank on the opposite side from the explosion through the neck of the tank and was only badly jarred by the terrific concussion of the explosion.

They spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith at Hines, Minnesota and then went to a cottage at Little Portage Lake near Cass Lake, and also made a trip into Canada. They enjoyed a fine time and caught plenty of fish.

Walk Through Park Completed

A block-long stretch of new cement sidewalk has been completed along the south side of the Klemme Park. This is a fine improvement and will be of great convenience to those people residing in the east part of town.

WAR II VETS GET DIVVY ON INSURANCE

Washington, — A tremendous outpouring of dollars will sweeten the pockets of 16,000,000 World War II veterans early next year.

The dollars will come from a $2,800,000,000 dividend kitty, built up in the national service life insurance (NSLI) fund over the past 9 years.

The "special dividend" checks will roll out from Washington to the 4 cornors of the globe—wherever veterans are—starting in January. They will reach a rate of 200,000 a day, 5 days a week.

Amount Varies

The average check will be $175 Veterans will get more or less depending on:

1. Age of the veteran at the time he first bought NSLI.
2. Number of months he kept his insurance in force.
3. Amount of insurance he has (or had).

Every veteran who held some NSLI for at least 3 months will get some dividends if he applies for it.

It is highly probable some veterans never will apply, either because they don't want to or because they won't hear about it. However, the veterans administration (VA) will do its best to see that dividend information is sifted into every nook and cranny of the U S and abroad (in co-operation with the state department) through the press, radio, veterans organizations, post offices, Red Cross and countless other media.

Within 6 weeks application blanks will be sent to every U. S. postoffice and other convenient distribution points. Veterans will fill out their forms and mail direct to VA's central office in Washington in self-addressed envelopes.

A receipt will be mailed back to the veteran at the address he supplies on the form. He then waits for payment.

VA estimates it will take six months to complete payment of dividends. It might be done quicker.

Why It's Given

This special dividend is the result of two factors:

1. A lower than expected mortality rate among veterans after discharge. (War-connected deaths are paid by special appropriations and do not affect the dividend kitty.)
2. An out-dated mortality table which does not allow for the constantly increasing life span but which the law- compels VA to use.

It is called a special dividend because:

1. It is computed from the date the insurance was purchased to the policy's 1948 anniversary date.
2. It cannot be left on deposit with VA at interest (although a veteran can endorse his check to VA as advance payment of NSLI premiums and this will draw 3 per cent interest).
3. It is payable to former, as well as present, NSLI policy holders.
4. It must be applied for. (In the future dividends can be expected to be paid automatically on an annual basis and may be left with VA at interest also automatically).
5. Beneficiaries or heirs of deceased veterans are eligible to collect the deceased's dividends rgardless of whether the policy was in force at the time the veteran died. But they need not apply for it. It is to be paid to them automatically.

SPECIALIZES IN COMMERCIAL FIELD OF PRINTING

Plant Can Now Handle Anything In The Printing Trade

The Times the past week has added more equipment to increase the capacity of the plant in the field of commercial printing in which it has been specializing for the past couple of years.

The latest in modern machinery to be installed is an offset press which enables the Times plant to handle lithographing, planographing, ruled forms, office forms of every kind, reproduction of photographs, 2, 3, and 4 color work, and other work usually done only in the larger cities. The new offset press turns out complicated printing at the rate of 6,000 impressions per hour.

The new press prints only from lithographic plates and employs a photo-chemical process of reproduction. Ray Jorgonson, Jr.. who is familiar with chemistry and mechanical drawing, will be in charge of this phase of printing, as he draws up the ruled forms and lay-outs for the plates to be used.

The Times has also installed a new steel surfaced "imposing table" on which printing forms are made up. This new equipment also provides storage space for approximately 300 printing forms for repeat orders and future runs on the other automatic press in the shop.

Five people are employed at The Times in getting out the weekly paper and turning out commercial printing.

Powerful Logic

The bus driver looked first at the blackened clay pipe then at the Irish face behind it. He attracted the man's attention to the sign prominently displayed at the front of the bus. It read, "No Smoking."

"Well, so what?" said the Irishman indignantly, "Oi'm not shpittin'."

"It says 'No Smoking'," explained the bus driver.

"Fwhat makes ye think Oi'm shmokin'?" demanded the Irishman.

"You've got a pipe in your mouth, haven't you?" demanded the driver a little impatiently.

"Shure," agreed the Irishman, "an Oi've my feet in my shoes, but Oi'm not walkin'."

THAT'S DIFFERENT

An artist was staring at his blank canvas as if looking for an idea. "I want to paint a still life," he informed his friend, "but I'd like to do something different this time. I'm tired of fruit, buildings and landscapes."

"May I suggest," offered his friend, "that you paint a Scotchman reaching for a restaurant check?"

Horse Could Take It

The year was 1902 and automobiles were chugging industriously in an effort to replace the horse. The proud owner of a brand new Stanley Steamer, wheezing noisily along a country road, spied a horse and buggy in the distance and turned off his infernal machine. As the horse and buggy drew near, with its aged occupants, the automobilist gallantly offered to lead the horse past the automobile.

The old man tightened his grip on the reins. "Oh, don't bother with the horse," he said. "You lead the old lady past that contraption and I'll take care of the animal."

"I've put a fortune into that girl's face," said Papa Toomer, referring to his daughter.

"Well," said his neighbor, "you shouldn't allow her to go to beauty parlors so much."

"I wasn't thinking of that," replied Mr. Toomer, "It's that appetite of hers that keeps me broke."

HAD HIS PRICE

At peace with the world, two knights of the open road stretched out under a shade tree along a quiet country lane. "Boy," murmured one of the tramps, "I wouldn't trade places with anybody right now for anything."

"Not for ten thousand dollars?" queried his companion.

"Nope was the contented answer.

"Not for fifty thousand dollars?" his friend asked.

"Nope," replied the tramp.

"Not even for a million dollars?" persisted the other hobo.

"Well," answered the first tramp suddenly sitting up, "now you're talking real dough."

Better Bargain

His curly, golden locks and innocent, round face proved an irresistible charm to his aunt. "Darling," she cried, hugging him tightly, "you're such a sweet child. Auntie will give you ten cents if you will give her a kiss."

"Naw," he pouted, wrinkling his nose, "I can get more than twice that just for drinking castor oil."

Educational

"Never a dull moment in this house," sighed the careworn mother as she made for the nursery to answer a sudden scream of anguish. She found the baby tugging manfully at her small boy's long curls.

"Never mind, darling," she comforted him, "Baby just doesn't understand that it hurts you."

She had hardly resumed her work when more shrieks brought her back to the nursery. This time it was the baby who was crying.

"Why, junior," she cried, "what is the matter with the baby?"

"Nothing much," replied junior calmly, "only now he knows."

To eliminate the odor from a kitchen knife that's been used to cut up onions, hold the blade over the flame of a match. Don't hold it too long, though, and don't hold it over a gas flame because prolonged intense heat will spoil the temper of the blade.

Marbles can be used as a safety alarm to keep from burning the bottom out of a double boiler. Keep two or three in the pot all the two or three in the pot all the time; when the water gets dangerously low, the marbles will dance up and down making a fearful racket to warn you that more water is needed.

Wrong Job?

You may be happy in your work and pleased with your occupational niche, but the fellow at the desk or machine next to you may not be.

It is the opinion of Robert C. Woellner, Chicago university professor, that at least half of all adults definitely are misplaced, or could have been better placed if modern vocational methods had been available during their formative years.

Woellner attributes much of the present social unrest, high divorce rate, and high incidence of mental illness in the United States to the many unfortunate occupational choices of its workers.

U.S. ECONOMY:

Truman Concedes

While there was some measure of contradiction in concept, President Truman, in his message to congress on the economic state of the nation had conceded that recession forces were alive.

However, in a neat bit of linguistic maneuvering, he declared the current situation one in which the national economy was in orderly retreat from a serious inflation. At the same time, however paradoxical the warning might seem, he declared that there could be no "greater economic folly" than an attempt to balance the federal budget in a "declining national economy."

He highlighted the contradiction by adding that such a move would only aggravate the recession forces against which his new policy was directed.

OF CHIEF INTEREST in his report was his abandonment of an earlier plan to demand four billion dollars in additional taxes. He lightly dismissed this former policy with the statement: "No major increase in taxes should be undertaken at this time." Instead, he proposed liberalization of allowances for past losses in computing income taxes and increasing estate and gift taxes.

The President's obvious reversal of policy was held to be little less pronounced than the findings of his council of economic advisors on whose report the President's message was based. They found that since January the forces threatening stability had become predominantly deflationary and that the weakening of markets had become general.

KRUG:

A Denial

Drew Pearson was in hot water again. Generally accused of partial responsibility in the siucidal death of former defense secretary James Forrestal, the newspaper and radio columnist had reported the U. S. interior secretary Krug was very ill with "athlete's heart."

In a letter to Pearson, Krug's physician, Dr. R. Lyman Sexton, asserted Krug is completely well and able to do twice the work of the average person.

Wherever one stood on the propriety of Pearson's discussion of the health of top government officials, it would be remembered that several of his reports on the condition of Forrestal's health—originally denied by the navy—were later admitted.

REUTHER:

Still on Top

With red-thatched, fiery Walter Reuther still at the helm, the United Auto Workers union, numbering some million members, could be expected to hold firm in any demands made for wage increases or social benefits.

BRUSHING aside token opposition from UAW's left wing elements, Reuther was elected to a third term as UAW president by a top-heavy majority.

The voting which reelected Reuther was a new triumph for the right-wing forces in the union which catapulted him into office in 1946 and rewarded him with control of the other international offices and the board at the 1947 convention. His new term will expire in April, 1951.

UAW DELEGATES moved into the election of top officers after hearing Leon Keyserling, of President Truman's council of economic advisers, tell them that "as a general proposition the kind of wage policy which will help maintain full employment in this country, and which will maintain our economy on stable levels is one which adds to consumer purchasing power from year to year—because we have the capacity to produce more goods from year to year.

The auto workers union's big fight was with Ford motor company which, in opposing proposed wage rates, offered to peg wages at present levels for a given period, regardless of what cost-of-living developments brought about.

FORD contended the cost of living has gone down and there was no justification for pay raises, basing the argument on the UAW contract which called for pay hikes as the cost-of-living increased. Reuther opposed that line of reasoning, contending that the union's economists have proved, by a survey, that most industries can afford wage increases now.

MONOPOLY:

Clark Agitated

While President Truman was delighting business generally with his abandonment of any tax-increase proposals, U.S. Attorney General Tom Clark was agitated over the growth of "big" business and urging curbs on "concentration of economic power"

CLARK APPEARED very much disturbed by the situation and let go both barrels in his shots at big business as he testified in a congresional investigation into monopolistic practices.

He termed business monoply an "economic blackjack" and urged that the federal government get busy doing something about it. He told a house judiciary subcommittee that most people were victims of three erroneous assumptions. He listed them as.

1. Assumption that competition continues to thrive as long as there are at least two or three or four in the field.

2. Assumption that the bigger the producer the better the quality of the goods and the cheaper the price to the public.

3. Assumption that companies become big because they deserve to be big—in other words, that they outdistance their competitors because they do a better job, render a greater service, or furnish better goods.

CLARK DECLARED he did not share any of these assumptions.

Continuing his testimony before the committee, he said.

"The fundamental issue is whether the economy of this country is to remain free and competitive, or whether it is to be subjected to private regimentation through monopoly control."

Under Fire

As an aftermath of the involved legal proceedings in the trial of Alger Hiss on a perjury charge growing out of spy investigations, Presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, shown here, is under congressional fire. The senator was reported considering a probe of the conduct of the trial.

BIG STEEL:

Strike Pledged

There was trouble looming in big steel. CIO President Philip Murray had declared after fruitless government-called peace talks that a half-million steelworkers would be called out on strike at an early date.

After conferences with federal conciliation director Cyrus S. Ching, the CIO chieftian reported a "complete deadlock." The situation was critical.

(See Recipes Below)

Picnic Plans

WHEN YOU PLAN an outing, good food that will please everyone has to be part of the picnic plan In addition to this, have a "packable" lunch that you can carry in a shopping bag, string sack, bandana or hamper.

The less preparation you have at the picnic grounds where everyone will be famishing, the better will be the lunch. If you want to cook the hamburgers or ribs or frankfurters on an outdoor grill, that's all to the good, since this whets appetite to a tantalizing sharpness. However, if you have to wash fruits and vegetables, and pare or scrape them when you get there, this may seem like something of a chore. These are things that can be done much more easily at home.

A SAVORY, well-seasoned meat should be the main interest of the lunch, however. For some this may be old-fashioned picnic 'burgers, roasted frankfurters or barbecued ribs. These are easy to serve on buns which can be purchased ready made, and then simply split and buttered and even toasted while the meat cooks.

Picnic 'Burgers
(Makes 12 'Burgers)

- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 pound ground beef
- ½ pound ground veal
- ½ pound ground pork
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 dozen hamburger buns

Brown onion in fat in a large skillet. Add meats, salt, pepper, soy sauce and dry mustard. Cook over low heat for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Split hamburger buns and fill with meat mixture. Top with picnic sauce:

- 1 cup tomato sauce, catsup or chili sauce
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- ¼ cup chopped green olives
- 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce

Mix all ingredients together in a saucepan and cook gently over low heat for one-half hour, stirring occasionally. This makes two cups of sauce.

Is it barbecued ribs that you like on your picnic? Here's a delicious and easy way to prepare them: cook the ribs in a pressure saucepan at home to speed the process and then finish in the oven or at the picnic grounds in a skillet, basting them with the sauce.

Barbecued Spareribs
(Serves 5 - 6)

- 3 pounds spareribs, cut in pieces
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup water

Combine remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Pour over the ribs and baste with sauce. If baking, cook for 30 minutes. If using the skillet, cook for 35 - 40 minutes.

Hashed Potatoes
(Serves 6)

- 8 potatoes, cooked in jackets
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup light cream or top milk

Peel and dice potatoes and cook in butter until slightly browned. Add seasonings. About five minutes before serving, add the cream and heat thoroughly.

Summer Cabbage Slaw
(Serves 6)

- 3 ripe tomatoes, diced
- 1½ cups finely shredded cabbage
- 1 cup sliced green onions
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 5 tablespoons light cream
- 1½ tablespoons vinegar
- Lettuce

Combine all vegetables in salad bowl. Add seasonings. Blend together cream and vinegar and pour over salad. Toss lightly and serve on lettuce.

A THOROUGHLY CHILLED watermelon makes delicious picnic. However, any of these other fruits, washed and well chilled before being wrapped, are excellent for a eating at a dessert choice: peaches, pears, apricots, cherries or other berries, grapes or melons.

One or two kinds of cookies make an appetizing accompaniment for the fruit. You'll like either this.

Butterscotch Bars
(Makes 3 dozen)

- ½ cup butter
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Melt butter in a heavy saucepan. Add sugar and bring to a boil over low heat, stirring constantly. Cool. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly. Stir in vanilla, then flour which has been sifted with baking powder. Fold in nuts. Pour into a greased and floured 7 x 9 inch pan and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 30 - 35 minutes. Cool, then cut in bars.

Fresh Air Chefs Need Tips

If you are burning charcoal, start the fire an hour ahead of cooking time. For coal, allow one and one-half to two hours. Use enough fuel to build a thick bed of coals.

Getting fancy with the picnic table? Use windproof decorations such as a tray of the fruit for dessert, or low flower arrangements set under a glass or plastic cake cover.

When broiling meat on an outdoor grill, trim off excess fat and snip the edges so the pieces of meat won't curl. Let the fire burn down to red coals, then set a grill three to five inches above the coals and start broiling meat before flames die down.

When using a skillet on an outside grill, set it about 5 inches above the coals.

If you are using sauces for the meat, keep down the fat amount and use more catsup or chili sauce. The fat sputters!

NOW MAY BE TIME TO BUY CATTLE TO FEED

Because of the ample feed supply, the pressure to buy feeder cattle this fall probably will be strong, says Rex Beresford, extension livestock marketing specialist at Iowa State College.

There is more corn on hand than ever before in history, and prospects for another big crop are good. And considering the probable downward trend in corn prices, and the adequate hay and roughage supply, many farmers probably will turn to feeder cattle as a way to market their corn in spite of their 1948-49 experiences, Beresford says.

The result of this situation may be a strong and sustained demand for feeders. Beresford thinks that if this happens, the prices of feeder cattle stand a good chance of being as low now as they will be any time this fall.

On the other hand, the increased supply of pork and of fed cattle may keep the packers from bidding as strongly for cattle in feeder condition for immediate slaughter as they have in recent years. This could relieve the feeder price situation somewhat.

Also to be considered, Beresford says, is the fact that there are no more cattle in the country than there were a year ago, and Western cattle raisers are trying to restock, Feed conditions everywhere, except in some sections of the Northwest, are excellent. One thing that might make some producers sell early and perhaps as many as last year is the growers' suspician that prices will continue on a downward trend.

IOWA LEADS NATION IN SEALED CORN

Washington,—Iowa leads all of the states in the amount of corn it has under seal.

Of 532,574,190 bushels of surplus 1948-crop corn under government price support programs by June 30, Iowa had 191,636,000 bushels under price support, the agriculture department reported yesterday.

The total amount under seal for the nation was valued at about $766,000,000.

The largest amount ever before put under similar programs was 302,000,00 bushels of 1939-corn crop.

The government is offering a storage fee of 10 cents a bushel to farmers who reseal their 1948 corn instead of turning it over to the government when the loan or purchase agreement is due.

However, the agriculture department expects to take delivery on a considerable quantity of this corn. With storage space already for 45,000,000 bushels, the department has asked for bids on bins capable of storing 100,000,000 bushels.

Some department experts believe, however, that the department will have to buy even more storage bins than the 100,000,000 bushel capacity

LATE SUMMER IS TIME TO HAVE SOIL TESTED

Late summer is a good time to test soil for fertilizer needs, says Walter Fitts, head of the soil testing labratory at Iowa State College.

This year's yields can be used to select oats and hay fields that have not produced well, and corn and other crops are far enough along to indicate which fields need improving, Fitts points out.

Information sheets to be filled out before sending samples in may be obtained at county extension director's offices. One side of each sheet contains complete instructions for taking soil samples. The other side is to be filled out with information about the location and area from which the sample was taken.

New type mailing cartons that hold from four to six individual soil sample cartons also are available at county extension directors' offices. The new mailing cartons and individual sample cartons replace the old type envelopes.

After the soil samples have been sent in, specialists at Iowa State College test for phosphorus, potassium and lime needs. Fitts explains that they do not tests for the presence of an adequate supply of nitrogen, but they make recommendations on nitrogen needs, based on the other tests and description of the soil on the information sheet.

Fitts points out that the Production Marketing Association is now carrying on a soil sampling program and will take soil samples and send them in for farmers who request them. At least 3 weeks is required to make a complete analysis of soil samples after they have been sent in.

FOUR WAYS TO CONTROL RED SPIDER ON TREES

One of the most common ills this time of year in spruce, cedar and ornamental trees is damage caused by red spiders.

Earle Raun, extension entomologist at Iowa State College, says that discoloration of foliage indicates that checking for these tiny red-to-yellow mites is advisable He says you can find them on the undersides of leaves or on the needles of evergreens. Another way to check is to place a piece of white paper below a branch and then strike the branch. If spiders are present they will fall onto the paper. Raun suggests four means of control. Red spiders can be sprayed with nicotine sulfate mixed at the rate of 1 pint of the chemical to 50 gallons of water to which 2 pounds of laundry soap has been added. The trees can be dusted with dusting sulfur or sprayed with wettable sulfur. Another spray, called TEPP, is also good, but it is extremely toxic to warm blooded animals. It should be used according to manufacturers' recommendations.

A strong stream of water directed on the tree four or five times a week will also control the spider, Raun points out.

LAWN MOWER WITH SELF-EJECTING . . .

Minneapolis Lady Asks About Waltzing Mouse

. . . BLADES PRESENTS NEW PROBLEMS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

'ANSWER MAN'

Q.—Miss Sapho Hosley, Cos Cob, Conn., writes in to find out if there is such a thing as a lawn mower with self-ejecting extra blades, and, if so, where she should throw the old ones.

A.—An engineer in Cleveland Ohio, is said to have invented a look-sharp-feel-sharp-be-sharp lawn mower with a pack of 10 blades. We forget his last name, but his first name is Esau. Old lawn mower blades should be thrown off a bridge, never put in a medicine cabinet.

Q.—Edgar Woofbaum of Delaware Water Gap asks, "How many hairs are there on the back of a bee, and is it true a bee likes them parted in the middle?"

A.—There are said to be 234,582 hairs on the back of an adult bee, provided it has never had dandruff. Drones part their hair in the middle. Busy bees have no time to bother about such things.

Q.—A lady in Minneapolis asks: "How many turns does a waltzing mouse make per minute, and is food a factor?"

A. — According to the last quarterly report of the Waltzing Mice Research Bureau, these creatures average three turns per second. This is sometimes slowed down by mice cutting in during the waltz. A pastry diet is bad, too

Q.—A mother in Hoboken, N.J., asks: "Is it true that tattooed women are barred from Miss America contests?"

A.—No, but there seems to be no demand for them. The rules are, however, very broad. A woman in Derby, Conn., dyed her skin red white and blue, and only lost the victory in a Miss Barber Pole of 1948 contest by three lengths.

Q.—A seamstress from Tallahassee, Fla., writes to ask: "Can cornsilk be used to stuff a sofa?"

A.—Yes, cornsilk can be used, and it is good fun, too. Short lengths of cornsilk make it more exciting Golden Bantam corn is best. Some people have done wonders stuffing sofas with lint collected from black pants.

Q.—A man in Baltimore, Md., asks: "Will a halibut live in captivity, and where can halibut bowls be bought?"

A.—A man named Krossshiemovitczosky in Butte, Mont., once kept a male halibut in the bathtub of his home for seven months under the impression it was a salmon. The barracuda is preferred as a house pet if what you want is adventure.

Q.—A young woman in Houston, Tex., wants to know who invented the clamrake?

A.—I'm glad she asked that question. The curator of the International Clamrake Museum and Oyster Fork Institute says it was designed by an Englishman named Zilch, patented by two Frenchmen and built by a Canadian clam trapper This makes it a Russian invention.

UNREST ON CRUSOE'S ISLAND

("Unrest is reported sweeping Robinson Crusoe's island in the South Pacific."—News item)

Crusoe—Friday, you don't seem co-operative today. What's wrong?

Friday—I've been Friday long enough. I wanna be Thursday.

Crusoe—Why?

Friday—It shortens the week.

Crusoe—Come, come, you must be joking.

Friday—Not at all. I may even want to make it seem shorter by having my name changed to Wednesday.

Crusoe—We're the only two men on this island. We've been getting along famously. You've been my right-hand man.

Friday—Yes, but I feel a pull to the left.

Crusoe — Not here, surely. We've been very happy together, have we not?

Friday—There must be a capitalistic plot behind it somehow. I'm so happy it must be wrong, one way or another.

Crusoe—Now run along and fetch me some coconuts.

Friday—There you go exploiting me!

Crusoe—Look, we are both in the same boat. How could one exploit the other?

Friday—If I had a copy of the Daily Worker I could tell you. This island is so remote I don't even get Pravda.

THE GLORY WAY

NOW that the Christ is risen,
Now with the darkness gone,
The road lies out before us,
Upward, and on and on.

There are His sandal footprints,
There is His form ahead,
Straight and strong and compelling,
The Christ that they left as dead.

Nothing can dim His glory,
Nothing can stay His feet,
And countless are they who follow
Him down each lane and street;

And I would be one among them,
Along the Glory Way;
I would arise and follow
The risen Christ today.

Thank God for God!

Lesson for August 7, 1949

WHILE the little children are thanking God for birds and bees and oatmeal, let us grown people rise and offer some adult thanksgivings. Reading the Psalms of praise which are this week before us, we get the impression that these poets were grateful above all not for anything God had given but for God himself. Thank God for God! sings through every line

Dr. Foreman

Suppose there were no God? He is the Creator of all; without him nothing else can be. The nature of time and space, of molecule and atom and electron, the mighty power that holds all together; the emergence of life, of mind, the possibility of thought, of values, whatever is and whatever can be, is because he wills it so. That there is energy in the atom, light in the sun, refreshment in the rain and power in the lightning—that these things can be and that anything can be, we thank the God.

No Unrighteousness in Him

SUPPOSE God were not good? A vast and vicious devil, his immense mind brimming with intelligence and malice, could perhaps have contrived a universe more enormous than this corner of one which is known to us. A creative devil—what pangs he could have invented to torture his creatures!

It may be, indeed, that only on this earth is there rebellion against the Creator, and that elsewhere in God's dominions all is peace. But suppose it were true that all the evil in the world was ordained by some Creative Hatred?—all the goodness in the world only an illusion, a deception?

Suppose it were the intent of some devilish maker of man finally to destroy all his creatures, or worse still, to make every creature long bitterly for death but find none? Let us thank God for God: the God of mercy whose loving kindness endureth forever

He Knoweth Our Frame

LET us thank God for his providence. He did not create and then forget us, nor give us so much freedom that we could destroy his majesty or bring to naught his mighty plan. Let us thank God for his infinite love and interest that spares and speeds us, his knowledge of our frame, his remembering even the hairs upon our heads. Let us thank God that being infinite he can have a care for the infinitesimal, and that not a sparrow falls to the ground without our heavenly Father. Let us thank God whose care for us is such that without his knowledge not the least of his creatures can fall asleep.

From death and disaster we and the nation and the world have been saved, time and again. Frail is the craft in which the human spirit is launched through this pathless universe; yet it holds, and will hold, because the universe is there by his almighty decree.

In spite of the chaos of men's unruly wills, in spite of we know not what rebellions in the spirit world, he sees to it that not one good is ever wholly lost.

Who Redeemeth Thy Life

LET US PRAISE God for his promise and for his faithfulness. That he has not left us to our sins nor given us up though long we scorned him; that his divine patience outlasts the hasty heart; that he spared not his own Son but freely gave him for our sakes; that none who come to him will be cast out; that the God who creates is the God who redeems, we praise him from a heart of love. As the Psalmist of old knew himself as one of the children of the Covenant, so may every man who takes God's promises and makes them his heart's own.

To take this God for my God—this is the beginning and the end of religion. To step out on his promises as on a bridge that stands secure above all the floods of eternity.

To trust in his faithfulness though all the race of man were liars; to look down the vista of the years without fear, knowing that the God of our fathers will be the God of each succeeding race, that his mercy is everlasting to everlasting and that his kingdom ruleth over all—this is to know him, and his is life eternal. Thank God for God!

ALTHOUGH she now has three network programs on the air, ("Kate Smith Sings," "Kate Smith Speaks," both on Mutual, and her two-hour "Kate Smith's Music Room" on ABC,) Miss Smith can sit down and talk with you as if she were just a comfortable, homey woman who knew a lot about cooking and housekeeping.

KATE SMITH

Unlike many of radio's women stars, she is not so obsessed by her own career that an absent-minded look comes into her eyes whenever anything else is mentioned. Perhaps it is that warm, human quality that makes her the most listened-to woman on the air.

When selecting "The Ten Outstanding Voices in the World" the National Academy of Vocal Arts named Ben Grauer's as the "Most Authoritative" and Dan Seymour's as the "Friendliest," because of its warmth and complete naturalness."

Production halted momentarily when Jean Dean walked onto the "Angels in Disguise" set at Monogram for her featured role in this latest of the Bowery Boys series. Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and the crew could hardly take their eyes off the gorgeous red-head, who was the original Varga girl model. Formerly under contract at MGM, she plays the feminine lead in "Angels."

Realizing during their travels that the traffic situation is becoming worse everywhere, the March of Time editors decided to do something about it. They consulted experts, got solutions and recommendations and "Stop—Heavy Traffic" is the result. It shows how bad traffic can be, and the methods used by some towns to work out the problem.

★ ★ GREAT MAN ★ ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

IF PROFESSOR AARON CHESwick was famous he was not aware of this fact. He was too busy with his experiments in the field of chemistry, with teaching the undergraduates of Mapleridge College the rudiments of elementary science, with writing papers and books in which he set forth (in an almost apologetic style) the results of his experiments, and with reading avidly the works of such great scientists as Mons. Oliver Davillier and Senor Alfredo Valle Indan, both of whom had long ago won his respect and admiration.

He was an unpretentious looking little man, this Professor Cheswick, with pale blue eyes and horn-rimmed glasses and a pasty complexion. He wasn't one to attract attention or to assert himself. He went about with a perpetual far-away look in his eyes.

There came a time when a problem presented itself that challenged his skill and knowledge. He labored over it for days. The days became weeks and the weeks months. At last, worn and haggard, the little man was ready to admit defeat.

Time after time he returned to it, only to find himself defeated. He visited every library within miles, read every book by Davillier and Indan, as well as other great scientists that was available, but without finding the answer.

In the end Profesor Cheswick had an idea. It was summer. He needed a vacation. Why not take a month off, visit Europe and perhaps call on Davillier and Indan and ask them personally to clear up the matter that so burdened his mind?

A week later Professor Cheswick sailed for France. The little school teacher was a lonely figure. He struck up a few acquaintances. He wasn't the type to attract people. But he enjoyed the trip. This was something he had never done before.

He was glad when the boat docked. Eagerly he looked ahead to his meeting with Mons. Davillier.

But alas! The next day Professor Cheswick learned that Mons. Davillier had gone to America for his summer holiday and was not expected to return for another month.

The little scientist was depressed and disappointed. His time was short. Madrid, where lived Senor Indan was a long way off. Yet it could be reached, he thought suddenly and excitedly, by plane in a very short while.

HE WAS DELIGHTED to learn that Senor Indan was in Madrid. Yes, it was difficult to obtain an interview with the great man. He was constantly being pressed for interviews. What was it the American wanted to see him about? A problem? Ah, yes, Senor Indan was requested to solve so many problems. It was very, very doubtful if he would grant an interview for such a slight matter. However, if the American would care to take his chances, Senor Indan was to appear at a reception on Tuesday night. Possibly there would be an opportunity to ask his question

Professor Cheswick attended the reception. He stood in line for hours, a quiet, unassuming, unimportant looking little man, waiting for his chance to speak to the great Senor Indan. It came at last. At last the Mapleridge school teacher and scientist stood before the man he respected more than anyone else in the world.

He was so overcome by awe that for a moment he just stared. Senor Indan frowned impatiently and Professor Cheswick found his voice. He stated his question. The Senor's brows arched in surprise.

"An unusual question, Senor," he said. "Frankly, I cannot answer it. There is only one man in the world with enough knowledge and learning to find the answer He is one of your own countrymen. My good friend Mons. Davillier is at this moment in America seeking an interview with this wizard whom the whole scientific world respects and admires, yet who is so absorbed in his work that it is difficult to persuade him to appear in public. I refer to Professor Aaron Cheswick of Mapleridge college."

'Cancer' Causes Mental Agony

By Dr. James W. Barton

A FEW YEARS AGO, if a physician told a patient that the symptoms of which he complained were caused by heart disease, the patient believed himself doomed. Today, most of us know that even if we have heart disease, we can live for years if we follow our doctor's advice and "take it easy."

Even in cases of high blood pressure and a vessel carrying blood to the heart muscle being clogged up or broken (coronary thrombosis), it is know that with care and rest, diet and exercise, further attacks may not occur and that if they do occur they may not cause death. While the words "heart disease" and "coronary thrombosis" still may strike fear in our hearts, it is the word "cancer" that causes great fear and continuous worry, which really is chronic fear.

In the "American Journal of Psychiatry," Dr. J. B. Ficarra states that the word "cancer" stirs a tempest of mental agony so many cases of cancer discovered until too la... life, the family and re... told of the cancer, but ... cases the patient is n... though he may suspect ... of his symptoms.

The Ezzard Charles Rating

Since the melancholy spectacle in Chicago known as the N B A. heavyweight championship, various experts and noncombatants have been busy attempting to rate Ezzard Charles, the winner. The best rating would seem to place Charles somewhere between the post-Tunney and the pre-Louis period.

It is difficult to make any clear cut estimate since he was facing an opponent who refused to fight, the same being Jersey Joe Walcott.

Charles is a better boxer than Max Baer, Primo Carnera and Jim Braddock. He is no better a boxer than Jack Sharkey or Max Schmeling happened to be. He can't punch with Baer, Braddock or Schmeling. That post-Tunney, pre-Louis period was a sad one for the fight game — especially the heavyweight game. This new era, now rolling in, will be just as sad or possibly even sadder.

Grantland Rice

The winner of the Charles—Woodcock vs. Savold contest won't require much on either side. This is just as well since neither side has much to offer. At the very best, such a meeting should be worth perhaps a $10 top, if you happen to have $10 you don't need.

There is no complaint about the N.B.A. calling the Charles-Walcott fiasco a championship fight. It was a terrible fight to watch from start to finish. Jersey Joe Walcott started at a rather brisk pace but, after the second round, suddenly decided that he was through for the evening.

He had collected three pretty fair purses in a row and he had been around 19 years. He had squeezed about all he could out of mediocrity.

You can't keep on making lemonades out of one lemon.

Certainly the heavyweight situation doesn't want any more of Jersey Joe Walcott. This recent show was one place where the promoters had to work without any working material.

The fight mob for years had been accustomed to fellows like Dempsey, Tunney and Louis who could box and also punch. Tunney was no stick of dynamite but he could cut you up and hurt you. The fight mob had become too accustomed to Joe Louis to start cheering for an Ezzard Charles or a Joe Walcott, minus any part of personal appeal. Or even impersonal appeal.

Charles was at least willing to fight, while to Walcott the thought of hitting someone or being hit was decidedly abhorrent. Walcott would have been an ideal soldier in the War of the Roses.

More About Charles

Charles is a serious, earnest young fellow who is a good boxer and who is willing. But he is never overanxious. He is careful. He tried to make a fight of it but his punching was too feathery to make him dangerous.

Charles is not much of a puncher, even with a fair shot at some antagonist. Here was Walcott in front of him for 15 rounds and yet Walcott emerges without a knockdown or a scratch outside of a split upper lip.

This isn't the type of fighter who is going to revive the lagging fight game and start the multitude cheering loudly. For all of that Ezzard Charles is very likely the best heavyweight fighter left in the world today.

He should have no great trouble handling either Woodcock or Savold. Woodcock never was very much and Savold is well over the hill. Charles lacks any touch of fire or flame. He is merely a pretty good workman who is involved with inferior material.

Louis has been through for several years His title was worth at least a million dollars to some ambitious fellow who could learn how to box and punch The inducement has been the richest prize in sport.

The ring game has had at least six years in which to develop just one fighter, one good fighter. The net result has been Ezzard Charles, who, in baseball parlance, would be rated a .270 hitter.

Gene Tunney stopped Tom Heeney and retired in July, 1928. Max Schmeling won from Jack Sharkey on a foul in July, 1930

The Northwest Distributing company and the Farmers Elevator of Mason City will each award 2 round trips on the special train, 1 each to the 4 best long time records in the purebred pig club showing at the North Iowa Fair.

The Mason City Chamber f Commerce agriculture committee will award 2 round trip tickets, 1 each to the top winners in the purebred dairy club and the purebred beef club.

The result of these awards is expected to be an all-time high for entries in the junior district livestock shows. Entertainment features also will help swell attendance.

MIRROR Of Your MIND ■ ■ ■ Guilt Feeling Makes Duffers

By Lawrence Gould

Can a sense of guilt make you miss golf shots?

Answer: Yes, although you probably don't realize it. After struggling with the elusive game for forty years I am convinced that when you miss a two-foot putt, a guilty conscience is the explanation. For success at golf (or any other sport) implies you're doing two things, both of which are "wicked" from a childish standpoint: proving how "good" you are, and getting the better of someone else. The more you want to do either, the more childish memories of being told you mustn't tend to make you flinch and punish yourself by "missing."

HAPPINESS

Should happiness be the goal of education?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Herman Noll of Goettingen University, Germany. True education does not ask how useful the pupil will be to the job for which he is being trained, but how useful the training will be to him in helping him become a happy human being. For in the true sense, in which happiness means more than egotistic pleasure, "Only the happy man is good." Educating children to serve the state rather than teaching them to live so as to realize their own best possibilities marks the difference between Nazism and democracy.

Is it sometimes good for you to be "shocked?"

Answer: Yes, write Drs. Leland Bradford and Paul Sheats of the National Education Association in the magazine, Society. Training supervisors often fail because the trainee has a "vested interest" in certain types of behavior and does not know how to deal with any others. He should be "shocked out of his complacency" and made to realize that his standards are not universally accepted. Finding someone you respect has tastes or habits you were taught to disapprove of may help you to concentrate on things that really matter.

Surgery Relieves Profound Grief

By Dr. James W. Barton

I WRITE FREQUENTLY about the operation lobotomy or leukotomy, used in cases of deep grief and depression. It certainly causes a great change in the individual's outlook on life and is of great comfort and relief to the family.

When this operation was first reported, all that was hoped for was the relief from the great depression of spirits. The fact that these patients, in losing their depression, often lost their sense of responsibility did not seem very important. When further reports showed that some of these patients who had undergone operation were able to return home and be of some use to themselves and to the household, it was more than had been expected.

In "Lancet," London, Dr. G. Garmany reports the results of leukotomy present in 59 patients, three years after operation. Leukotomy proved successful in half of the 22 patients with depression, and also in half of the 10 patients with double personality (the Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde type).

Why was there an improvement in some and not in others having the same symptoms and undergoing the same operation?

Dr. Garmany states that operation alone is not responsible for all the improvement obtained. Improvement also depends on the home environment or surroundings.

In depression a naturally good personality, never affected by fears, doubts, emotional disturbances, and of average intelligence, is absolutely necessary if good results are to be expected. Where the patient has always been affected with illusions, delusions, obsessions or other types of odd behavior, good results may be, but are usually not, obtained by leukotomy.

The thought here is that while leukotomy relieves grief and depression in most cases, restoring the mind and the emotions to normal depends to a great extent upon the personality of the individual during his lifetime and also upon his family and community surroundings.

HEALTH NOTES

When symptoms point to lack of vitamins, eating enough of the protective foods will bring relief. The protective foods are milk, butter, cream, cheese, fruits and green vegetables.

Physicians suggest that all patients with severe sciatica and low back pain should be put to bed for one month.

Of 100 children examined with rheumatic fever, 33 per cent had mild inflamation (gingivitis) of the gums. Of 100 normal children, only four per cent had gingivitis.

Another reason why the diet should contain less sugar is that it kills the desire for other foods just as necessary as sugar or other starch foods.

Patio Costume

Rustling cotton taffeta with a moire finish makes its appearance on the style horizon in a sophisticated costume for resort wear. Carolyn Schnurer designs a strapless bodice and a separate wrap-around skirt with fullness concentrated at the side. Over it she poses a triangular stole. The costume also bids for future honors at home in the winter evening scene as well as for summer.

Change Plain Dresses With Neckline or Color

Every once in a while we look at a dress and wonder how we could ever have chosen something so plain or severe. This is easily remedied.

Lace yokes are being used extensively on the new fashions and may be readily inserted on a plain dress which would give it the proper background.

Patterns for yokes may be purchased either as such, or they may be part of a dress or blouse pattern which intrigues you. Use only the yoke for the old dress.

These yokes may also be made in sheers or contrasting solid colors, if you prefer them to lace. Whatever fabric is chosen, it should be in keeping or good contrast to the dress material.

Plain dresses can be given the scoop necklines with little alteration, and then be worn with some of the luxurious new costume jewelry

For a softly feminine change to a plain dress, you might like to bare the neckline more, which would be in keeping with new fashion trends. Then add a ruffle for trimming, and use some of it on the flap pockets at hips, or on the sleeves.

Another idea for adding dash to a plain dress in the classic style would be to use plaid ruffling for a plunging type neckline, with similar ruffling for the sleeve trim as well as the skirt ruffle, especially where extra length is needed.

Many dresses can be made entirely new looking with the addition of a bolero in a gay and contrasting shade when the original dress is dark.

Be Smart!

Going places via car, train or plane? Then you'll be interested in the growing fashion importance of the linen duster. Sketched here is one of the newer ideas of this quaint revival, a raglan sleeve, convertible collar combination with flap pockets that repeat the line of the turn-back cuffs. It's especially adapted to the heavier weave of linen because of its unusual tailoring details. You'll want to be sure the buttons are handsome such as large smoked pearl affairs that repeat the overtones of the popular natural colored linen.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Avoid Boredom in Marriage

ANNE AND Alan Wilson are deadly bored with their marriage, and just about have decided to break it up. Nothing is specifically wrong, and everything is wrong.

"Alan is a smart man," writes Anne, "and I'm stupid; I know it. I'm a good cook, I keep my apartment clean and comfortable, but I can't talk politics or business, when I try to, Alan just looks at me patiently and looks back at his newspaper, without any comment.

"We have two children; I know we both adore them, I know we'd both die for them. But living with a stubborn, spirited boy of 4 and a delicate girl of 6 is something else. Alan and I are both nervous people, and the children naturally are nervous, too. There is a good deal of crying and disobedience in a sort of nursery way; not scenes and beatings and loud voices, but difficulties in getting them to go off to bed, or Alan asking 'What on earth is Shirley crying about now?'

"We try to control our nerves, but we don't seem to be talking the same language these days. Alan showers, dresses, goes off to business; I don't see him again until six o'clock and then he hardly speaks. Then it's the newspaper, radio, dinner, and he is either 'dead tired' and goes to bed, or he is going 'over to Joe's for a minute.' All wives, busy with dishes, homework, mending, know that 'minute.'

Longs for Life, Vitality

"I long for life, vitality, interest, occupation," Anne ends her letter. "I'm doing my job as well as I can, but it's not enough for me. It's not enough for Alan. These five small rooms are as modern, as well-equipped as any in the world, I suppose; we don't like taxes and rising prices, but we aren't in debt. There should be a good many things for us to talk about, after nine years of marriage. But apparently there aren't.

". . . Then it's the newspaper . ."

"Now the questions I want to ask you are these: Do you often hear of a situation like this? Is it my fault or Alan's? Would a psychoanalyst help us? I'm 30, Alan 34, we can't go on for 40 years like this. Can you help us?"

My answers to these questions are yes, I often hear of this situation, it arises in many marriages. No, I wouldn't go to a psychoanalyst. In your case that would be money thrown away. And yes, it is your fault and Alan's both, although it isn't an easy one to see.

In the first place, Anne, you're not stupid. No stupid woman ever wrote a letter like this. You're simply bogged down in a rut that has involved Alan and the children, too. Five city rooms, year out and year in, aren't too healthy an environment for two small children. Five city rooms doesn't afford much scope for your imagination or activity, either. Five city rooms aren't restful when a man gets home from eight hours in a close office.

Sandersons Solved Problem

I'll tell you what the Sandersons did. They had three boys, and when a doctor told Jim, four years ago, that not one, but two of his sons was threatened with congestion of lungs. Jim and Margery moved out into the country with the speed of fire-horses. Boredom was forgotten, city luxuries were tossed aside. Jim's rooted comtempt for commuters suffered a surprising jolt.

They bought "Hideaway" for $5,000. A tumbledown white cottage, an acre of apple trees, five great oaks and a stream. Yes, and it was at the end of a train and a bus trip, for Jim, with half a mile of country road at the end of that, and there was a wood stove in the kitchen, dangling electric lights of the 1900 period in the rooms, and the bathtub was tin. But—

Well, you ought to see it now. Paint and glass and a floor furnace have done wonders.

The Sandersons eat their own tomatoes and corn and fruit all summer. Winter mud for the car and summer dust—well, of course.

But there are three hard, noisy, sunburned big boys on the place now, in the place of coughing little fellows from the city, and they help. There are a man and a woman there now, discussing changes and improvements and plans, living every moment.

Make a change, Anne. Give the children country freedom and their nerves and rebellions will disappear like mist.

Stars' Children Take to Stage

They Seek Careers Like Their Parents

HOLLYWOOD.—School is out in Hollywood and the movie stars' sprigs are getting summer jobs. As movie stars, of course.

Gloria Swanson's daughter is talking about a screen test; Charlie Chaplin's son is starring in a play, John Barrymore's boy is sweating over his movie debut. Even Judy Garland's baby is a movie veteran.

To old-timers in Hollywood, this looks like where they came in.

Joan Bennett's daughter is testing for one of the biggest parts in her mother's new picture, produced by her stepfather. Harold Lloyd says Harold, Jr., will be in his next comedy.

"His sisters think he's very funny," Lloyd said. "They never laugh at me Oh, the trials of being a father."

John Barrymore, Jr., a 17-year-old copy of the great profile, is earning $150 a week for the first acting he's ever done.

"The ham came out in me when I was 15," young Barrymore says. "I took a walk and looked at the stars a long time. All of a sudden I knew I had to be an actor."

He's trying to see all his famous father's pictures now, he added. He'd previously seen only "The Invisible Woman."

Sydney Chaplin, Charlie's 22-year-old son, is a big hit in the 'Circle Players' "Anna Lucasta." He's been acting with them a couple of years and says he'll do his first movie when they make one.

"My dad's very pround of me," he allowed. "He never misses a show."

Fifteen-year-old Melinda Markey has talked her stepfather, Walter Wanger, into testing her for the part of Rebecca in "The Ballad and The Source," which will star her mother. Miss Bennett.

"I've always wanted to be an actress like my mother," she said. She was hoping to debut on the stage this summer, she added, until the family decided to take her to Italy where the picture will be made.

Gloria Swanson's daughter, Michele Bridget Farmer, 17, has been talking with producers about screen tests ever since her mother introduced her around. She hasn't anything definite yet.

When the captain found out what had occurred, he sued the beachcomber for the value of the chest. The latter argued that neither of them really owned it—so the first finder could keep it. However, the court upheld the captain's claim. The judge said that the owner of the seashore property has prior rights.

Is Shaving a "Necessity" In the Eyes of the Law?

A certain town passed a "Blue Law" which prohibited all labor on Sundays except for "works of necessity." One Saturday night, a man went to the barber shop for a shave However, before his turn came he became ill and had to go home. The next morning, at his special request, the barber went to his shop and gave the man a shave. Someone reported the incident to the police, and the barber was arrested. He argued that, under the circumstances, the Sunday shave was a "necessity." But the court couldn't see it that way and found him guilty. The judge said the customer wouldn't have been any worse off if he hadn't gotten his shave until Monday!

Singing Holidays

Lesson for August 14, 1949

IF A CITIZEN of the U.S.A. observed all the holidays that are officially counted as legal, somewhere in his wide country, he would have 43 days off every year. Holidays are a national habit in all countries. Not content with what the law gives us, we take our personal vacations besides. But how many holidays do we sing about? (One might even dare to ask, how many are worth singing about?) In the United States, there are known to this writer no New Year songs, none for Decoration day or Labor day, none for Armistice day, none for the various birthdays celebrated hither and yon. (Who ever heard of a song to commemorate Thomas Jefferson?) We may not even sing on our personal vacations, we are too busy working up a suntan. On the other hand, we could hardly think of Independence day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter without being reminded of the songs that go with them—The Star Spangled Banner or America the Beautiful for the Fourth of July, Now Thank We All Our God in November, and all the Christmas and Easter carols.

God and Country

IT looks as if some kinds of holidays produce songs and others don't. It appears to be a general rule: If the holiday is specially patriotic or religious, then people sing; otherwise they don't. God and country, in short, arouse emotion and enthusiasm which (for example) the memory even of a great man like Jefferson, or the planting of a tree, does not. This is generally true throughout the world. It was true in ancient Israel, for many of the Psalms are holiday hymns, festival songs. Some years ago a religious denomination issued a new hymn book. One minister roundly denounced the book because it had introduced a few patriotic hymns. "My Country, 'tis of Thee" has no place in public worship, he said.

If that man had been a closer student of the Psalms, he would not have made such a criticism. Most patriotic hymns are really prayers for one's native land; Psalms 105 and 106 are only two of a number of Psalms which are in the best sense of the word patriotic.

If the reader will look through the Psalms for himself, noting all the references to God and to Israel, remembering that Israel was the name of the poet's country, he will be convinced that in those times as in these, love for God and love for country are singable.

Hallelujah

OUR word "Hallelujah" is Hebrew, and comes from the Psalms. It means "Praise ye the Lord!" Incidentially, it is a religious word, and should not be used, as it so often is, irreverently or lightly. Psalms 111-118 in our Bible were sung as a group, and called the Hallel, or the Praise. The Hallel was sung regularly at the three great holiday festivals: Passover (near our Easter time), Pentecost (in early summer, ancestor of our Whitsunday), and Tabernacles (in the fall).

When our Lord had his "Last Supper" he and his friends would sing these very Psalms. The "hymn" they sang before they went out was very probably the latter part of this group, 116-118, always sung at the end of the Passover meal.

The note of praise in these Psalms is very strong. They are not in a minor key.

Parodies

A SAD FACT today is that the un-Christian world, which does not understand religion at all, has taken over our religious holidays but leaves the religion out. The result is a parody, something without rhyme or reason. Take a look, next winter, at Christmas greeting cards for sale. You will find scotty pups, all sorts of things, more easily than you will find true Christmas messages.

For people who are not Christians, Christmas is only Xmas, a time for exchanging useless presents, a time for shopkeepers to make money.

And as for Easter, there are cities where the big items are only the bunnies and the parade, neither of which has the slightest thing to do with the real Easter.

TOO-FULL REFRIGERATOR IS MISTAKE TO AVOID

Guard against overloading refrigerator these summer days, is a caution from Naomi Shank, home management specialist at Iowa State College.

When the refrigerator is too full, circulation of air is shut off and foods don't keep as cool. Try to avoid putting anything into the refrigerator you'll later throw away, Miss Shank suggests. Carrot- tops or radish leaves, for example, should be removed before the vegetables are refrigerated.

A check-up every now and then to make sure foods are covered is a good idea too. Uncovered foods let moisture into the air in the food chamber, later to deposit on the unit. And of course uncovered foods rapidly lose flavor and food value.

Remember that frost on the cooling unit is like a wooly blanket, keeping the cold inside rather . than letting it out to cool stored foods. Odors collect with the frost on the cooling unit. Defrost often enough, Miss Shank advises—whenever the frost on the unit is one-fourth inch thick. After defrosting wipe the interior lining, shelves and defrosted cooling unit with a cloth wrung from a baking soda bath.

There's more to keeping the refrigerator clean than washing the interior, Miss Shank adds. The condensing coils or plate need to be cleaned now and then, so air can circulate around them and keep them cool. The crevice tool on your vacuum cleaner or a long-handled, soft bristled brush does a good job of cleaning the coils or plate. Remember to disconnect the refrigerator first.

In Fair Races

Des Moines, Ia., Special: Frankie Luptow and his big new Offenhauser, rated as "the hottest thing on wheels," will bid for the national speedways championship of 1949 in big-time auto races at this year's Iowa State Fair, officials announced today. Speedway racing dates are Friday, Aug. 26; Sunday, Aug. 28, plus new-type stock car racing on Thursday, Sept. 1. Luptow, already ahead on national title points, has been burning up the tracks in a dozen states this season. He was runner-up to Dan Snyder in the 1948 speedway standing, and hopes to knock Snyder off the champion's throne with new speed records at the Iowa State Fair.

It's Smart to— CAN AND FREEZE PEACHES

Pretty jars of peaches—all in a row--are a delight to any homemaker, but if you have facilities it's a good idea to freeze peaches also. Here the fruit is being covered with a boiling liquid during the coldpack method of cannng.

There'll be plenty of peaches on the market this season to can, freeze and eat fresh. And that's good news for the homemaker who'll find that there are advantages to having both canned and frozen peaches, Mildred Nelson, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, points out.

Frozen peaches are a delicacy in the winter months she explains, but canned peaches often are "lifesavers" in case of an emergency. Many homemakers don't have home storage facilities for keeping frozen peaches Also many homemakers don't have enough room in their freezers to store all the peaches they will need.

Canning Peaches

Peaches may be canned either by the hot-pack or the cold-pack method, Miss Nelson says Hot-packing gives more room in each jar; cold packing gives firmer, prettier peaches. For either method, prevent darkening by putting the peaches in a solution containing 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 tablespoon of vinegar to 2 quarts of water as they are peeled. Lift the peaches out of this solution, rinse and drain before packing.

For the cold-pack method, fill each jar to within ½ inch of the top. Pour a boiling sirup of 1 cup of water or peach juice to ½ to 1 cup sugar over the peaches. Work out air bubbles with a knife blade. Process in a water bath for 35 minutes for quarts and 25 for pint jars.

To can peaches by the hot-pack method, add ¼ cup of sugar for each pound of fruit Heat to boiling and pack hot. Process in the boling water bath for 20 minutes—both pints and quarts. If less juicy peaches are used, drop them into the same sirup as is used for the cold-pack method, and heat. Pack the fruit hot and cover with boiling juice or sirup.

Freezing Peaches

Peaches should be treated to prevent darkening before freezing. Miss Nelson says to do it this way: add three-fourths teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid (vitamin C) to 1 quart of sirup just before it is used, or use a mixture containing ascorbic acid which is prepared especially for treating fruit that will be frozen. Follow directions printed on the container. Ascorbic acid is also available in tablet form but it is much more expensive If you must use tablets, use 1500 milligrams for 1 quart of sirup

Cover the peaches within ½ inch of the top of the container with a sirup made with 5 cups of sugar to 4 cups water. This sirup should be simmered until clear and chilled before covering the peaches.

Peaches must be kept under the liquid or they will darken. This can be done by using ½ inch strips cut from waxed paper containers. Bend the ends upward—the container lid will hold the trips in position and keep the fruit down. Another way is to insert a wad of cellophane at the top of each container. Use airtight cintainer

If the peaches will be cooked when used as for pie, Miss Nelson points out that it is less expensive to prevent darkening with sodium bisulfite. Dip the peaches in a solution of 1 teaspoon sodium bisulfite to each quart of water, drain and pack into moisture vapor proof cintainers without sugar or sirup.

Poor Posture May Affect Health and Personality

Poor posture is expensive. The cost comes high in money, health, personal appearance and in personality, says Mrs. Ann Jackson, extension clothing specialist, Colorado A. & M. college.

Consider first the effect of poor posture on clothes. There is the round - shouldered, flat - chested drooping head posture. And equally bad is the poor posture with sway-back, protruding stomach and back-thrust buttocks. In either case something happens to a well-designed garment.

On the round-shouldered woman the shoulders and the back of the garment fit poorly, the front of the neckline droops and the seams often hang at an angle. All of these bad points mean that alteration is necessary. And alterations are expensive.

On the sway-backed woman, the waist is likely to hang in wrinkles and the hip and belt lines may be uneven because the bulges pull them out of line. What is the result? This calls for alterations of shoulders, neckline, waistline and hemline. Not only are the alterations costly, but they can change the basic lines of the dress so that the garment loses its smartness. Smart clothes demand correct posture.

Poor posture causing shift of body weight can cause unnecessary wear and tear on shoes. Run-over heels result from poor walking posture.

Health and personality reflect the results of poor posture. When you think of poise, dignity, ease and evenness of temper you think of the woman or girl who is graceful and stands "tall," Mrs. Jackson emphasizes. A drooping figure reflacts lack of vitality, interest and animation.

Cayman Islands' People Make Rope, Catch Turtles

Catching 200-pound sea turtles is big business on the Cayman islands, south of Cuba. So is making rope of thatch-palm straw and building boats of native hardwoods. In the Caribbean not far south of Grand Cayman, largest of this group of three, the hurricane that lashed southern Florida hard—had its birth. On a reef of Little Cayman, the storm stranded a Cuba-bound freighter.

On Little Cayman's rocky 10 square miles, the revenue officer doubles as school teacher and has time for fishing, too, since less than 70 people inhabit the isle. It is 700 miles north of the Panama Canal, and 350 miles south of Key West, with Cuba intervening, notes the National Geographic society.

Visible close by to the east is slightly larger Cayman Brac, island home for 1,300. These two are said to have been found by Christopher Columbus in May, 1503. He named them "Las Tortugas" on account of their turtles.

Just beyond the horizon to the west, Grand Cayman, with well over 5,000 inhabitants, sprawls over an area larger than the District of Columbia. It contains three-fourths of the land of Jamaica's Cayman Islands Dependency.

Soil Pipe Industry

Because of the remarkable gains in production scored in recent years, cast iron soil pipe, long, one of the most critical items in the plumbing industry, now is available for all types of construction, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau. The production of soil pipe in 1948 exceeded 600,000 tons or three times the average production from 1910 to 1941. The production of soil pipe in 1947 was 577,000 tons and in 1946 the industry produced 400,000 tons. Soil pipe is used for waste, vent, and sewer lines within and outside of buildings. Production of steel pipe and tubes in 1948 was about ten per cent greater than the previous peak year of 1947.

FIND SOLUTION TO STRAW CAN'T MOVE

Tenants Who Have Baled And Must Move To Be Paid By New Tenant

A simple and satisfactory solution has been worked out to the problem brought up by farm leases which provide that all straw must stay on the rented farm when a tenant moves, I. W. Arthur, extension economist at Iowa State College, pointed out this week.

Most farm leases have included such a provision for at least half a century. It is based on conditions which prevailed when all of the small grain was threshed.

Now that combining has become common, the provision brings up new problems. A tenant operating under a crop-share lease frequently will bale part or all of the straw. He even may put it into the barn. Under these conditions, the tenant has an investment tied up in the straw which hasn't been shared by the landlord, according to Arthur.

Cover Costs

When a tenant decides to move, he may want to take some of his baled straw with him. However, the lease states that all the straw must stay on the farm.

The solution worked out provides that the oncoming tenant will pay the outgoing tenant a small fee to cover the labor and expense involved in baling the straw and putting it into the barn, according to Arthur. On some farms a fee of 20 cents per bale has been paid to the outgoing tenant. This money can be used by the outgoing tenant to pay for the same expenses tied up in baled straw on the farm to which he is moving, Arthur says.

Avoids Weed Danger

This is a more logical solution to the problem than providing for movement of baled straw, Arthur thinks. Moving it requires extra expense and labor. Too, moving straw brings up the danger of carrying noxious weed seed from one farm to another.

Lease forms, directions for their use, and other information about farm rental agreements may be obtained by writing to Arthur, Iowa State College, Ames.

USE 2,4-D TO KILL WEEDS IN STUBBLE

Apply Whenever Regrowth Of Perennial Weeds Is At Least 6 Inches

Perennial weeds such as wild morning-glory, bindweed Canada thistle, and perennial pepper grass now making regrowth in oats stubble fields can be controlled by 2,-4D, according to E. P. Sylwester, of Iowa State College.

He recommends allowing regrowth of these weeds to become about 6 inches tall before spraying. When the weeds shorter than this are sprayed, control is not good

Use 1 To 1½ Pounds

The ester form of 2,4-D will give best control, according to Sylwester. He recommends applying to to 1½ pounds of the actual chemical per acre This amount is contained in 1 to 1½ quarts of the liquid 2,4-D concentrate.

For small patches of weeds, use 1 tablespoon of the ester form of 2,4-D per gallon of water. Spray weeds until they are thoroughly wet, but avoid runoff as this wastes material

Will Kill Legumes

Sylwester cautions that the above dosages of 2,4-D will kill legumes He also recommends spraying under low pressure on days when there is little wind to reduce the danger of spray drift

Most perennial weeds require more than one spraying Apply another spray whenever regrowth is 6-10 inches high

FAN BLADE

Theodore Knecht of Whittemore was repairing a big motor in the light plant recently, when his wrench slipped and he struck his hand into a large fan The blade cut through his fore-arm clear to the bone, cutting the tendons, and is expected to leave three of his fingers useless.

Television Can Be Used To Sharpen X-Ray Films

An important medical disclosure involving a new use for television has been revealed by the University of Illinois college of medicine.

University investigators disclosed that television can be used to make x-ray films clearer, sharper and be of definite assistance in making a diagnosis.

The discovery of new possibilities of television stemmed from studies made by Craig W Goodwin and Dr. John S. Garvin, in conjunction with television station WBKB, Chicago.

The significance and clinical application of the disclosure was pointed out by Dr. Roger A. Harvey, head of the University's department of radiology. He explained:

"X-ray films have been reproduced on television screens in the past in connection with transmission of surgical procedures and clinical conferences However, their inclusion has been incidental and little has been done to investigate the possibilities."

University researchers found that "an extremely high degree of accuracy" can be obtained in reproducing x-rays on television. By varying the density and contrast controls on the receiver, details and findings on the original film can be brought out much more clearly For example, questionable shadow can be brought out in great detail, and both over and under-exposed film can be corrected.

First Railway Express Was Toted in Carpet Bag

From the earliest days of America's railroads, express service has been an important phase of passenger train operations. It was in 1839, when railroads were few and far between and the nation depended mainly upon over-the-road coaches and wagons for transportation, that the first expressman set himself up in the business of carrying packages.

Traveling by early train and Long Island Sound steamer between Boston and New York, he established an express line to provide a means of direct shipping between sender and receiver, using a carpetbag as his "car." This personal element in coordinating the best transportation means available into a single operating agency, proved popular and led to the nation-wide express service of today.

As each new railroad was completed, movement of the express business, was transferred to passenger trains, with an express company providing pickup and delivery at points of origin and destination. Thereafter, express transportation became a vital factor in the commercial development of the country, marching in step with railroad progress. During the first world war, the various companies in the field were unified.

Nutrition Study Findings

In a nutrition study conducted in junior high schools by Dr Mary M. Clayton of the Maine experiment station, physical examinations, blood tests and diet records showed that many of the children were low on some nutrients needed for good health. Many did not eat food to provide fuel for their active lives. Other frequent shortages were iron, vitamin C and niacin, one of the B-vitamins. Many children ate too few vegetables and fruits to supply their vitamin C needs. About half were not getting enough milk. Blood tests showed that boys were more apt to be low in vitamins A and C than girls. However, the diets of both boys and girls tended to run low in citrus fruits, tomatoes, and raw cabbage —good foods for vitamin C, and in green leafy and yellow vegetables important for vitamin A.

Cancer of Breast

Implantation of pellets of free testosterone (male sex hormone) beneath the skin of women suffering from advanced cancer of the breast is resulting in weight gain and a feeling of well-being, says Dr. Robert Greenblatt of the University of Georgia school of medicine. Dr. Greenblatt emphasizes that the only "truly beneficial effects were increase in weight and the feeling of well-being of many patients." The rapid spread of the disease in some cases could not be halted, he stated, pointing out that all of the patients were at a stage where surgery or radiation therapy would be of no avail.

Fowl Leucosis

A veterinary bulletin estimates that over 30 per cent of all untimely deaths among laying hens can be traced to fowl leucosis and that the American poultry industry sustains losses from it amounting to about 40 million dollars a year. Fowl leucosis, the bulletin points out, is not a single disease, but is a complex array of several different disorders that all stem from a single causative agent—a virus. For this reason, the disease usually is referred to as the "fowl leucosis complex." The exact form or forms the disease takes in any given bird depends upon which part of the body is attacked by the virus.

Snyder will defend his title against other big-time racers from every section of the country in races set for Friday, Aug. 26, and Sunday, Aug. 28, on the State Fair's fast half-mile track. The Ohio speed king will drive his own special Offenhauser, the same car that carried him to a new world speed record for half-mile dirt tracks at Owosso (Mich.) Speedway in 1946. In addition to the speedway races, the State Fair will feature stock car races for the first time on Thursday, Sept. 1.

MAMMOTH

TO SET BEAVER TRAPPING SEASON

An open beaver season will be held in Iowa this winter for the first time in more than 75 years. The State Conservation Commission will set the dates under authority of a law passed by the 53rd General Assembly. Conservation officers and game biologists are conducting a survey of beaver populations and will make recommendations relative to open dates and localities where these fur-bearers will be trapped during the coming winter. Beaver will be trapped only where a surplus exists. Pre-survey indications are, however, that at least 50 per cent of the state will be open to trapping.

Beaver, extinct in Iowa for many years, began a remarkable comeback in northwest Iowa in 1932. Subsequent live-trapping by the Conservation Commission and restocking throughout the state resulted in this historic fur-bearer's becoming overabundant in many sections of the state. In some areas food supplies have been depleted and the animals have moved out. The present population census will be completed in October, with season and territorial limits being announced sometime after that date.

START EARLY TO TRAIN ANIMALS FOR SHOW RING

Showmanship plays an important part in exhibiting livestock in fairs and other competitions, says W. G. Zmolek, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College.

A good animal that is not well groomed or shown properly may receive a lower placing than it justly deserves. To prevent this from happening, Zmolek suggests starting to train and groom animals several weeks before show time

Taming animals and teaching them to stand well is important for showing all classes of livestock. To show to best advantage, animals should learn to stand with their feet squarely under them.

Beef steers and dairy cattle should be taught to lead Calves should be given soap and water baths between now and show time. Ordinary tar soap or water detergent is good for this purpose. Steers should have their hair broken to curl

As for hogs, Zmolek recommends washing them a week before the show, with daily brushings to tame them for the show ring Trim their feet a week before the show, and clip hair in ears and on tails.

For protection against disease, show rules require that cattle, swine and sheep be accompanied by veterinarians' certificates stating that they are free from disease and meet other requirements.

The name "rubber" comes from the earliest use of the substance, which was to rub out pencil marks.

Don't Blame Any Klemme Pilots For Buzzing Town

That "aerial show" over Klemme late Saturday afternoon was not put on by any Klemme pilot. That "exhibition" of buzzing was entirely uncalled for and the pilot who was flying the yellow biplane with a spraying outfit attached to it is subject to lose his pilot's license and a stiff fine on top of it.

The law clearly states that a pilot flying over a populated area must clear the highest obstruction by at least 1,000 feet. The pilot who was flying over Klemme Saturday was barely clearing the tree tops and there are plenty of witnesses who will swear that he was under 200 feet at times.

KITCHEN ANT CONTROL EASY WITH CHLORDANE

When ants appear in the cupboard or around the kitchen sink, quick treatment is in order but there's no need to worry very much.

Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College entomologist, says ant control is quite simple these days with use of chlordane. Gte a 2 percent oil solution at the drug store.

Apply the solution with a paint brush or spray on kitchen surfaces—the underside of the sink, drain boards, along the back edge of work tables, on window sills and across the door threshhold.

If ants continue to come in, special sanitation practices may be needed. Clean up the wastebaskets and garbage cans, and paint a chlordane ring around bottom or top. It's a good idea to apply chlordane on baseboards too.

Chlordane comes under various trade names, Gunderson says. It is poisonous if you get enough of it, but if applied properly it is not dangerous. Be sure the chemical is never applied to food or cooking utensils.

Probably the small reddish or yellow ants which get into the grease or sirup and sugar are the most annoying, Gunderson says.

TWO EACH

Eleven year old Bonnie Harvey of DeSoto has made medical history recently. Physicians discovered some time ago that she had two stomachs and two sets of digestive organs; the eighth such case in medical history. Now she has only one of each and after three years of illness, is once more hale and hearty.

DIVE BOMBER

Rolly Duncan, Morley farmer, also keeps up a portion of a rural telephone line. While up a pole recently, a bumble-bee started making passes at him. Mr. Duncan climbed down, with the bee in hot pursuit and in fighting it off, Mr. Duncan lost his glasses and broke the spike on one climbing-iron into the calf of his left leg. He is now on crutches.

Time-Honored Conceptions Upset by G. E. Researchers

Teacher deserves a big, fat zero if she says flatly that at a given pressure:

Water always freezes at 32 degrees Fahrenheit;

Mercury always freezes at minus 37.7 degrees;

Tin always freezes at 449.4 degrees;

Gallium always freezes at 85.5 degrees.

General Electric research laboratory scientists in Schenectady, N.Y., cooled all four substances far below their so-called "freezing points" without having them freeze.

They have "super-cooled" water 71 degrees Fahrenheit below its freezing point; mercury, 72 degrees below its freezing point; tin 198 degrees, and gallium, 125 degrees.

Water below its freezing point is often found in nature, particularly in the form of clouds. The water in super-cooled clouds is without nuclei, points where the freezing can begin, so it does not turn to ice. G-E discoveries of methods to produce snow from super-cooled clouds are based on putting nuclei into such clouds, resulting in transformation of water droplets in the cloud to snow crystals.

Research laboratory metallurgists have made "clouds" of supercooled gallium, tin and mercury, by dispersing those metals in their fluid form as minute droplets suspended in oil. Some of the droplets may contain nuclei, but the freezing that begins in them cannot spread to the others through the oil, so that those without nuclei can be reduced in temperature far below their freezing point without freezing.

Consider the Weave First When Buying Rugs, Carpets

If you are in the market for a rug or carpet, there are many points to be considered in making your selection. One of the most important is the weave. There are three types of weave in wool carpeting—Wilton, Velvet, and Axminster.

Florence King, textiles and clothing specialist at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, says all three are pile weaves. The pile makes up the surface of the fabric and is held in place by the lengthwise and crosswise backing yarns. It is these yarns that give the carpet strength and body.

The real difference between the weaves is the way in which the pile is fastened to the backing. In the Wilton, the yarn used for the surface pile is buried in the back of the rug, whenever it is not required for the pattern. In the Velvet and Axminster, all of the yarn is on the surface except for the small amount used in attaching the tufts to the back of the carpet.

In carpets and rugs coming to market at present, there may be little relation between price and weave. High, medium and low priced items can be made in any type of weave. In order to make comparisons, the type of wool yarn and the density of the pile should be considered.

Buying a Refrigerator?

Before you decide on a refrigerator, read the guarantee carefully. You'll want to know exactly what it includes, and you'll want information about the service you can get once you have the equipment installed. Miss Gladys Ward, home management specialist, University of Illinois college of agriculture, says that most manufacturers guarantee that the refrigerator is free from defects in materials and workmanship. Usually the refrigerating system is guaranteed for 5 years and the cabinet and other parts for 1 year. However, it is important to read the guarantee carefully and in its entirety. If you buy from a local dealer, ask him specifically about repairs. Usually he will take care of any repairs covered by the guarantee.

Scientists Check Finishes

When developing coatings for household equipment, the scientists of the finishes and paint industry always give careful consideration to the various conditions and substances that may subsequently affect the finish. In the case of refrigerators, for instance, a coating is checked for adhesion, flexibility, toughness, and resistance to chipping. It is also tested for its imperviousness to food and beverage stains: fruit juices, alcohol, oil, grease, rancid butter, etc. Finishing systems for refrigerators using sulfur dioxide as a refrigerant must have a high sulfur dioxide rating because of the possibility of a unit starting to leak and causing discoloration of the surface. Finishes are also checked for their resistance to heat, humidity, weather and ultraviolet rays.

Franklin and Education

One of Franklin's major interests was the education of youth. He even worked out a curriculum for the "Academy in Philadelphia," the forerunner of the University of Pennsylvania. Throughout his life he helped young men in getting a start as well as young women toward becoming better wives and mothers. His last act in encouraging youth was to will money, together with a plan, to Boston and Philadelphia.

Aussie Males Said to 'Wow' American Girls

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—A graduate of Hunter-college in New York who married a New Zealander but has lived in Australia since 1941 says Australian men are "better bets—as bachelors or husbands" —than American men.

She is Mrs. Violet Colbert, who was born at "and always moved back to" New Rochelle, N. Y.

She said American girls "go" for Australian men.

Mrs. Colbert wrote "In Defense of the Australian Male" under the name of Carol Coleman in the Melbourne national fortnightly, Woman's Day.

The wife of a corset and brassiere factory manager in Melbourne, she said in an interview that she formed her opinion of the United States male in four years spent getting her B.A. degree from Hunter college.

She met her husband aboard the Matson liner Monterey coming to Australia, worked as a dietician in the Melbourne Alfred hospital for six months, then married.

Often "Surprised"

"The Australian male," she wrote, "is often surprised, pleased and flattered by his success abroad. When he gets back home he is full of his glory and fond of telling the lass next door that she doesn't appreciate him the way American girls did.

"Why do American girls 'go' for Australian men? Why does the local product look so good away from home? Let me go right on the record, please, and maintain that it looks all right on its own home ground.

"You Australian girls who are fed on dazzling Hollywood versions of American womanhood and who recently were awed and blinded by American uniforms and wealth, lend an ear to one who speaks straight from the heart. You always take an Australian male any time or place, always.

Why? Because he has no 'line'; because he's not messed up and hedged in by fraternities. Because he doesn't suffer from a surfeit of sophistication.

"Every American male is convinced that his line is unique, devastating and sure-fire, and that it effectively disguises the inner wolf.

Attitude of Conceit

"This bespeaks an attitude of conceit in the America male, and that is why Australian men are better bets—as bachelors or husbands. The American man expects to hunt, or to be hunted, while there is less self-consciousness between the sexes in Australia, and more genuine friendliness.

"I attribute this to three causes: the early age at which boys and girls go out on dates in America; the early age at which American boys are allowed to own or to drive cars, and the accessibility; and fraternities.

"My first 'date' was when I was the ripe age of 14, and my escort a seasoned 16. He had his car, and a junior license. In Australia boys and girls go to parties and dances in groups.

"Girls of 15 in New York talk about their 'steadies,' and refer to other children of similar age as 'going steady.' "

Atomic Time May Take Place Of Current Measure Systems

PHILADELPHIA.—The world is about to face a choice between two kinds of time, because the earth's rate of rotation is slowing.

This is the message of the world's chief timekeeper, Britain's royal astronomer, Sir Harold Spencer Jones, chief of Greenwich time. He is having trouble with the length of the day, he reported to the American philosophical society.

He said that because of the gradual slowing in the earth's rotation time today is not the same as in Babylonian days. Records of Babylonian astronomers show this. Time is slower now because the earth takes longer to reel off 24 hours.

That will go on, Sir Harold said, until it will take 47 of the present days for the earth to make one turn on its axis.

In that day, too, the earth will always present the same face to the moon, because the moon's motion around the earth will be slower. You will have to travel half way around the world then to see the moon if you happen to live on the wrong side.

Sir Harold said that although this long day is too remote to be important now, its beginnings are about at the parting of the ways.

Until now clocks haven't been accurate enough to be bothered. But Sir Harold said the new atomic clock about to be built by the national bureau of standards, Washington, will really differ from the time shown by present Greenwich methods of relying on the earth's rotation. The atomic clocks will be correct. Mother earth will be wrong.

The slowdown is due partly to the drag, that is friction, of tides in shallow seas. The moon raises these tides. It works just like the moon using a rope to hold back the earth.

SET COMBINE TO SAVE GRASS SEED

Proper Adjustment Will Mean Higher Yield, Better Quality Of Seed

Correct combine adjustments are important in getting good grass and legume seed yields. Poor adjustments can mean a loss of as much as one-third of the seed, says E. L. Barger, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

He lists several steps in preparing the combine for harvesting grass and legume seed crops.

First consult the instruction manual to make sure of the combine is starting out with the proper equipment. Special sieves may be needed.

Cylinder Speed, Concaves

Next review the section of the manual on opening the machine on the crop to be harvested. Barger says that sieve opening, cylinder speeds and clearances, as recommended by the manual. can be set before going to the field.

When combining is started, further adjustments probably will be needed. One of the first things to watch for in the actual harvesting operation is "over-threshing." Use just enough cylinder speed and the right concave adjustment to get out the seed and avoid breaking up the straw. Over-threshing breaks up straw, and increases the amount of chaff in the seed. That means more wind is needed to get clean seed, and often the result is that seed is blown over in the straw, Barger points out.

Right Amount Wind

The amount of wind is critical in threshing light seed he says. Allowing some chaff in the seed may be preferrd to clean seed obtained by increased wind and resulting losses in blowing some seed over.

Barger suggests checking combine elevator and pans for leaks that might permit considerable losses of seed. He also advises windrowing the legume or grass crop to obtain uniform moisture conditions necessary for efficient combining.

Censorship Rules Still Holds News From Most of World

WASHINGTON.—Censored!

That word still rules the news for many sections of the world.

The degree of restraint varies: In some countries—the Soviet Union is one—the censor sees all the news and cuts out anything he considers unfavorable.

In others, restrictions and pressures are heavy upon the press and upon persons or organizations that make news. That amounts to a censorship at the source, to a stoppage in the flow of information.

Considerable restraint affects the news flowing from about a fourth of the world's populated area. That figure may seem small, but the effects of censorship are so far reaching that they leave the world in doubt and suspicion.

Correspondents throughout the world have completed another periodic survey of censorship conditions. The survey shows no major barriers have come down in the six months since the last roundup of the situation. In fact, new barriers have been erected—for example, in China, torn by civil war.

The main exponent of censorship remains the Soviet Union. Censorship there is especially important because it helps hide from the rest of the world the conditions that exist in one of the two most powerful countries.

Thus it is impossible for an American reporter in Moscow to send what he considers a balanced report of economic conditions in the Soviet Union. Unless there is an official announcement, he cannot tell you the current ratio of wages to the price of food in Moscow.

The Moscow censor is likely to cut from a correspondent's copy any qualifying phrases the writer has inserted to balance a news story on Russian developments.

The Russian idea of keeping a tight control on the press and radio, making it answerable to the government's orders, has spread to other countries within Moscow's sphere of influence. However, those countries exercise less restraint upon foreign correspondents.

Polar Bear Cub Learns To Swim, But Takes Time

MILWAUKEE. — After six months during which its mother fretted and worried, the newest polar bear cub at the Washington Park zoo here finally had learned how to swim.

The cub got a low opinion of water when it slipped into the icy water accidentally.

Like any sensible person on a cold day, the young polar bear got out of there as fast as possible and went shivering to the warmest part of the cave.

After that, Sultana II, the cub's mother, couldn't get it near the pool. The keepers tried, too, but the cub wanted no more of it.

But suddenly things changed. Without warning, the cub started swimming, and now there's no keeping it out of the water. Nobody knows what happened. The keepers guessed the cub might have slipped in. Or its mother may have feared her child was becoming abnormal and pushed it in.

War on Lake Gnats Will Require Vast Poison Use

CLEAR LAKE, CALIF.—One of the biggest doses of poison ever mixed—nearly 200 billion gallons—was to be used here soon in an attempt to free Cedar Lake, a famous vacation spot, of pestilential gnats.

The whole lake, covering 40,000 acres, was to be poisoned for gnats. A fleet of small boats would dump many tons of TDE, one of the new insecticides, into the lake in a blitz operation.

Federal and county insect control workers said it probably would be the largest undertaking of its kind.

A day or two before the maximum hatch of gnats is to appear, the boats would deposit the poison. Theoretically it would prevent the birth of billions of gnats and perhaps break their chain of reproduction so that they never again will appear in such enormous numbers as they have in the past.

On warm evenings in middle and late summer the gnats become so thick that automobile driving is hazardous. Dead gnats pile up in drifts along some parts of the lake shore. Spiders which use the gnats for food become so numerous that their webs form silvery drapes on trees, poles and buildings.

The gnats hatch in the water and emerge at the rate of 3½ to 7 billion a day. The total hatch one year on about two-thirds of the lake was counted at 712 billion, or 356 tons. A million gnats weigh about one pound.

The evening swarms are periods for egg-laying. The eggs are laid on the surface of the water. In some places they number 10 million to the square foot.

Arthur W. Lindquist, U.S. Agriculture Department entomologist who did much of the research leading up to the poisoning project, said the concentration of poison would not be sufficient to affect the fish in the lake, and would not interfere with activities of vacationists.

TOMATO CANNING SEASON

Tomatoes are quick and easy to can when you know the rules of the canning game. Use top-quality tomatoes to get the best results and to avoid spoilage.

Your garden is undoubtedly announcing that there are bright red, ripe tomatoes waiting to be picked, sorted and canned. For come July — it's tomato canning time again.

But whether or not it's worth the effort depends entirely on your results, Mildred Nelson, extension nutritionist, at Iowa State College, says. Follow the canning rules to the letter, and your results will be satisfying; forget the rules and you may lose both time and money.

Tomatoes may be canned by either the hot or cold pack method There will be little difference in the flavor of tomatoes canned either way. Those canned by the cold pack method hold their color and shape better On the other hand, a hot pack allows more tomatoes to go in each jar.

Hot Pack

Tomatoes do not improve in quality after they have been canned, Miss Nelson reminds. Start with ripe, firm tomatoes with no spoiled spots.

For the hot pack method, she recommends this procedure:

Wash tomatoes, then scald for easier peeling. Cut out the stem end and quarter. Stir as the tomatoes are brought to a rolling boil. Pack them hot and process in water bath for 10 minutes.

Cold Pack

The washing and peeling procedure is the same for the cold pack method. The tomatoes may be packed either quartered or whole. Fill hot, clean jars one at a time with raw tomatoes to fill the spaces. Fill to ½ inch of the top of the jar. You need not add water. Add ½ teaspoon of salt to pint jars; 1 teaspoon to quarts.

Miss Nelson emphasizes that it is important to always remove air bubbles by running a knife around the inside of the jar. For an air-tight seal, make sure the rim of the jar is clean before sealing.

Place jars in a water bath of hot, not boiling, water. Then add boiling water to cover the jar 1 or 2 inches, but do not pour it directly on the jars as they may break. Water bath canners should have a tight lid and a rack so the water can circulate.

Process cold pack tomatoes in pint jars by the water bath method for 35 minutes and in quart jars for 45 minutes.

Whether you are canning by the cold or hot pack method, Miss Nelson points out that as soon as the processing is finished, caps should be completely sealed and side clamps pushed down on glass top jars. Cool jars right side up. Let them stand 2 inches apart on a cloth, folded paper or rack—away from drafts. Test for leaks the following day by carefully tipping the jar.

Tomato Juice

Don't forget about the many other ways tomatoes can be preserved, Miss Nelson says. Tomato juice makes an inexpensive breakfast juice throughout the winter. It's also handy for homemade soups.

Catsup, chili sauce, jam and green tomato pickles are other ways of canning tomatoes for "extras" on your table the rest of the year.

Select only tomatoes with good color for juice, and remove all bad spots. Cut into pieces and simmer until soft. Strain with a fine sieve; add 1 teaspoon of salt to each quart. Reheat to boiling and pour into hot jars at once. Process both pints and quarts for 15 minutes in water bath.

VICTIM

When a dismantled .22 rifle fell over in a car seat and discharged, the bullet struck 16 year old Donald Holder, killing him. The Montana lad was visiting his grandmother at Carroll when the accident hoppened.

FATAL

David Bachman, seven year old Clarence boy, was killed recently when he fell from a tractor he was driving. One wheel passed over the boy's chest and he died a few days later without gaining consciousness.

SIX DAYS

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lund drove from the state of Washington to Mapleton in six days. Not fast time, perhaps, but the Lund conveyance was a 1921 Dodge. The 28 year old car has a top speed of around 35 miles per hour.

40 YEARS

At Sutherland, Dr. T. D. Kas has completed 40 years in his professional career there. He started his practice in 1909.

GRASSHOPPERS WITH WOODEN LEGS!

As we live and learn we run across more problems. One of them goes this way: If it takes too long for a half-witted woodpecker with half enough tail feathers and a rubber bill to make a hole in a fence post, how long will it take a cross-eyed grasshopper with a wooden leg to kick all the seeds out of a dill pickle? Then the other one is this: why is it when a man sees a Brady Cornstalk Pulverizer or a Gehl Forage Harvester that he knows he will need, he sometimes passes it up and then feels bad the rest of the year because he can't get it a little later on when he has his mind made up to buy?

We would like to know the answer to the first one, but the second one really has us spinning.

"What a lot of exciting news there's been lately! Alger Engel marrying all those women! Judy Palmer being found guilty of lying about that typewriter! And the attorney general suing the Yanks to make them break up DiMaggio!"

"Yeah. And ain't that Engel a honey? What'll they do with him?"

"The government may have to put back controls to stop operations like that. He has a good chance of getting free on one of them supreme court five to four elections. Look what the court did in that lonely hearts case . . . they threw the case out because there was no quorum present."

"I wish the high courts would agree on what is the law like the low courts do. When a girl meets a Russian agent in New York and she is carrying a bag loaded with secret papers from government files why should it make any difference whether she worked for the Carnegie library and took a rug from some auto dealer?"

"It's like that trial of the eleven Communists in New York. They all deny they registered in Baltimore as man and wife and say that when they were arrested on that bus they were just getting material for a novel."

The writer of this column does not claim to be the seventh son of a seventh son, but the following chapter from a book by him, "Private Purkey's Private Peace" (the original and much more apt title was "Peace, Wearing Purple Tights"), published a few weeks after World War II ended, revealed distinct powers of prophecy. In the story, Private Purkey and several companions crashed a peace conference in Paris, a feat duplicated in a way by Garry Davis a few weeks ago. And in a chapter headed "Discord in the Dovecotes" ye ed pictured the collapse of peace hopes, the friction between the great powers, etc. thusly:

Months have now elapsed since the peace. And except for the lack of actual gunfire and bloodshed there seemed to be as much fighting going on between the nations as ever. A Hollywood movie czar had in fact put in a bid for pictures of the peace conference thinking he was bidding for fight pictures. Representatives of Russia, France, England and the other nations on our side—brothers all—were standing toe to toe in many arenas, no punches barred, and not even bothering to go to a neutral corner after knockdowns.

There were rumors that Anthony Eden had come out of a council meeting with the "Shiner of the Year," that an American peace conferee had been seen rolling on the floor with a Russian brother, and that Big Three meetings were being opened with demonstrations in jiu-jitsu The spirit of mutual distrust was rampant.

The assorted peace committees and sub-committees were giving evidences of heading for the rocks and d scord, and some of them were less inclined to try dynamite than to upholster the rocks for comfort. Tossing in the heavy seas of conflicting interests in small boats, they seemed at times bent on attempting to cure seasickness by resolution and plug up leaks by amendment.

They were good men, kindly and well meaning, in these postwar world huddles, but they were in one of the hot spots of history, and it made them jumpy.

Seed for the Springtime

MY HEART was heavy with its load of care:
So much to do, so many clamoring needs!
I quit my task and walked out where the air
Was clean and sweet to cull my garden seeds.
Seed for the springtime! Hope was in the sound,
And gladness lifts through every singing word.
I gathered the shaken seed from stem and ground,
And quite distinct were the clear words that I heard:
"I will not leave you comfortless . . ." This pod,
Dark as it seems, will someday blaze with light.
"Except a grain of wheat falls to the ground . . ."
Here is the golden cosmos, here the white:
Seed for the springtime—seed for a new dawn,
That life and love and beauty may go on.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

RUTH HUSSEY may some day get the kind of roles she deserves in pictures; until then she'll probably continue to do her best work on the stage. Her new picture is Paramount's "The Great Gatsby"; her current play, "Goodbye My Fancy," in which she has the role created by Madeleine Carroll. She has moved her family—husband, two small boys and a dog—to New York for its duration. Lunching with three members of the press, she could hardly get in a word until they finished telling her, at length, how wonderful she had been in "State of the Union," and how much they hope that Hollywood will soon do right by her.

RUTH HUSSEY

That same day Betty Field lunched at an adjoining table. She and Miss Hussey hadn't seen each other since they worked together in "Gatsby," in which Miss Field and Alan Ladd star. MacDonald Carey and Barry Sullivan are featured.

Off-stage atmosphere: Two deputies of the Hollywood sheriff's office stood guard for two days over the machine gun used in RKO's "Follow Me Quietly." The law demands that such guns be constantly under the eye of a law enforcement officer while in use in a picture, and that it be in the hands of an officer of the law between takes. No unscheduled shooting, allowed!

Jay Livingston and Ray Evans, who wrote "Buttons and Bows" for Bob Hope's "The Paleface," have done such a good job on "Fancy Pants," written for his "When Men Are Men," that he thought that would be a good title for the picture. However, the other title sticks. Meanwhile Evans and Livingston, authors of "To Each His Own" and other hits, are writing a second song for him.

THE RIGHT LOOK

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

TRACY clawed his way up over the slippery ledge, threw his skis and poles on the ground and sat down panting. Generva laughed merrily.

"That's what city life does to you," she chided. "See? You can't take it any more."

"For a fact I can't," he grinned. "Phew! What a climb! Skis are no good up here. If we're going to the top we'll have to hobnail it up."

"We can quit and go down," she said. Her voice held the barest hint of a taunt. She hated herself for it.

"Quit nothing! Just because I've been away for two years you needn't think you can stump me." Tracy's eyes flicked over the girl's slim, wiry figure. "Boy, you always could take it," he admired. "Ever since we were kids I've had to hump to keep up with you."

The reference to their childhood escapades brought on a flood of regrets.

Two years ago he had left her with a brotherly clap on the back and a firm handclasp. She had almost hated him. He had gone down to the city to become an architect. Then he'd written about Jessica. She was a singer in a night club. He had fallen madly in love with her. His letters had been full of their romance.

Generva had wanted to tell him to stop writing his everlasting prattle about a silly night club singer. Didn't he know that every word was a knife thrust in her heart?

"You know," he said suddenly, "you're growing more lovely every year, Gen. Some day soon a man's coming along and—"

She laughed out loud and scrambled to her feet. "Come on, City Man, we've got to get going if we want to make the top and get back before dark."

Tracy grinned and yanked himself up the first steep ascent. Before he had gone 10 feet he realized that it was a foolhardy business. Without ice picks and ropes climbing was hazardous.

He started ahead again and then stopped. Above him, maybe 30 feet away, he could make out the blurred form of Generva.

The blurred outline stopped. He listened for her reply, but if she called the wind drowned it. For an instant her hobnailed boots were clawing against the ice. Then she came coasting down the incline, reaching frantically for bushes that slid through her hands. Tracy made a lunge. His hand caught at her ski jacket as she whipped past, held, felt it slip through his fingers.

A strangled cry escaped his lips. Horror-stricken, he watched her reach the ledge and flip over its edge, disappear. In a moment he was back on the flat ground looking over the edge, not daring to hope.

Fifty feet below he made out a green patch, like a wisp of cloth caught in the gnarled branches of a hardwood shrub.

IT SEEMED like hours before he found footing against a rock 10 feet from where Generva clung to the hardwood shrub. Directly beneath her was a 200-foot chasm.

Tracy slipped the handle of one pole through the wheel of the other, tightened the strap on his wrist and cast out across the ice. At his second attempt Generva grasped the slim bamboo.

"Take it easy," he called. "You'll have to swing down like a pendulum, then slowly upward."

She nodded and released her grip. The impact of her 112 pounds almost caused him to lose his grip But he held on. The moment she was below him he began pulling upward, hand over hand In a moment their hands touched and she was safe on the rock.

Tracy's hand reached for hers There was a queer light in his eyes. "It just came to me," he said, "what this old world would be like without you, Gen. I mean—" he gulped—"I never realized it before.

Her eyes were misty. "Darling, you don't have to. I've been waiting for you to look like that for 10 years."

PUZZLE NO. 10

Summer Fishing

After warm weather really has set in, the angler who pursues his sport in lakes or man-made reservoirs will find that bluegills and largemouth bass provide most of the action he receives. To catch these fish in mid-summer requires a change in strategy used earlier in the season.

During July the big bluegills move from deep into shallow waters in most of the lakes and reservoirs. At this time they are spawning, and if abundant in the lake, they may cause quite a commotion in the shallow water areas.

If the fly fisherman approaches these areas quietly, preferably in a boat, and drops a small, cork-bodied black bug or wet fly into the middle of the confused fish, strikes will be numerous and it is often easy to take the limit.

To forestall the cries of the not-too-well-informed conservationists, there is little criticism to be attached to taking bluegills during these periods. Conservation experts have discovered that there is little likelihood of the man with a rod and reel depleting fish population to a disastrous extent.

In fact, many such experts declare that it is too little fishing, rather than too much, which makes for small fish and poor fishing generally, particularly in the pan-fishing field. Research has indicated that it is almost impossible to overfish bluegills, therefore it is actually desirable to reduce the number of bluegills by fishing.

In July and August the bluegill fisherman who uses worms and grubs really comes into his own. A casting rod, cane pole, or fly rod equipped with a light line, seven-foot leader of six pounds or less test and a size 4 hook is the ideal rig. A couple of BB shot may be used as sinkers if deeper waters are to be fished. In late afternoon, during the period mentioned, watch for a rise of bluegills to the surface. This often happens in the early mornings. During these "rises" is when the fly rod angler gets in his best licks. The action is fast and furious and the fisherman who uses two or more flies on his leader will often take as many as two fish at a time, with a triple not too infrequent as to be amazing.

Angler Gets Bird

Walter McDonough, famed tuna angler, has had many strange catches in his angling career, but never one with feathers until he caught this "greater shearwater" while fishing for tuna off New Jersey. The bird's identity was established by the New Jersey Audubon society. The bird was hooked when a flock of them went after McDonough's tuna lure.

Use Landing Net

There are no figures at hand at the moment, but it is a logical surmise that not more than 5 per cent of the nation's anglers ever use a landing net. Once an angler has used a landing net, the chances are that it will become a "must" in his equipment. Like most fishing tackle, one can be bought for three dollars or 15 dollars, depending on your choice and bankroll.

Here's why a landing net is important: While your fish is still in the water a large percentage of his weight is supported by the water—but when you grab your line to try to lift him out, line and leader must support his entire weight.

Buying Casting Line

When the average fisherman buys a casting line the chances are that he will get at least an 18-pound test line and, quite often, will insist on a 24 or even a 30-pound test line. There's hardly a fresh-water fish that swims that could break an 18-pound test line in the hands of a fair-skilled angler, and the experienced fisherman finds no difficulty in landing prize-winning heavyweights on lines testing from 9 to 12 pounds.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Drying Out Fresh Plaster

QUESTION: Is there a way of drying out plaster and Keene's cement (in a bathroom) quickly, so that we can paint the walls of new rooms? We were advised to wait three to six months, but we need to hurry this if at all possible.

ANSWER: You can help to some extent with portable stoves, but I would not advise you to apply an oil paint under two months, three to six months will not be necessary. If you wish to cover the walls in a hurry, you can put on a resin-base, water-emulsion paint. This, however, is not intended for either a bathroom or a kitchen, as the surface is not glossy enough. But it may serve your purpose for a couple of months. You then can put on a varnish-size and when dry, apply two coats enamel undercoater and a finish coat of enamel.

Years Catch the Fastest Athlete

By GRANTLAND RICE

Raw Speed

You speak of the speed of Coaltown, or the speed Citation knows.
You speak of the speed of the western gale when the young tornado blows.

But there's only one speed that matters, wherever the simooms rage,
And that is the speed of the flying years that turns youth into age.

What Are Reflexes?

"Just what," writes L. M. P., "are the reflexes you and other sporting experts (thanks) write about? Are they physical or mental? Why should they affect an old-timer more than a younger fellow? Why are they so important? I would think that a veteran would have better reflexes than a younger fellow."

Reflexes are merely team play between mind and muscle. For example years ago, I was talking with Jack Dempsey. Jack was then about through. "I know I'm as strong as I used to be," he said. "I know I can hit as hard. I know I still can take a punch as well. But I'll tell you what makes me sore. I see a punch starting. I know where it's headed for. Six or seven years ago my chin or my head would be out of the way instinctively. But today too many of these punches hit me. Even the sucker punches.

Grantland Rice

"There's another angle," Jack said. "Six or seven years ago when I spotted an opening, my fist swung in that split second. Today when I see an opening it disappears by the time my fist gets in motion. It is either blocked or it has moved out of the way. I don't believe many people know what this means to a fighter. It is only a matter of a split second. Maybe a fifth of a second. But it happens that way as you get older. The message from your eye or your mind travels slower to the muscle. Not much slower. But a fifth of a second means a lot."

There probably never was a better instinctive puncher or fighter than Dempsey when he was at his peak. Or during those days when Dempsey was hungry.

You might think that as you got older the message from eye or mind to muscle would travel faster. It doesn't. As you get older nothing travels faster except the years. The only detail an athlete picks up as he grows older is experience.

When Louis was working, after a fashion, against Joe Walcott, he would stalk the Jersey retreater and catch up with him. Then do nothing. Ten years ago, he would have knocked out Walcott in the first round, for Louis was a fast, hard puncher. But after his 10 or 11 years in the ring, Louis' reflexes were shot. He could see his opening but by the time he had the blow under way, Walcott would be out of reach.

The same thing happens to ballplayers. The hitters can no longer follow the pitch and get the bat working in time. Notice how many veterans are called out on that third strike.

Ted Williams has the best set of reflexes in baseball. Ted can swing a bat on a fifth of a second's notice—when the pitch is only 20 or 30 feet away. You don't believe this is true? Ask Bill Dickey, who caught back of Williams for some years.

On Being Hungry

For several weeks inhabitants of various wayside inns around the world have been telling me this story. It concerns Walter (Good Time Charlie) Friedman, Carnera's original importer.

Good Time Charlie's dream is now to locate a seven-foot chinaman or a seven-foot Zulu—one of those who can high jump eight or nine feet. We questioned him about it recently and discovered Good Time Charlie feels that he has the answer to the next heavyweight champion.

"I'd keep him hungry," Charlie says. "I'd get him and starve him. The trouble with fighters today they are too well fed. They have been able to make a good living outside of the ring. They eat too much.

"Jack Dempsey was hungry when he was at his best. Tunney needed money when he forced himself to train for Dempsey. Joe Louis was hungry when he broke in. Willard was hungry when he started after Jack Johnson. Hungry guys are hard to lick.

"That's what's the matter with white fighters today," Good Time Charlie continued. "They are fat and overfed. So they have no ambition. Most of them can make good money without fighting.

"A well-fed man seems to have nothing to fight for."

FROM THE DESK OF THE EDITOR

NEW SIGNS, NEW OFFICIALS, BUT NOTHING HAPPENS

We have heard a lot of talk, along with the rest of the citizens of Klemme, about the new Mayor and Council They put up new signs on Main Street at the two busy corners to stop No-U-Turns. Yes, the signs are up and that's all The local drivers are pretty good about the No-U-Turns, although some turn the corner onto a side street, then make a U-turn and come back onto the main street. That's also against the law, reckless driving We have seen quite a few out-of-town drivers making U-turns; why not fine them and build up some money from the out-of-town boys?

Also we have seen our officials standing on Main street open nights, Wedensday and Saturday, watching the traffic. Yes, they watched the under-aged drivers go right by We have heard a good deal of talk about the young drivers about town. The parents certainly have their necks out for a big fine.

And it isn't just the young drivers breaking the rules. We have seen a number of the older drivers cruise thru stop signs, travel down the main street about 35 mph or head out of town doing 40 mph by the railroad tracks.

It's up to the town to do something about the above. Let's not wait until some small child has been killed. The Town Council and the Mayor should enforce the laws . . . as they said they were going to do in that advertisement they ran in The Klemme Times a few weeks ago!

Let's get some action, and quick.

SOW RYE SOON FOR LATE FALL OR SPRING PASTURE

Rye sown in early autumn may be used for a considerable amount of late fall and early spring grazing.

Seeder at the rate of 6 to 8 pecks per acre, the small grain pasture crop may be grazed in October and November if ordinary weather conditions prevail. It also makes the earliest spring pasture in Iowa and can be counted on for grazing when bluegrass and other crops are still too small to be used

Besides cutting down grain costs by providing good grazing over a longer period for dairy cows and beef cattle, rye makes an excellent pasture crop for early pigs and brood sows in the spring, says Ed Dyas, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

He points out that rye also makes a good winter cover for cultivated land Following spring grazing. the rye may be plowed under to make way for corn or sudan, or it can be held over for a late summer seeding of alfalfa or bromegrass.

OVER THREE MILES OF UNDERGROUND CABLE BEING LAID HERE

New Switchboard To Handle Over Four Times More Telephones

The Central Iowa Telephone Company has a large crew of workmen in Klemme constructing an entire new telephone system in Klemme, that when completed will be one of the very best in the State. Between 12 and 15 men are working here every day, laying Orangeburg conduit tubes, installing manholes, terminals and other work.

Company officials roughly estimate that about $25,000 will be spent on the telephone system in Klemme this year A total of nearly 19,000 feet of conduit and armored telephone cable is being laid; 5large manholes and one small manhole are being built; there will be 51 new terminals installed in place of the 17 now in service.

The Company is also moving down town and have leased the Johnson building just west of The Times Office The building is being remodeled for the new exchange office The old switchboard now being used with a capacity of 150 number pairs, will be replaced with a modern 480 number pair switchboard of the latest type.

Practically all of the pole system and overhead wires will be done away with and where it is necessary to run overhead wires, these will be carried through alleys as far as possible.

The work of rebuilding and installing will take a couple of months and it will probably be late fall before the new system can be switched over. Manager Bert Jones expects to make the switch-over without any interruption in the service. The old system will be retained up to the last minute as telephones will be wired in from the old to the new circuit. In other words each telephone in town will be on two circuits before the change-over is made

Engineers have been working out plans for the new telephone system here for the past year, and Klemme will have the most modern system of any town in the state of Iowa when the job is finally completed.

Cards, Dodgers Rule the Roost

By GRANTLAND RICE

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE is a baseball circuit where practically all the pennant playing lately has been by the Cardinals and the Dodgers.

Once in a rare while some interloper, such as the Braves of 1948, breaks into the picture. But for the greater part of the time it is the Cardinals and the Dodgers rolling together down the stretch.

Once they get into the world series the Cardinals are a far different team. The Cards have won a flock of such postseason pastorals while the Dodgers have yet to come safely through. But they can stir up a lot of dust trying.

Grantland Rice

In the last eight years only the Cubs and Braves have each slipped through once, probably when the Cardinals and Dodgers were not looking. Now we get the same story in the steamy year of 1949. The Braves and Phillies may be rated a chance, but the bet is that either Dodgers or Cardinals will take over the August and September stretch.

Last spring it looked as if the National League would have much the better race. Now with the Athletics and the Red Sox still busy, with Cleveland's Indians beginning to act in a hostile manner again, the A.L. race may be much the better show.

It is about time the other six clubs in the National picked up more steam. The crash of the Pirates was a heavy disappointment, as much of a jolt as the downfall of the Red Sox was up through July Fourth. The main idea seems to be that anything can still happen in baseball.

"Don't Play Out A Nine"

Apparently a number of golfers are getting much slower than they were some time ago.

Just as we were trying to work up a message, the following arrived from F.A.W., an eminent golfer and also a hot rooter for Michigan's football team against all comers.

This seems to cover the field completely—

"People love golf and I love people, and so today's remarks are addressed to the genial host of high handicap golfers. God bless 'em; without them there would be no lush green fairways, bordered with sky blue lakes and stately pine trees; no healthful and beautiful outdoors brought to your doorstep. They are the majority.

"Frequently they, or rather you, play with low handicappers, business associates and other friends, and suffer mental anguish because you know they would prefer playing with better golfers. You are definitely right, but for an entirely different reason than you think. Seventy and low 80 shooters do not mind if you carve out a neat 105, but when you bother their game by not observing the simplest rules, they feel like crowning you with a niblick—and you do not always observe them.

"A good golfer only wants to be permitted to play his own game, undisturbed. Here are a few suggestions:

(1). "Do not delay the game. This is the most common fault, and this alone is enough to ruin the concentration of other members of your foursome.
  (a) "Be in a position to play when it comes your turn.
  (b) "Do not take a lot of practice strokes; preferably none.
  (c) "Do not painstakingly play out a nine or other high score when you are completely out of the contest. Pick up. Others want to get on with the game.
  (d) "Do not ask everyone in your foursome what club to use.

(2). "Be quiet, motionless and look at the player addressing the ball until he has played.

(3). "Many duffers cuss out their own mistakes, loud, long and continuously. Don't do it. Others are trying to concentrate on their own game."

Joe Surprises

There have been a flock of great ballplayers around New York and Brooklyn in the last two days. Their tongues, as usual, were busy. The first topic was Joe DiMaggio and his spectacular return to his best form with no chance to get in top shape. It seems he did.

Popular Shantung

A slim, cool dress in slate-blue shantung is ideal for sweltering days when you want to look neat and trim. Silver and blue buttons, starting at the large neckline bow march three quarters of the way down the front which is also highlighted with skirt interest. The skirt is slim in the back.

Fireplace, bookshelves and radios should be approached easily without your having to move chairs or tables to get to them.

Large pieces are always placed parallel to the walls so they do not violate the basic lines of the room. Upholstered chairs may be placed at angles to add interest while straight-backed chairs look well placed against walls.

Try giving plenty of open space between various groups within the room for a pleasing, uncluttered effect. If a picture belongs to a certain grouping, hang it low enough so that it becomes a part of its own group, rather than a wall decoration in its own right.

Tall pieces are usually placed centered against a wall to add balance to the room and still give it plenty of space.

Arrange Furniture Group For Certain Activities

Furniture group, the phrase we meet so often in interior decoration, refers to arrangements that are part of a room. A conversational group is planned to take in several people who just like to relax and talk readily. A musical group may be placed around the piano or radio to make these activities pleasing.

Groups such as this are logical and useful arrangements, and thus contribute to the utility and comfort of a home.

Be Smart!

Easiest way to smart fashion and the interest that variety gives to the wardrobe is the separate blouse! Particularly dressy blouses are ideal for all sorts of informal afternoon and casual evening occasions. More and more detailing is creeping into the blouse picture especially on sheers, including nets and chiffons as well as the other fragile materials. Metallic yarns woven into sheers are another popular and effective means of achieving richness in ornamentation. Choose the low-cut neck or plunging neckline for dancing, and the more classical but just as feminine blouse for contrast for other occasions.

Grandparents Devoted Sitters

"MY MARRIED life has had but one real trial in it," writes a St. Louis woman who signs "Molly-O." "That is, the presence of my husband's mother in the house, half the year. She died last year. Before that, she went to keep house for a widower son in Florida every winter, came to us in May and did not leave until October.

"Gann was a sweet woman, lovely with my children, and on two occasions took a small boy south with her for the entire winter. We never quarrelled, but at the same time I never forgot what I considered the injustice of my husband's expecting me to have another woman in my household continually. She was an excellent housekeeper and cook, and never intruded in any way on our parties or trips, but I am of the school that believes firmly that old people don't belong in young homes.

"That brings me to today's problem. My oldest daughter is a sweet, easy-going, great big girl, who is marrying a man in every way suited to her; he owns a fine old suburban house, inherited from his father, and he and Carolyn are already talking of the family they mean to raise The problem is his mother and father, who have been living in the old house, Harold charging them with neither rent nor taxes, and in fact paying a nominal board. They propose to stay, Harold wants them to stay, and to my distress Carolyn appears perfectly satisfied with the proposed arrangement.

Threat to Marriage

"Having suffered in-law troubles most of my married life, I feel justified in objecting strenuously to this plan. I don't think Carolyn, at 21, is in a position to forsee what it means. To have two old persons at the breakfast-table, at the lunch-table and at the dinner-table, seems to me as real a threat to married life as any that could be imagined. Carolyn's father is as easily imposed-upon as she is, and says to let time show whether it will work or not. I say, tell them now, that the house is Harold's and that he wants it, and oblige them to make some other arrangement, which they could, on modest terms, afford.

"I know that in one of your articles," this agitated letter ends, "you say that families are better apart. Your word will have influence with Carolyn and with her father. Will you advise her?"

Unfortunately, "Molly-O," I am very much with Carolyn and Harold in this particular case. Here is an amiable, unexacting girl marrying an affectionate and easy-going man, with the prospect of moving in with a loving couple of elders who sound pleasantly comfortable housemates, too.

You seem to be the disagreeable element in all this, Mollie-O. You 'never forgot the injustice' of a situation that must have been a real advantage to you, most of the time. Today's frantic young parents, searching for reliable sitters, and paying these sitters more for an evening than we used to pay a good maid for a week, would be extremely glad of the services of a "Gann," who not only expects no pay at all, but is as devoted to the babies as their parents are. Your sensible girl wants a family; perhaps she is smart enough to know that Gran and Gramp are all ready-made to help her with that family.

Live and Let Live

It seems to me that the rising generation in America needs one lesson, it is to live and let live. We raise our children to feel that everything must be arranged in the most pleasant and least responsible way possible. And the minute things go wrong—as of course they will—there is the ready divorce court, and a chance to plunge into fresh mistakes and selfishnesses.

Some weeks ago, I went to the wedding of an old friend's only daughter. The girl has, and will have, considerable wealth, and her farsighted father showed me the divorce settlement, signed and sealed before the wedding.

In the papers, at about that time, was the story of a girl divorcing her husband because, after three years of happy matrimony, spent in Fifth Avenue shops, night-clubs and beauty-parlors, she found herself headed for motherhood, and in a fury went off to Reno, where she is now.

Old Dice Sign Poses Problem

Texas Community Studies a 'Slogan'

DECATUR, Tex.—The city fathers of this community of 4,200 residents have a problem.

Dice players the world over have been crying "Eighter from Decatur, the county seat of Wise," for years.

This is Decatur, the county seat of Wise, and the local city council would like to tell the world about it.

But there is a problem. The aldermen aren't quite sure whether they want to put their official approval on the fame of this north Texas town.

The problem hinges on a faded signboard which has hung for years near the railroad station here. The sign has proclaimed, to one and all:

"Eighter from Decatur, the county seat of Wise"

According to Mayor Syl Hardwick, the city fathers are faced with deciding what to do about the sign.

For years, tourists passing by the sign have had their pictures taken—in crap-shooting poses. This sort of "tomfoolery" doesn't please some of the residents of Decatur.

But some residents are pleased. These include filling station and restaurant owners who say the faded sign and its well-known slogan means more business from travellers who might not otherwise tarry.

Mayor Hardwick favors a motion "that a new and bigger 'Eighter from Decatur' sign be erected." He promises to "put it where all can see it—if the council approves."

According to Cliff D. Cates, author of "The Pioneer History of Wise County," the "Eighter from Decatur" slogan is attributable to this Texas community on the basis of historical facts.

It seems Decatur became famous among dice players because of a Negro girl in Decatur who was named Ada.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

SELDOM in the history of any legislative program has the leadership been thrown into such a dizzy dither of uncertainty and confusion as is now apparent in the beleaguered farm organizations heading up the agricultural industry as a result of the much-discussed and controversial Brannan agricultural program.

Three leading farm organizations oppose the plan; one is for it. But none are agreed on a program to take its place. Out of the maze of perplexity has come a dozen farm bills—the Pace bill, the Cooley bill, the Gore bill, the Thomas bill and many others until one farm leader remarked—"Everybody wants to get into the act."

The Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange are in disagreement and are backing different proposals, and both get back to the defensive statement that "the farmers don't want the Brannan plan." The National Farmers Union favors the Brannan plan. At explosive hearings before both senate and house committees, the farm leadership marshalled its forces bringing into Washington leaders from throughout the country to testify against the Brannan plan. Red-hot statements have been issued.

The Farm Bureau, usually even-tempered and conservative, issued a release called "Washington Ringside," questioning the sincerity, the motives, and insofar as this reporter can judge, even the veracity of the secretary of agriculture. And in so doing the Farm Bureau went back to the 1948 campaign issue of grain storage, taken away from the CCC by the 80th congress. This congress has written into the law again the authority of CCC to again provide storage for commodity credit grain on loan or purchase.

One thing is certain the whole question of an agricultural program will be a major issue in the 1950 campaign and the Farm Bureau was the first to take off the gloves and make its fight against Secretary Brannan and President Truman, who also called for enactment of the Brannan plan in his message to congress, on a strictly political basis.

Another thing is certain. The Hope-Aiken law, with its so-called flexible provision of 60 to 90 per cent of parity, either will be replaced by another law, or will be so amended as to be unrecognizable So blistering has been the heat turned on the Aiken law that even Senator Aiken himself now says that anything called for in the Brannan plan can be done under his law and easier, too . . . without going before congress for an annual appropriation for direct subsidy payments to farmers.

Senator Aiken now also denies that price support under his law was ever intended to be operated on a sliding scale, that prices should be supported at 90 per cent of parity the same as now; that the sliding scale was put in merely to protect the farmer against supports being dropped by administrative action below a certain point.

The National Council of Farm Cooperatives after issuing a statement that it generally was opposed to direct subsidies as proposed by the Brannan plan, has subsided somewhat and is riding out the storm, mainly for the reason that some cooperatives want the provisions of the Brannan plan.

Mr. Allan Kline, president of the Farm Bureau federation, who is an Iowa Republican, and was mentioned prominently during the last presidential campaign as a probable choice of Gov. Dewey for secretary of agriculture, has been the most outspoken opponent of the Brannan plan, and Mr. Brannan levelled some rather caustic criticism at Mr. Kline during Brannan's appearance before a senate agriculture committee hearing. The Farm Bureau declares that under the Brannan proposal, "the only hope for a fair income (for farmers) would depend on government hand-outs from annual appropriations by congress." That refers of course to the direct subsidy of compensatory payments provided for under the Brannan proposal and the fact these payments would come from the federal treasury. The question naturally arises as to whether anyone is naive enough to believe that the present subsidy of price support payments comes from any place except the federal treasury. Another question naturally arises. If the farmers themselves don't want the Brannan plan, why all the shooting?

The Pace bill, introduced by Congressman Stephen Pace of Georgia, virtually kills the 1948 agricultural act (Hope-Aiken law) and contains the important features of the Brannan plan.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: The plaster in our front room is very uneven in places, and in others there are real humps and ridges. Are there any tools we could get to level down the humps and ridges?

ANSWER: Wrap coarse sandpaper around a block of wood and rub down the rough places with it. If the walls are painted, they will have to be refinished after this going-over, of course. A coarse abrasive stone can be used in place of the sandpaper.

A man checked his suitcase at a depot parcel room, receiving for it a numbered claim ticket. He didn't bother to read the ticket—and so didn't see the clause that, in case of loss, the check room company was not liable for more than $10 Sure enough, the suitcase vanished. When the man sued for $200—the value of the contents—the company pointed to the $10 limitation clause on the ticket. But the court ruled that the man was entitled to full reimbursement for his loss.

Is it "Trespassing" To Visit Someone Without an Invitation?

A farmer's son decided to pay a visit to a neighboring farmer. As the youth pushed his way through a field of tall corn, the neighbor heard him coming—but couldn't see him. Deciding the intruder was a fox, the neighbor hastily grabbed a shotgun and fired — hitting the youth in the leg. Later sued for damages, the neighbor insisted that the young man was an uninvited "trespasser" and therefore had no kick coming. However, the court disagreed and awarded damages to the injured youth. The judge said he was not a trespasser "because there exists among farm folk, as well as among others, an implied invitation to visit each other."

RELEASING LIMITED SUPPLY OF SHELBY OATS

A limited supply of Shelby oats is being released by the Committee for Agricultural Development for increase in 1950, Paul Henderson, county extension director, was informed this week by J. L. Robinson, agronomist at Iowa State College.

Shelby is a new, high-yielding white oat variety developed from a cross of Anthony X Bond made in 1932. Shelby is relatively stiff strawed, uniform in growth and smut and rust resistant. It has a large kernel, thin hull, and excels Clinton in test weight per bushel. However, Shelby grows about two inches taller and is more susceptable to lodging than Clinton.

To receive the Shelby oats a grower must be nominated by the County Seed Distribution Comm. set up under the direction of County Extension Director, Paul Henderson.

Allotments to each county will be made on the basis of their respective acreages of oats harvested in 1948. In case the supply should be less than originally planned, the allotments will be reduced accordingly. No seed will be supplied to growers outside of Iowa. The seed produced will be under contract and must be disposed of in the manner as provided in the agreement.

Any growers interested in receiving an allotment of the new variety should contact Henderson at the County Extension office for further information.

With Your Encouragement—

CHILDREN ENJOY EATING

Letting children help in the kitchen is often a good way to interest them in food. Small servings in bite-sizes and as little confusion as possible are other ways to encourage children to eat.

Mealtime is often a hectic hour in some families, because "Susie" or "Johnny" just won't eat. Father threatens, Mother pleads, and Susie or Johnny ends up crying or belligerently refusing his meal with a decisive "no".

A lot of the trouble begins right there with the coaxing and pleading, Mrs. Isaac Peters, nutritionist in the Department of Child Development at Iowa State College, explains.

Attitude of Family

Few children will eat when they're told to "Eat those potatoes now or you'll sit there until you do." It's much more effective to encourage a child to eat by casually remarking, "My these carrots are good today," Mrs. Peters points out.

She says that the attitude of the parents and other members of the family has a marked effect on the way a child eats Children are bound to refuse certain foods if the rest of the family are constantly voicing their dislikes.

The kind of food, the way it is served and the amount of confusion at the meal table are other things that need to be considered when trying to get children to eat.

Small Servings

Serve "finger foods" often Mrs. Peters advises. Most children before they are 5 years old like to use their fingers rather than spoons and forks. They enjoy having crisp lettuce, carrot sticks, watermelon, cantaloupe and pineapple wedges and orange sections to eat with their fingers.

Give children small portions of food. One or two tablespoons of each kind of food is usually plenty. Small servings give children a feeling of satisfaction, for they've accomplished something by cleaning up their plates. They'll be more likely to ask for "seconds." Small servings also make it possible to serve a greater variety.

Cut vegetables, fruits, meat and other foods into small bite-size pieces that children can handle—they eat more when it's easier.

Good food preparation is another key to getting children to eat, Mrs. Peters says. Colorful food appeal to children just as they do to adults. Like adults, children object to vegetable juices when they run into other foods on the table. Gummy cereals, lumpy puddings and sticky rice bring frequent "no's" from children.

Eliminate Confusion

Too much confusion at the table distracts a child. He's so busy listening to everyone talking at once or watching the family jump up and down from the table that he forgets to eat.

Mrs. Peters points out that it's important for adults to remember that children can't always be neat when they're eating. So scolding them for spiling food isn't going to solve any problems. Serve meals where it won't matter if food is spilled. If possible, give the children dishes that won't break.

Use salt and other seasonings sparingly. The child's experiences with food are new and he should first become interested in the natural flavor of the foods. That's also true of milk, Mrs. Peters says. Save fancy milk beverages for special occasions.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa's a "Fair" State

It's getting toward State Fair time. Grace and the kids always get a great kick out of Iowa's Big Show and so do I.

But really, the greatest thing about the fair is the people — a real picture of democracy. Joe likes the races, Mary the garden show, while Ed heads for the stock barns. Each takes his pick.

We Iowans value our right to pick and choose — whether it be fair attractions, the movies, or our favorite beverage.

For example, for a cool drink on a hot afternoon, there's nothing more refreshing to me than a temperate glass of beer or ale. It's the beverage of moderation for thousands of Iowans. Yet I have many good friends who boost equally for the advantages of ice tea, or coffee, or maybe lemonade. The important thing is that each has the right to his preference. That's Iowa — that's practical Democracy.

Yes, Iowa is a "Fair" State, in more ways than one.

YOU SAVE COMMISSIONS:

IF YOU BUY FELCO MINERAL

Every hog raiser should buy mineral but we know that many have wasted a lot of money buying from agents and others with no interest except large sales and profits. Some have learned their lesson and either have quit feeding minerals they should feed farmers from feeding FELCO, or have tried to use home made mixtures that are not complete.

FELCO FEEDS are made by local cooperatives according to the experience of the Station at Ames and they are made by us from the best ingredents we can buy.

Felco Mineral is not a medicine and will not cure anything—it will keep the animal in condition and furnish the things needed for its growth and good health, we think that is all that is needed.

HOGS WILL NOT EAT MUCH FELCO MINERAL—Agents will find fault with that and try to discourage FELCO MINERALS like claiming that they do not eat enough of it. They will eat all they need and if they are well and have always had a supply of mineral, they will eat so little that you can hardly miss it. A very small amount is needed, but that amount is needed, every day and you cannot get good growth without it.

If you want them to eat more—like they do of the high priced mineral you bought from agents, just mix a quarter's worth of sugar with a bag of FELCO and they will eat it just like it cost eight dollars, and you will be several dollars ahead.

If you do that, you better add some salts, like they do, to help move out the excess calcium you have coaxed them to eat or you will have trouble.

We are interested in selling only what is needed, at low cost. If your hogs are sick we advise you to get a veterinarian but when they are well we do not dose them with medicine.

TEST SOIL AND ORDER LIME

Late summer is a good time to test soil and order lime for bean land that is to be seeded down next spring, according to Paul Henderson, county extension director.

Lime needs to be applied at least six months before alfalfa or sweet clover is to be sown, and soil tests takes the guessing out of how much lime to apply. Some fields in Hancock County need lime to produce the best crops of alfalfa or sweet clover, and of course some of our soils are high lime or (alfaline.)

In addition to correcting soil acidity, lime furnishes calcium for plants, increases the available phosphorus and other plant foods, favors the growth of soil organisms, increases the returns from manure and fertilizers and makes inoculation of legumes more effective.

Lime has been lost from Iowa soil by cropping, by leaching and by erosion. Henderson estimates that about 60 million tons of limestone will be needed each year to maintain it. After soil has been well limed, it needs about 1½ to 2 tons of lime per acre every 10 years for maintenance, he explains.

BUTCHERED

George Lichtsinn, of near Nora Springs, got unexpected and unwanted help with his butchering chores recently. Thieves visited his farm and butchered a 75-pound spring pig, leaving only the head and the hide.

STEWED CHICKEN BASIS FOR VARIETY OF MENUS

Stewing chicken is a good choice for summertime meals in spite of the long cooking it calls for.

Jewel Graham, Iowa State College nutritionist, points out that heat must be kept low to make the older birds tender. Cook the chicken at simmering, she says, and you won't have to worry much about a heated kitchen. Do the cooking in the cool of the morning if you can.

Of course, if you cook the bird in a pressure saucepan or pressure canner, it's possible to reduce the time to minutes, Miss Graham goes on. But otherwise plan on 3 to 4 hours to cook a 5-pound stewer.

Stewing hens should cook in water or steam to soften the connective tissue. For juiciness and best flavor cool the meat in its own juice.

Place it in the coolest possible spot to cool. Chicken and chicken broth spoil easily and quickly in warm temperatures. Be sure the cooled meat and any chicken leftovers are promptly refrigerated.

Stewed chicken can come to the table in any number of tempting cold dishes. Chicken sandwiches, pressed chicken and plain sliced chicken are welcome additons to any luncheon plate. To make chicken salad, Miss Graham suggests cutting the cooked chicken into small pieces, combining with thick salad dressing and allowing to stand for several hours in the refrigerator. Then, just before serving add celery, more salad dressing if needed, and seasoning to taste.

Hot dish suggestions include curried chicken in a rice ring for "company" occasions, chicken a la king and hot chicken sandwiches.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wessels and family of near Meservey, and Mrs. Pauline Wessels of Klemme have returned from a week's visit with the latter's sister, Mr. and Mrs Joe Ptacek near Thief River Falls, Minn.

Mrs. Wessels says there has been no harvesting done there because of too much rain and in some places hail ruined crops and gardens, while in some sections army worms destroyed entire crops.

Atom Blast 50 Miles Away Makes Cattle Turn White

An atomic bombing on test grounds in New Mexico caused the hair of cattle 50 miles away to turn white, army veterinarians have disclosed.

The cloud created by the bomb burst drifted more than 50 miles from the point of explosion, and deadly radioactive particles settled out of the moving cloud onto a pasturing herd of Hereford cattle.

Such radioactive material is capable of producing many strange, if not crippling or fatal changes in the body. In this case, the effect was to turn the hair white. Exposure of the cattle was not anticipated in planning the bomb test.

Colonel W. O. Kester and Major E. B. Miller of the army veterinary corps, writing in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical association, said that the atom bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki during the war did not, as far as anyone knows, play any such long-range pranks, because the bombs exploded high above the ground and the lethal radioactive rays were dispersed before they had a chance to travel a great distance.

In New Mexico, however, the test bomb was detonated close to the ground, with the result that it kicked up a lot of desert dust and made the dust radioactive. Then, the dust-containing bomb cloud moved over a wide area and spread contamination.

"X" Disease Is not Mange, Cattle Owners Are Warned

A new and spreading malady called X disease makes cattle look mangy, though they actually may not have mange. A warning that owners should be careful not to confuse these two conditions is the subject of a special bulletin from the American Veterinary Medical association.

X disease, also called hyperkeratosis, causes the skin of cattle to become thickened, scaly and impoverished, and results in loss of hair, just as mange does. But the X malady does other things to its victims that mange does not do, and it is these other things that give the important clue.

Common symptoms of hyperkeratosis, besides the skin condition referred to, are a watery discharge from the eyes and nose, diarrhea, half-starved and stupid appearance, marked loss of appetite, lesions in the mouth and digestive tract and sometimes on outer parts of the body, and progressive emaciation often leading to death. Affected cows produce almost no milk, and their calves may be born dead or die soon after birth. Young cattle are likely to be affected acutely and die a few weeks after initial symptoms appear. The most extensive losses have been reported in beef herds, but there is no reason to believe that dairy cattle are not equally susceptible.

Uses of Oil Are Myriad

Today, because of constant research and technological progress, the uses of oil are so many it is almost impossible to count them. The petroleum industry has sped the mechanization of farm and city and probably nothing in all history has contributed more to the mobility of mankind. It was also a major factor in the winning of two world wars. From its humble beginnings 90 years ago at Titusville, Pa., the oil business has grown from a handful of pioneers to a thriving industry of 34,000 competing companies employing more than two million persons, according to the American Petroleum institute. It now supplies two-thirds of the world's oil needs.

Coal and Electricity

Since Thomas A. Edison invented the incandescent lamp sixty years ago, coal has been the basic fuel for manufacturing electricity. Even if all of the potentialities for hydroelectric generation were developed in this country, it is calculated that hydroelectric power could not supply more than 20 per cent of the present total production of energy. In 1920, the electric utilities consumed 6 per cent of the bituminous coal produced in the United States; and by 1948 this market had swollen to about 18 per cent, or 96,000,000 tons. As the electric power and light industry urgently expands its capacity, it looks like 105,000,000 tons will be required during 1949, with the steady uptrend continuing.

The "Lowly Cabbage"

Cabbage is low on the calorie side but rich in minerals and vitamins. Raw cabbage is a good source of vitamin C, and it contains iron, phosphorus, and calcium. Green cabbage also has a considerable amount of vitamin A. A goodly share of the vitamin C can be retained in cooked cabbage, provided the cooking is done properly. It should be started in boiling water and cooked as quickly as possible, and only until barely tender. Do not overcook cabbage, and serve it as soon as it is cooked. There are scores of ways to serve cabbage—alone or in combination. Hot, savory slaw, panned cabbage, and cabbage wedges cooked in meat broth are all favorites.

"CASUAL" EFFECT FOR— FALL FASHIONS

It's nearly time for those crisp fall days, and what's better to be wearing than a striking tweed coat with velvet accents over a wool jersey dress—both high fashion for fall of 1949.

Let's take a look at the fall fashions. The most outstanding feature will be that "causal" effect.

There'll be much emphasis on texture and small details because the designs are simple and basic, Lucille Rea, clothing specialist at Iowa State College, explains.

Tweeds, wool jersey, corduroy and velveteen are back looking new and different in a variety of textures. Tweeds, in many novelty weaves, will appear on clothing racks in dress, suit and coat weights. Adding something new to long-familiar dress lines will be the assortment of textures found in wool jerseys and wool jerseys mixed with tweeds.

And all of these most popular a variety of contrasting texturres.

Buttons will figure prominently and pockets will be everywhere—big ones--both above and below the waistline There will be strong emphasis on collar and cuff details, also Velvet and corduroy collars and cuffs will provide smooth contrast to the many textured fabrics.

Everywhere the fashion world looks, whether it's at blouses, dresses, coats or suits, it will see blousing above the waistline Dolman sleeves are staging a big comeback, too

Versatile Wardrobe

One of the most important features of this fall's fashions will be their versatility, Miss Rea says. Nearly all garments are planned to form a wardrobe that's full of possibilities for interchanging.

Patterned jackets will be worn with solid skirts, as separates over dresses or wherever they're needed to fill out the wardrobe A carry-over from this summer's favorites is the waist-length or shorter jacket over sleeveless dresses.

Playing a major role in the casual wear are two and three-piece outfits. Matching and companion wool jersey blouses and skirts team up to look like one-piece dresses. Skirts and blouses will be matched with weskits, jerkins and vests.

Dresses, too, will go casual in feather-weight tweedy textures and sheer worsted woolens. Fine pleating, sometimes from the shoulder down, will be the interesting note in many a casual jersey or rayon crepe. Watch also for touches of sweater-like ribbing.

Big fashion news this fall is the jersey blouse Like most blouses this season, jerseys will be plain to show off skirt details such as buttons across the hipline or down the front or back, thin belts and great big pockets. Many other jersey blouses will be hip-fitted over-blouses for pleated skirts.

Jumper Dress

The jumper-style dress is back again—this time with a wide oval neckline or one that opens to the waistline with a shawl collar. Perfect mates are wool jersey blouses.

Suit jacket length for the 1949 season is to the hip-bone. Like suits, most coats will be widely seen in tweeds, often with velvet accents, and broadcloth. Belts will be the focal point of interest on both coats and suits whether the belts are all around, three-quarters or just in back.

Full outskirts over very slim dresses are big news in the dressy lines. Most of these full overskirts are removable. Already famous in the fashion world are the floating panels and extra fullness at the back and sides of slim, sleek dresses.

CAN APPLY COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER DURING FALL

Commercial fertilizers can sometimes be applied in the fall to good advantage, according ti H. B. Cheney, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

While generally the most efficient returns are obtained from fertilizer when applied close to the time the plant makes use of it, which means in the spring, he says that fall applications give good results on winter wheat, for brome-seed production and in some instances on old alfalfa stands and on new seedings.

On ground to be seeded to winter wheat, Cheney recommends phosphate or in some cases nitrogen-phosphate or phosphate-potash applied at the time of seeding. Many soils, particularly in south-central and southeast Iowa, show good response to 200 to 300 pounds of 0-20-0 applied at wheat seeding time Where nitrogen and phosphorus are deficient, he recommends 6-24-0. If the soil is low in available nitrogen, additional nitrogen fertilizer should be applied in the spring. Soil tests will help determine the need for phosphate and potash.

Top-dress new seedings this fall only if no phosphate was applied last spring at seeding time, and if soil tests show a deficiency. However, Cheney says that better results are obtained when fertilizer is applied at planting time.

On many alfalfa fields, snort alfalfa is due to a deficiency of available phosphorus, Cheney says. Growth may be poor where phosphate fertilizer was not applied at seeding time or where the stand is 2 or more years old. For such conditions, Cheney recommends top-dressing 300 pounds of 0-20-0 or 135 pounds of 0-45-0 per acre. However, me cautions that over much of the state, short or yellow alfalfa may be caused by leafhoppers.

For bromegrass seed production, nitrogen can be applied to advantage very late in the fall, just before the ground freezes. Early fall applications usually will not give maximum benefits, however. From 100 to 200 lbs. of ammonium nitrate per acre is suggested.

TIME TO CLEAN CEPTIC TANK EVERY 3-5 YEARS

Know when to clean the septic tank and know the man who is cleaning it, advises Harold Beaty, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

Farm septic tanks have recently been reported as a source of trouble for farmers who are not mindful of the maintenance needs and reasonable costs required to keep a tank in good working order.

Federal health authorities have found that septic tanks need to be cleaned at intervals of from 3 to 5 years. When that isn't done sludge fills up the tank and it ceases to function properly.

Beaty reports that commercial preparations, yeasts and other chemicals are no substitute for the actual phsical cleaning. He says that so far, salesmen's claims on the effectiveness of chemical products as a means of cleaning septic tanks have no practical or scientific basis.

Another disappointing experience that has occurred all too frequently has to do with the price charged for the cleaning operation, says Beaty.

He points to reports of intinerant septic tank cleaning machine operators who offer to do the job on a cubic foot basis. Too often the owner accepts because the price seems low, and usually he isn't aware of how many cubic feet of space and matter his septic tank contains until he gets the bill. When the owner objects to the price charged, common procedure is for the operator to threaten collection through enforcement of the Mechanl's Lien Law.

Before acception an offer from an intinerant septic tank cleaner, Beaty says it's a good idea to have an understanding as to the cost of the total job. He urges all owners to hire the cleaning done on a "job" basis, instead of contracting to pay so much for each unit of measure.

For Iowans who are planning to build septic tanks, Beaty points to the minimum size recommendation of 500 gallons set cooperatively by State Department of Health, Iowa State College engineers, septic tank manufacturers and plumbing association officials.

OATS

Hawarden vicinity produced an unusually fine oat crop recently, when the harvest on the A. Van Ballegooyen farm revealed 104 bushels to the acre in a 35 acre field. Before harvesting, the oats stood about 4 feet tall with exceptionally long and well filled heads. 35 to 40 bushels is considered a more normal average.

PHONE COMPANY SHOULD ELIMINATE . . .

But the Company Would Ban "Hellos" Instead

. . . WRONG NUMBERS, TWITCHELL THINKS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"DON'T SAY HELLO"

("Don't say 'hello' when answering the phone.

Give your name or company name promptly and save time."—From a telephone company appeal.)

We read it again. "Don't say 'hello' when you answer the phone," it said clearly. "It wastes time." It seemed revolutionary but reasonable. After all, why not co-operate with the company? So we sat down and awaited a phone call . . .

—o—

It is strange how long one has to wait for the phone to ring when one is not busy. If we had been absorbed in a book, tied up in a conference, trying to find a rhyme or busy at reassembling a Swiss watch there would have been a call every 10 seconds. But now . . . silence! Nobody wanted to talk to us. But we are not easily defeated. We called up a Dudley Zeek (at random out of the book) and hurriedly left word with his secretary to phone us.

Presently our phone rang. We leaped to it and announced our name with no waste of time.

"Elmer Twitchell," we said. There was no answer. We jiggled the hook and insisted on getting the connection. Central finally asked. "Who called you?" "What difference does it make?" we asked. "We will take a call from anybody." Presently she re-connected us.

"Elmer Twitchell," we repeated firmly.

"There is no Elbert P. Twitchell here. You have the wrong number."

"No, I haven't. Listen . . ."

"This is not Twitchell," the female voice insisted.

"Of course not," we explained. "How could it be?"

"Hello," the voice said.

"And you're not supposed to say 'hello,'" we put in.

"Hello Who do you want? Hello You must have the wrong number Hello."

"Stop slipping in all of those hellos!" we yelled. "Haven't you heard about them?"

—o—

Here a male voice put in.

"Hello," it said. "Are you trying to get me?"

"No, you're trying to get me," we said.

"Who are you? Hello," the voice repeated.

"Elmer Twitchell. You are Dudley Zeek, aren't you?"

"Who?"

"Dudley Zeek."

"No," came the answer. "This is the Economy Pastrami Factory, Amos Finch speaking."

"Are you trying to get Elmer Twitchell?"

"No. My secretary has been trying to get the city hall. What're you doing on the line. Hello. There must be a mixup. Hello. Hello."

It was too much. We hung up and fell, wilted, into a chair.

After a while the phone rang. The wife answered it. "There's a Dudley Zeek on the wire. He says you left word for him to call."

"Just say 'hello' to him . . . four or five times," we concluded bitterly.

Whatever Is Best

GRACE NOLL CROWELL

I DARE not pray for you, dear friend, that sorrow,
The strange unwelcome guest may pass you by,
I dare not even trust that each tomorrow
May hold for you a bright and cloudless sky.
I cannot hope that pain, that hard taskmaster,
May leave you quite untouched throughout the years,
Or that you may escape loss and disaster;
That grief may never dim your eyes with tears.

For only sorrow brings an understanding
Of others' sorrow; only as we learn
The slow and tortuous way, the harsh demanding
That grieving make upon us, can we turn
And speak the freeing word to some hurt brother,
And well we know that blue skies bring no rain
To heal the heart, and we can learn no other
Way to sympathize save through experienced pain.

I crave the best things for you, O my friend,
And for what is best we can trust God to send.

IRVING MANSFIELD

Star Dust
STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

IRVING MANSFIELD, young producer at Columbia broadcasting, proves that lightning can strike twice. He conceived and produces the tremendously successful "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts;" using a different twist on the same idea, he came through with the new hit show, "This Is Broadway," also on CBS. He began in radio in 1943 as coordinator of the Fred Allen show, then, in 1944 and '45, produced the Milton Berle program. Realizing what they had, CBS assigned him to originate and develop new comedy and variety shows, and he came through with the Godfrey gold mine, which made its first appearance on the air on July 8, 1946.

Well, "The Fountainhead" arrived, was seen, and proved to be disappointing, despite the excellent cast and the money lavished on the production. As with "Arch of Triumph," a good book just was not good screen material.

At luncheon in New York months ago Macdonald Carey announced that a second visit from the stork was slated for his home. Elizabeth Macdonald Carey arrived July 12th, ending a long, tedious sojourn in bed for her mother. Carey installed a television set in the bedroom to entertain his wife. He commented sadly that she didn't care to watch football games and he did.

On the lookout for new acting talent, Columbia has signed Benno Schneider as top drama coach. He is rehearsing a group of players, some of whom will be selected for screen tests. Meanwhile Richard Quine, a talent scout, is touring the summer theaters in Denver, Omaha, Chicago and the East. He recently co-produced and co-directed "Leather Gloves" for Columbia.

The Fiction Corner

LOVINGLY, TEMPLE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

"DEAR TEMPLE: I was indeed glad to learn that you had obtained such a satisfactory position. I am sure that you will make a most efficient secretary. Frankly, I have been entertaining some misgivings about your future. Serving in the capacity of guardian to modern young ladies is, after all, hardly in my line, although I was only too glad to look after the daughter of my close friend, Tom Creighton, when he so unexpectedly passed away. I imagine you are quite a grown up young lady now, though it is hard for me to visualize you in any other form than a girl in pigtails and short dresses—"

Aaron Bell, 34, looking 10 years younger, abruptly ceased dictating and stared hard at his stenographer. The stenographer, Miss Daniels by name, was small, dark, vivacious and exceedingly attractive. She had come to work in the law office of Attorney Aaron Bell two weeks previous. She was a capable girl, yet for some unexplainable reason Aaron hadn't been able to get used to her. That is to say, he felt nervous whenever he was dictating letters.

During the next few days Aaron began to get an inkling of why it was that he felt uneasy when dictating letters to Miss Daniels. He began to wonder if heretofore he hadn't been attempting to evade an issue. He asked himself, secretly, if Miss Daniels was becoming to mean more to him than just a secretary.

TWO DAYS LATER Aaron was rudely swept out of the realm of ecstasy (a state of mind brought about by his dinner date with Miss Daniels), by receiving another letter from his ward.

"Dear Guardian: My boss is really quite lovely, and has been displaying an unusual amount of interest in me since my last letter. I am not a little flattered by his attention and very much thrilled. In fact, I believe I could fall in love with him very easily."

Aaron rang for Miss Daniels. "Dear Temple: I demand that you resign from your present position at once. It's silly and absurd to think of a girl your age falling in love, especially with a man who makes love to every stenographer he employs."

That night Aaron suggested a drive through the country and was delighted when Miss Daniels accepted. It was a beautiful June evening, with a full moon and a cooling breeze blowing off the ocean. It might have been the atmospheric conditions which stirred to life the slumbering romance that lurks within the breast of every man, or it might have been the simple desire of a man for a mate. At any rate Aaron took Miss Daniels in his arms and kissed her and whispered nonsensical things that somehow seemed to fit the occasion.

THE NEXT MORNING he found another letter from Temple Creighton on his desk. "Dear Guardian: I'm sorry, but commands and demands from folks like you don't mean a thing when a girl is in love. And your little Temple is certainly in love. I expect she'll be proposed to in the very near future."

Aaron buzzed for Miss Daniels. "Dear Temple: This thing has gone far enough. It's a pity you couldn't have been endowed with at least a fraction of your father's good sense. It is my wish that you immediately send me the name and address of this boss of yours. I shall write to him at once."

Aaron had hoped that that night he would find himself courageous enough to offer a proposal of marriage to Miss Daniels. Yet when again they were seated on the cliff watching the moon come up out of the ocean, his courage failed.

Heavy-eyed he went to the office next morning to find a letter awaiting him from Temple Creighton.

"Dear Guardian: You were right. He isn't the man I thought he was. Apparently he has just been amusing himself, with no idea of asking me to marry him. I do wish you'd talk to him. His name is Aaron Bell. Lovingly, Temple."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Psalms 8; 19:1-6; 65:9-13; 104.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Job 37:14-24.

Singing, Shining

Lesson for August 21, 1949

EVERY ATOM of the universe, said Calvin, sparkles with the glory of God. That is our thought for this week: In the created universe we can see the God who is more wonderful than all his works. The selected Psalms express four different aspects of God's creative power Psalm 8 brings out the dignity and the glory of man, made to be master of the earth; Psalm 19:1-6 listens to the majestic music of sun and stars; Psalm 65.9-13 sees nature as a farmer sees it, in terms of sun, rain and crops; Psalm 104, one of the noblest poems in existence, celebrates God's glory in all things great and small.

Dr. Foreman

Mystery

THESE inspired Psalmists saw a high truth: Nature is for man's use, in part, but it has also a value, a beauty and a splendor all its own; and it is one of the ways by which we can know God. What is true of nature is true, far more, of the God who created all things. One of the thoughts suggested to their minds was the mystery of nature.

Even today, with all that science has discovered, there is mystery in the most elemental facts of existence. What is light? What is life? What is energy? Where did it come from and what is the destiny of it all?

A common grass blade performs miracles that chemistry has not yet initated. The mystery of nature suggests the deeper mystery of nature's God.

Power

WE ARE beginning now to realize, even better than the Psalmists could, how much energy there is in nature. We have seen tragic evidence of the atom's power. Now we have also found that while energy cannot be destroyed, it cannot be created by us, though it constantly changes form.

As the water in a power station which has run through a turbine will not climb back up to turn the turbine again, so the whole universe (they tell us) is in the process of running down.

But how was the universe born, how was energy born, in the first place? How was the universe, so to speak, wound up? Science does not profess to know; but religious answers by faith: In the beginning, God . . .

Beauty

THE writer of Psalm 104 was well aware that some parts of nature are useless to man; but he rejoiced in them none the less. Few of his neighbors had any use for whales, for example, but he takes delight in the whale (he calls him Leviathan) just playing in the ocean. St. Augustine, in the same mood, says somewhere about things like wasps and spiders that if we could forget that they bite, we would be greatly awed by their beauty and the perfection of their mechanism. Indeed, St. Augustine, in one of his prayers, calls God "Pulchritudo," Beauty. Just as God is The Truth and The Good, so he is The Beautiful.

Law

THE writers of these nature-Psalms (especially 19 and 65) were impressed by another fact about nature: its regularity. You can count on the sunrise, you always know which order the seasons will follow. Even things like earthquakes and tornadoes, which seem pretty unpredicable, follow laws of their own. Science has now shown this to be true on a cosmic scale. The stuff of which the farthest stars are made is just the same (only a lot hotter!) as the stuff in the rocks under your feet at this minute.

The laws that govern the fall of a leaf or the shape of a raindrop are the same laws that can be seen in the whirling of star-dust fifty million light years away.

The Creator of all is not erratic, eccentric or capricious. He is the God of Law, for from his infinite Mind come all the patterns, known to us or yet unknown, by which the vast fabric of the universe is woven. Mystery, Power, Beauty, Law: All nature, not only the stars, shine with all these—and as Addison says,

"Forever singing as they shine,
The hand that made us is divine."

JUST RESTING

Jacob Birnstein had passed three months on the road, selling, selling, selling. He finally arrived back home and greeted his wife warmly.

"Hi sye, old chap, it's jolly good to see you again," she said.

"Nu," said Jacob in considerable surprise, "vhat goes? Vhat's de meaning frum dees Henglish accent Ain't good, plain American good enuff no more?"

"You reahlly must be reasonable, old fellow," she continued in her affected speech. "Ahfter awl, you must remembah that we have a tiny Henglish baby that we adopted. Hi just cawn't let him grow up and let 'im think we don't know how to speak Henglish."

She seemed to resent the bold young American soldier's advances. Probably she was too conscious of the noble blood that coursed through her veins.

"I'll have you know," she breathed through an uptilted nose, "that my father is an English peer."

"Good," he exclaimed joyfully, "we've got lots in common. My old man's an American doc."

MIRROR Of Your MIND . . . Don't Finish A Dull Book

By Lawrence Gould

Should you finish every book you begin?

Answer: Certainly not if it does not interest you. The idea is as foolish as that a child should be made to "clean his plate" at mealtimes, whether he is hungry or not. You get very little out of any reading that you do because you "feel you ought to," since your interest in ideas or pictures is what makes you "retain" them. But besides that, authors nowadays are compelled by their publishers to "pad" what they write so much that few books deserve to be more than skimmed through, and most have "said it all" in the first hundred pages.

Does housework create nervous tension?

Answer: Yes, although the tension probably comes not so much from over-work as from the frustration of the housewife's desire to do things she feels are more important. Doctors of the famous Mayo Clinic made a study of nine different occupations to see which most often led to "purely functional disease"—neurosis. Housewives topped a list including doctors, lawyers, farmers, clergymen, and teachers with 27 per cent of neurotic patients, while down at the bottom came the railroad engineers, with only two per cent of nervous ailments.

Is there more than one kind of psychologist?

Answer: Decidedly. The latest directory of the American Psychological Association lists no less than twenty "divisions" (specialties) in which its members are active, from "Childhood and Adolescence" to "Maturity and Old Age." But there is also the broader distinction between experimental psychology, which studies how humans and animals behave, and dynamic psychology, which studies the inner forces that make them behave as they do. One asks, for example, what proportion of men are untruthful and the other, what makes people tell lies.

Goiter May Develop Cancer

By Dr. James W. Barton

AS A YOUNGSTER at school I knew two members of a family, a brother and sister, who had a large lump on the neck. We all expected that they would be choked to death or the food could not get down to the stomach and they would starve to death. I must have watched them for 10 years and nothing happened.

I know now that although these enlargements in the thyroid gland are called goiters, and that while some of them are dangerous or poisonous others are, of themselves, not dangerous. As this latter type was the kind with which our two school mates were afflicted, we might still have been waiting to see something happen to them.

As some of these non-dangerous or innocent enlargements of the thyroid gland may develop into the dangerous or poisonous type, there is always the question as to whether these "nodular" enlargements should be removed so that they will not develop.

In the "Journal of the American Medical Association" Drs. George Crile, Jr., and W. S. Dempsey, Cleveland, state that surgeons find that while as high as eight per cent of these "innocent" enlarged glands develop cancer, this high rate occurs only in the cases where cancer is suspected.

"In the millions of nontoxic (non-poisonous), symptomless, and innocent goiters which never are removed, the percentage of cancer cases is so low that cancer of the thyroid stands sixteenth in the list in which cancer is found."

However the lesson is plain. In all cases of a lump in the neck, the family physician should be consulted and if he advises there is nothing to worry about there is no need for further consultation, unless patient notices that lump is growing or he is becoming nervous or getting thin. Dr. Crile suggests that both physician and surgeon be suspicious of cancer in all these cases undergoing operation for removal of the enlarged gland.

MODERN POULTRY HOUSE BEING BUILT ON THE LENZ FARM

A modern poultry house, constructed along scientific lines as recommended by poultry experts, is being constructed by Clarence Lenz on the Lenz home farm north of Klemme on U S. Highway 69.

The building, which is 30 feet wide and 36 feet long, with a 7 foot ceiling, is finished in redwood outside. Instead of the usual 4 inch studding, the studding in this building is 6 inches to provide proper installaton of insulation. Under both the outside and inside walls is a sealing paper, and between the studding is the insulation paper, corrugated tin.

There is a door on both the north and south ends and the windows are all on the east and west sides, as recommended by the experts. Botn doors and windows are double. The windows remain closed at all times and their purpose is for light only. Ventilation and air-conditicning will be taken care of with a Jamesway System of the latest type

Even the foundation is insulated to prevent moisture accumulating. The floor is covered with several inches of sand, then a moisture proof paper on which is poured Zonolite concrete and finished off witn 2 inches of cement.

There will be four water fountains, two on each side, with a drain for each. The fountains being piped to the water pressure system of the farm.

At the front of the building will be the feed room and storage space. The waters and feeders are placed along both sides of the large room and the roosts are along the middle The nests will be on both ends of the room. All will be electric wired and lights will be controlled automatically.

The hens will be kept inside all of the time, as they will be so comfortable there is no need to run in outside pens.

BOYS THRILLED

Larson Boys Thrilled With Boat Races In Ozarks

While staying at a cabin camp at Hot Spring, Arkansas, Bobbie and Craig Larson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Corold Larson, were up bright and early one morning to see what was going on, boy fashion.

In their ramblings around the camp they became acquainted with Herb Scale, a sports writer on the Hot Springs Daily. Scale took an interest in the boys and told them all about he Souhwestern States motor boat races to be held a Lake Hamilton, near by Mr Scale gave each of the boys a Press pass and ribbon, and they were all set to take in the races. (We presume they represented The Klemme Times) from the press box in the stands, along with newsmen from all over the Southwest. At any rate the boys had choice seats for the big races and were really thrilled watching the boats speeding along better than a mile a minute. Close to 75 famous drivers were in the race.

The boys however, were most thrilled to see Gar Wood, Jr., son of the famous racer and boat builder

The Larson family all enjoyed the beautiful scenery in the Ozarks and visited several caves. They visited President Truman's birthplace at Lamar, Missouri and also saw the Truman home at Independence, Mo.

Traffic Survey

MORE NEW EQUIPMENT ADDED TO THE TIMES COMMERCIAL PRINTING

The past week some more new equipment was added to The Times shop A Hammond "Easy-Kaster" sterotype plate making machine was installed Thursday. This machine replaces a smaller outfit which had been in use and which was too small for the amount of work that had to be done in making plates from paper mats.

Another machine, a Pioneer Electric Router is also being installed. This machine has various uses, but is mainly used to cut down high spots on plates o prevent printing with a smudge.

The Times has also replaced about 800 lbs. of old type with a variety of new type this summer. Newest faces of type for our rapidly growing commercial printing department. More new equipment is planned for installation in the near future.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

Five Percenters

MOST EVERYTHING that happens in Washington during these long summer dog days can be viewed through the jaundiced eye of politics . . . of what it will mean in votes next year.

Latest sensation is the so-called "five percenter scandal." There are those who want to blow up this five percent deal into another Teapot Dome on the eve of the 1950 elections. They want another congressional investigation to be dragged out as long as possible.

Insofar as this reporter can judge, there is nothing here that can be blown into the category of a scandal. There are scores of people who have had government jobs, who know their way around Washington in the huge and vast ramifications of this government, who are making a living telling others who come here, wanting to sell to the government, how to go about it. Of course there may be some grafters who may attempt to trade on the fact they know "Harry." But these are few and will be weeded out anyway, for it is the "know-how" rather than "influence" which will keep these people in business.

Here is how it works. Take a big business on the scale of U.S. Steel or International Harvester or Edison Electric. This business would have a large office with a highly paid staff with an unlimited expense account to look after its government contract work here in Washington.

But a small business from St. Louis, for instance, thinks it has something the government should buy, whether it's an office desk or a new gadget. So this firm sends a representative to Washington to sell the government. He may be an able man, but he's here two weeks or a month before he establishes the proper connection, only to find out the government isn't interested or that he should have gone to San Francisco, or St. Louis or Chicago where the contract for that commodity is let. So the firm spends a lot of useless money and winds up right where it started. So the common practice has been to contact a representative in Washington who is paid a retainer to inform the small business concern the how, where and when about the commodity he has to sell. It's like having your own man on the job. That's what a "five percenter" is.

And Washington is full of them. Lawyers who have had experience in Government practicing before the various governmental agencies; business men who have had experience in government; career men who have grown tired of government service setting up their own shop, even newsmen who have run "beats" in Washington for many years have gone into the business of "Washington representative."

But it is legitimate business and we don't believe the few grafters who attempt to trade on "influence" can blow it up into a pre-election scandal, even though some anti-administration congressmen want to try it.

Power Lobby

Right now, as this is written, the private power lobby is sitting pretty, having won a signal victory over the public power cooperatives in slashing appropriations for transmission lines, particularly for the southwest power administration expansion in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. These projects were backed by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, which claims to represent 10 million farm people in 42 states.

The private power lobby lost its initial fight when the house voted some $20,000,000 for these projects. The lobby won in the senate when the senate appropriations committee not only slashed the money from the appropriations, but ordered the Southwestern Power Administration to sign contracts with the private power companies in these areas for transmission to consumers.

It may be in the closing days of this session before the battle is over, because the fight is scheduled to come on the senate floor with the public power advocates seeking to put the money back into the interior department appropriations.

Recession?

When you read the statistics you do wonder if the talk about a recession is not for a purpose. People have about $60 billion dollars in their pockets; corporate profits are at a new high; there are still more people employed than in any year except the peak of 1948.

The securities exchange commission has just released figures showing net working capital of corporations increased during the first quarter of 1949

Flotsam and Jetsam Heavyweights

By GRANTLAND RICE

THERE ARE TWO things that make a great or an unusual heavyweight champion. The first is his own ability. The second is a competitor or an opponent who can help build the headlines.

This is no alibi for Ezzard Charles. Charles might be the greatest heavyweight of all time, but how can he prove it with the present crop of challengers?

Suppose we look back a few years. Jim Corbett had a Sullivan to beat. Fitzsimmons had a Corbett to handle. Fitz had a Jeffries in the road and Jeff had a Fitz and a Corbett. Also a Tom Sharkey. And the old sailor was no squash. He could fight.

Grantland Rice

Jack Johnson had Jim Jeffries for his build-up, although Jeff was then fat and partly bald.

Jack Dempsey, a great fighter, had the best break of them all. Jack, weighing 183 pounds the day before the Willard fight, had a 260 pound giant to face, a fighter who, after all, had won the title from the great Jack Johnson.

After that Dempsey had Carpentier, the great French war hero, his ability as a heavyweight far overpublicized. But the build-up was on. Then Dempsey was lucky enough to come upon the massive Firpo, the wild bull of the Pampas, the fighter who threw rocks.

After Firpo the old mauler from Manassa had two other good breaks as far as crowds, excitement and reputation go. He had Gene Tunney and Jack Sharkey

Tunney was the dead game young heavyweight just out of the war. He could box, punch and take his share. He was badly underrated. So was Jack Sharkey on days or nights he wanted to fight. Which wasn't too often. This Sharkey was the most temperamental fighter the ring ever saw. But he could box and punch — when he wanted to.

Dempsey had all the fight game needed—great ability to start with —a flaming spirit—and at least five opponents who could draw $1,000,000 gates.

Dempsey was responsible for the two great Tunney crowds. No one knows this better than Gene, although he added his share. It was entirely different when Tunney had to face his ring future without any Dempsey around. I think Tunney retired when he did for many valid reasons.

New Order

Now we begin to see what Ezzard Charles is up against, what any heavyweight champion might be up aginst. This includes Joe Louis. It is certain to work heavily against Ezzard Charles.

Tunney had a sorry lot to face after Dempsey lost his second start. He had Sharkey, Risko, Heeney and one or two more. They were all terrible. Tunney picked Heeney, a short-armed pushover. I know Rickard wanted Sharkey, who had lost to Risko.

After Tunney had completed his operation on Heeney, there was nothing left—just as there is nothing left today—Sharkey, Schmeling, Baer, Carnera, Braddock—flotsam and jetsam. Both Schmeling and Baer were dangerous punchers at times, Braddock was smart, game but all through—while Carnera was a 265 pound joke

Here was a spot in which no great heavyweight could have proved his rightful place. There was nothing but inferior fighters to face.

Then Joe Louis came along. Joe Louis has been a great fighter. A hard puncher and a fine boxer but only fair on the receiving side where head punches have hurt him.

Louis has never drawn one of the head liners to beat. Most of those Joe stopped had been beaten by somebody else. Braddock out pointed Baer Baer knocked out Schmeling. Baer wrecked Carnera, a joke from start to finish—Louis was forced to get his reputation from a second-rate group—headed by Billy Conn, a light heavyweight. But Schmeling was the best fighter Louis had to meet through his career

20 Game Winners

As usual, the crop of 20 game winners will be quite thin this season. Only a trifle over two months are left and there are still only five of six pitchers who are in fairly close shooting range. The three with the better chance to land in this promised territory are Ken Heintzelman of the Phillies, Howie Pollet of the Cardinals and Vic Raschi of the Yankees.

Heintzelman has done the best job of the year.

LET'S talk facts . . . Here is a tire that has extra bar height, extra bar length, and a curved bar design that outcleans, outpulls, and outlasts any other tire. NO OTHER TIRE has ALL these advantages.

Those massive tread bars take a bigger bite, a better hold—and THAT'S NOT ALL. Because they're curved for self-cleaning, they keep right on pulling while other tires only clog and spin.

And here's another big feature. Every inch of tread-bar length does its share of the pulling because the low-pressure body design puts ALL of the tread in FULL ground contact for a FULL TRACTION BITE. Because it's patented, this tire gives you many advantages which no other tire has. Let your Firestone Dealer or Firestone Store demonstrate these facts to your satisfaction.

WHEN YOUR— CHILD STARTS TO SCHOOL

Meeting the teacher for the first time is part of a new experience, and a pretty important one, for most children on their first day of school. How well-adjusted your child will be depends on whether or not you have given the "right" attitudes and experiences at home.

Your child's first day at school is a big event. With his hand clutched tightly in your, he proudly marches up the school steps—a little scared perhaps, but he won't admit it. This is a long-looked-forward-to event.

Whether or not he can adapt himself to this new situation depends on the attitudes and experiences you have given him, says Mrs. Alma Jones, family life specialist at Iowa State College.

She explains too many parents feel that if Junior has learned to count or has a brand new pair of shoes, he's all set to make a success of his school career. They forget that the teacher will see that he learns to count; that new clothes may have little to do with how well he can adapt himself physically and mentally.

What To Teach

Instead, Mrs. Jones says, teach your child to know his own name, age and address. See that he can attend to his own toilet needs; can wash his own hands and face. If he'll be eating lunch at school he should have few "whims" about food and a good appetite. Give him clothes that are easy to handle so that he can put on his coat and rubbers without help.

He should understand good health habits such as using his handkerchief when he coughs or sneezes. Teach him safety rules, how to cross the streets, the danger of matches, electricity or motors.

So that he can do the creative work that other children do and can run and jump and keep up with the other youngsters, give him every possible chance to develop his body and coordination.

Social Play

Although at school he will learn more and more how to play with other children, give him a good background. Teach him to know what are his things and how to treat the possesions of other children as well as his own. He should know how to share and be able to meet other children and adults' without embarrassment.

Your child should be well-grounded emotionally. A child who fears many things, has frequent outbursts of temper or is shy or sullen, is not ready for school. Don't wait until the first day of school to be away from your child for the first time. Otherwise this break will probably result in tears and a dislike of school from the beginning.

Although you won't teach your child to read before he starts to school, you can give him a good basis for learning. A daily story hour will start him on his way toward wanting to read. Teach him the names of many objects in his world. Answer his questions and talk with him often so that he will talk easily in sentence form.

Your child's health is one of the most important factors in this business of starting to school. He should have a physical examination and have any defects corrected for eyes, ears, nose and throat.

And, finally, teach your child that school is going to be a wonderful experience—not one that should be dreaded and just endured.

The principals of the card game of poker are almost as ancient as playing cards themselves.

Return From Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Schubert and three children returned home Thursday evening from a two weeks vacation trip to the west. They spent some time with relatives in North Dakota and then drove on to Sand Springs, Montana, where they spent a week with Victor Nelson's, uncle and aunt of Gordon's. They came home by the way of Yellowstone National Park and the Black Hills. They found the west suffering from the worst drought since 1931.

Beckey Schubert stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Schubert in Garner.

SCHOOL LUNCH FUND FOR IOWA INCREASED

Des Moines,—Iowa has received notification of an increase of $171,423 in federal grants for the public school lunch program during the coming school year, C. W. Bangs, director of the program in Iowa, said.

Bangs said school lunch programs have been approved for 48 additional schools and that probably 60 to 65 schools will be added to the list before school opens.

A total of 882 public schools participated in the program last year.

The additional allocation will make a total of $1,050,714 in federal funds available for the program in Iowa for the next school year.

The federal money is used to reimburse the schools in part for the lunches served.

A report of the school lunch program in Iowa for the year ended last June 30 showed an average of 118,893 children received lunches daily. In all, 17,862,216 lunches were served of which 715,231 were given free to children not able to pay for them.

Average cost of the lunches last year was 23 cents.

NUTRITIOUS MELON

Take advantage of cantaloupes—now in season—for their refreshing goodness and abundance of vitamin C, home economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggest. Canaloupes can alternate with citrus fruit and tomatoes in bringing vitamin C to summer meals.

Versatile cantaloupe may go to the table as appetizer, salad or dessert. Some quick-to-prepare ways are suggested by the specialist:

Start the meal with chilled cantaloupe served in halves or cut into melon balls, cubes, lengthwise pieces, or rings. Garnish with berries, cherries, mint leaves or lime wedges for contrasting color and flavor.

Cantaloupe's delicate flavor suits a quickly made summer salad-cantaloup pieces in lettuce cups, served with French dressing. Or combine the golden melon pieces on lettuce with one or more of these—tomatoes, bananas, oranges, cherries, pineapple, peaches, or melons The same chilled fruits may be served in sherbert glasses for delectable desserts.

Sparkling gelatin salads can use cantaloup too. A colorful one starts with lime-flavored gelatin and adds equal amounts of cantaloup pieces and plump, sweet cherries.

"Cantaloup surprise" brought to the table on a platter of green looks like a whole cantaloup with the rind removed But the melon's hallow center is filled with bright fruit-flavored gelatin which comes into view when the cantaloup is sliced crosswise for serving. To make this salad, pare cantaloupe, cut a slice from the end, and remove seeds. Stand upright so that the cut end is on top, and pour in fruit gelatin that has set slightly Replace slice on top Chill until firm.

For a dessert—on the fancy side—dip cantaloupe balls in honey, then in shredded coconut or finely chopped nut meats. Combine with other fruits or serve the balls by themselves in sherbert glasses. Tangy and more simple are cantaloup balls served in ginger-ale.

Chilled half cantaloupes are an old favorite summer dessert. Serve plain or give them a party look by filling the halves with other fruit or tiney balls of fruit ice.

PRUNE TREES TO CHECK FIRE BLIGHT DISEASE

Fore blight has attacked many apple and pear trees throughout Iowa. Infected branches should be pruned from trees now to help prevent further spread of disease, says Griffith Buck, horticulturist at Iowa State College.

Fire blight is identified by the seared appearance of tree branches and limbs. Damage of the blight looks similar to the damage caused by fire, hence the name fire blight.

Buck says there is no known positive cure or preventive for the disease. But since the disease is spread from tree to tree in the spring by insects carrying an ooze from stricken trees, some measure of control can be had by cutting off and burning the infected branches. Cuts should be made several inches to a foot below the infected part. Pruning tools should be sterilized by dipping them in a disinfectant such as corrosive sublimate.

Fire blight occurs also in plums, cherries, hawthorn and mountain ash but not to the same extent as it does in apple and pear trees, Buck points out.

Read it first in The Times.

SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY HELD AT GOODELL CHURCH ON SUNDAY

Address Delivered By Dr. G. E. MacCanon, Superintendent Of Conference

The 60th anniversary of the Incorporation of the Evangelical United Brethren Church of Goodell, was held with special morning and afternoon services Sunday, August 21st.

Dr. G. E. MacCanon, Conference Superintendent, delivered the morning address and services were followed with a basket dinner at noon with about 140 people present.

A program of music, songs and talks was enjoyed in the afternoon with Mrs. A. C. Carpenter reading the History, and letters were read from former members and friends by Mrs. McNutt and Mrs. Boston. Rev. and Mrs. Boston were presented with a gift purse.

History

In the early summer of 1888 a Rev. Fennell, known as "The Cowboy Preacher" came to Avery Township. Goodell, then but four years old, had no suitable building for public gatherings. Rev. Fennell started a series of Evangelistic meetings in the old town school house, the one available building located one mile east of Goodell, which served as Hancock County's first Court House and at this particular time was housing the school life of Goodell.

Many of our pioneers were converted in these meetings, one of which was a Mr. Griggs, who soon after circulated a subscription paper to secure funds for a church building to be built in the new town of Goodell.

That fall the proposed church was completed, located on the present site which lot was donated by A. D. White a merchant. It was dedicated with $600.00 paid and a $400.00 mortgage, which sum took many years to pay. The original trustees were David Hunt, Ole Olsen, Nels Pierson, George Elder and J. W. Griggs, all of whom have gone to their reward. The Goodell class was organized in 1888 but Incorporation papers were not filed until August 13, 1889.

Our little town and community was served by this little church for 30 years when thru the efforts of Rev. and Mrs. E. I. Doty our Sunday School far outgrew the room it afforded. For two years the parsonage was used for 4 classes. A movement was then started to build a larger church to take care of the growing need. This project materialized into the present building which was under construction during the winter of 1917 and 1918, and was dedicated the following spring, May 19, 1918, by Bishop C. J. Kephart.

Pastors serving the old church were: Rev. Fennell, William Baker, C. W. Brewbaker, C. F. Schell, S. S. Wyand, Rev. Faillar, W. D. Hartsough, R. B. Emerson, F. G. Boyd, R. P. S. Bussey, Rev. Landon, I. E. Hartman, Rev. Wolf, E. I. Doty and G. H. Varce.

Pastors of the present church: E. I. Doty, H. T. Miller, D. W. Thompson, F. C. Scott, R. R. Percy, William Bainbridge, H. L. Herlein, W. E. Dye, Lloyd Z. Patton, Harold R. Knight, Carleton Spencer and W. T. Boston, the present pastor.

Because of the uniting of the Church of The United Brethren In Christ and the Evangelical Church on November 16, 1946, it was necessary that the church be incorporated under the new church name. On July 10, 1948 those articles were filed. The first article read as follows: "The name of this Corporation be, "The Evangelical United Brethren Church of Goodell, Iowa," and it shall be located in the city of Goodell, County of Hancock, State of Iowa."

The present board of trustees consists of the following: Chairman O. C. Evenson, Vice Chairman Harry Carpenter, Secretary-Treasurer J. J. Cook, Herman Brunes and A. G. Ruka.

LINDANE CONTROLS DAIRY BARN FLIES

Is Safe To Use If Feed And Water Protected From Contamination

The newly recommended insecticide, lindane, is proving itself as an effective chemical against flies in dairy barns.

The Logsdon Dairy Farm and the Iowa State College Dairy Farm, both at Ames, have obtained good control of flies by use of lindane.

John Reed, Iowa State College entomologist, has supervised the spraying of the insides of the college dairy farm buildings and made a check 2 days after spraying and again at weekly intervals. He says that initial kill was nearly 100 percent and that the residual effect last 3 weeks. Lindane knocks down flies faster than either DDT or methoxychlor according to Reed.

Faster Than DDT

Results at the Logsdon Dairy Farm were similar. Logsdon reports that lindane knocks flies down faster and is just effective as DDT for about a month. However, he says that DDT gives protection for a longer period of time. He used DDT effectively in 1947 and in 1948.

At the college dairy farm, 25 percent lindane wettable powder was used, while Logsdon used 20 percent emulsifiable liquid concentrate of lindane. The finished spray containing 0.3 percent lindane is obtained by adding either 10 pounds of 25 percent wettable powder or 1½ gallons of the 20 percent emulsion to 100 gallons of water. Smooth, nonporous surfaces which do not hold as much liquid may require as high as 0.5 percent lindane spray, according to Reed.

Amount To Apply

Rough surfaces, such as the interiors of most Iowa barns, were covered with 1 gallon per 500 square feet of surface. Smooth surfaces, such as painted surfaces, were covered with 1 gallon per 1000 square feet. A rule-of-thumb is to apply spray up to the point of run-off, Reed says.

Lindane is safe to use in dairy barns if feed and water are kept from becoming contaminated during the spraying, according to Reed. It also is safe to use in milk-handling buildings if similar precautons are taken.

However, lindane is not recommended for spraying directly on the cows. For keeping flies off cows, Reed recommends sprays containing pyrethrum and activators or organic thiocyanates. These repelents will keep flies off cows 1 to 2 days. He recommends applying repellents in the morning.

Sanitation First

Both Logsdon and Reed say that sanitation is the first step in farm fly conrol. If sanitaion is not practced, flies can breed faseer than any chemical can kill them. Logsdon keeps his barns cleaned up, and limes the floors to keep down odors and dampness that attract flies.

WHAT TO DO IF POLIO STRIKES

All Klemme and community hopes no serious outbreak of infantile paralysis will occur here, but in order that the community may be prepared, the local chapter of the National Polio Foundation has facilities arranged for helping suffers as soon as they come down with the disease.

Following is the procedure outlined by the Foundation that should be followed if polio strikes:

1. At the first sign of illness, call your doctor. If he suspects polio he will report the case to the local Health Department and arrange for hospitalization or home care, as indicated. If you have no family physican, call the county nurse or the hospital.

2. If your doctor says it is polio and requires hospitalization, the local chapter of the National Foundation will help arrange for transportation to a treatment center. As soon as the patient goes to the hospital—or if your doctor advises the patient can be treated at home—get in touch with your chapter of the National Foundation to arrange for any needed assistance.

3. The chapter representative will notify the hospital that it is arranging with you for full or partial payment of expenses for medical care. Adults are as eligible for help as are children. Discuss with your chapter how much of the full bill the chapter will pay.

Even if you can assume full costs for initial hospitalization, it is a good idea to see your Chapter. If yours should be a patient who is severely affected—and this cannot be determined in the first few days—you may need help later on. Bills incurred in the weeks before your Chapter assumes financial responsibility cannot be paid months afterward, but the chapter will step in at whatever time you really need help. Have a frank, friendly talk with your chapter representative at the beginning.

4. Chapters pay for hospitalization, professional services including nursing and physical therapy, transportation to and from hospitals, convalescent centers and clinics, treatment after hospitalization and appliances such as wheelchairs, braces, etc., as needed. There are no hard and fast rules. Each case is decided upon individual medical and financial needs. Assistance is given regardless of age, race, creed or color.

--5. In addition, your Chapter can put you in touch with proper sources for nursing and physical therapy at home, can refer you to rehabilitation and vocational training agencies, will provide literature designed to foster better understanding of infantile paralysis—so you will know what to expect and how to help your polio patient back to a useful life.

The chairman of the Hancock County Polio Foundation chapter is Roy L. McMillin, who may be found at the county treasurer's office, phone 159. Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, Sr., of Klemme, is the Secretary and Treasure., phone Klemme 12.

FARMERS NEED TO RESEAL 1948 CORN

Will Help Stabilize Prices And Insure Grain To Carry Livestock

Farmers will get several important benefits from a successful program of resealing the 1948 corn on farms, a member of the state Production and Marketing Administration said this week.

Otis Liittschwager said that there are down-to-earth sound reasons for resealing the 1948 crop on farms in addition to the benefits farmers will get from having the price of grain stabilized. Corn prices could very well be close to 50 or 60 cents a bushel if all of the 1948 corn was dumped on the market, especially in view of prospects for another good crop.

Needed On Farms

The logical place to store the 100 million bushels left of the 1948 crop is on the farm, Liittschwager said. That's where most of it will be used. The short crop in 1947 pointed out the advantage of having a reserve supply of grain on the farm when it is needed. Every time grain is handled, it boosts operations.

A grain reserve right on the farm allows a farmer to plan livestock production over a long period of time. He isn't faced with the need of making abrupt and costly shifts in the breeding herd, according to Liittschwager. It takes a good deal of time to expand or contract the size of a breeding herd to fit yearly fluctuations in feed supplies.

Stabilize Feeding

Feeding programs, too, are put on a more stable basis if a farmer has a reserve of corn on hand. Knowing that he has an adequate supply of feed, a farmer can plan a feeding program for a full year or more He won't need to make abrupt shifts in his plans because of a short crop. Many farmers could not carry hogs to the weights they had planned after the short crop in 1947, Liittschwager pointed out. Those short-notice marketings cut the hog income of many farmers.

Farmers will get help in providing ample storage space on farms, necessary to make the resealing program a success. The Commodity Credit Corporation is offering a loan program whereby a farmer may borrow 85 percent of the cost of a storage building, up to 45 cents a bushel of rated capacity. In addition, a 10-cent per bushel resealing the 1948 crop on the farm.

BETTER THAN AVERAGE CORN YIELD SEEN

Des Moines—Despite a wide variation in crop conditions over the state, prospects still indicate better than average yields of both corn and soybeans, the Iowa weekly weather and crop bulletin said Tuesday.

The report said it is extremely difficult to make any generalized statement on Iowa crop conditions at this time due to wide variation in moisture condiitons.

The corn crop suffered a further loss in expected yield, with the decline confined largely to the section of the state north and west of Des Moines "However," the report continued, "conditions in this area run all the way from severe damage to prospects that equal or exceed last year."

In most of central and northwest Iowa crop conditions have to be appraised on a local community basis, the service said. The weekly report noted that generally the most damage to corn is on thin sandy soils or eroded slopes There also is considerable firing from barren stalks and a lot of poorly developed ears.

The report said beans have stood the dry weather better than corn. Pasture conditions also are very spotted

BIG TOMATOES

Shakespearean tragedians and other "ham" actors should perhaps stay away from Indianola, where the tomatoes grow big Mrs. James Middleswart picked two recently, the combined weight of the pair being 2 pounds 10 ounces.

MONKEY BUSINESS

Mrs. Eldon Hungerford of Manly got quite a start recently when she looked up from her washing to find a monkey tending her year old son. The intruder was pushing the baby carriage which was parked in the back yard Soon the owner, a transient, appeared and claimed his pet If the baby-sitter shortage continues, he may be quite in demand.

FIRST LADY OF THE GARDEN HOSE . . .

Oh, Can You See by the Lawn's Early Blight?

. . . BATTLES FOR THE THIRSTY BLADES

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MISS PRIDGETT'S LAWN

IN ANY PROLONGED dry spell there is in every community the man and woman who find an outlet for a full expression of their sense of sacrifice in all-out solicitude for the lawn Here they make the ultimate effort, the grand fight, the supreme battle Their heart bleeds for every blade of grass. They are shaken to the depths by the tiniest yellow patch.

In our neighborhood Miss Arabella Pridgett is easily tops as the great lawn lover. In any moderately dry spell she can go to extremes, but in a real drought, when the reservoirs are low and the water supply critical, she is a study in devotion to the cause of the ever-damp lawn. Then she becomes a first lady of the garden hose, a duchess of the sprinkler. The lawn is her first thought at dawn and her last at night.

Famous battlers for great human causes have shown less energy. Fighters to ease the plight of undernourished peoples have shown no greater energy. Yes, a water famine is threatened, families are urged to go easy, orphan asylums and hospitals have been cautioned to watch the outlets, but with Miss Pridgett her grass is a "must," with top priority Lincoln showed no greater concern for the slaves. Clara Barton was no more zealous for the sick and wounded

She was marked Her mother was frightened by a bare patch in a green hall runner or something. She has a bare-patch complex. Were she with Noah in the flood, she would have come aboard the ark with two lengths of hose and two sprinklers.

Her lawn is an astoundingly vivid green when everything else in hollyhock heights is sere and drab. You can see her busy about it morning, noon and night, every fiber of her being astir over the thought one little blade may be thirsty She is haunted by a fear of dry patch. One hose is not enough. Miss Pridgett has two. And her second love is the sprinkler. She likes the wide, full-throated, fast-revolving type. When not watering the lawn she goes window shopping for new automatic sprinkler models.

A grand canal mood marks her premises. "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" is her theme song. She shoots the waterworks not only on dry hot days but even when it rains. Her faith in Providence and the elements is shaky. Let it rain all night and she is out there with the hose in the morning.

Miss Pridgett's slogan is "The HOSE must go on!"

The Eternal Weight of Glory
CONSIDERING Time with all its countless years,
Our light affliction is a moment spent
In pain and agony and futile tears.
The things that God in his great wisdom sent
For chastisement will render "a far more
Eternal weight of glory," it is said;
But I am human, Lord, and I implore

For strength to look beyond the things I see

God's Map for Me

Lesson for August 28, 1949

HOW did the writers of the Bible think about the Bible? We can get part of the answer by looking at our Psalms for this week These poets already possessed a part of our Bible: the Law, some historical books, perhaps some of the Prophets. It was an incomplete Bible they had—but they loved it.

They did not think of it or use it in some of the mistaken ways you may find some people thinking of the Bible today They did not think it was enough to read a line or two before going to bed every night. They did not think that having a copy of it around would bring good luck, or scare off demons. They said nothing about the Bible's being great literature. They were not at all bothered by miracle stories in Scripture; they believed them, and took them as evidences of the mighty power of God (see Psalm 105). They did not look on the Bible as chiefly a dictionary of Don'ts. They did not think of it as a Sabbath book, but rather as an everyday one. It did not strike them as a book of mystery.

The Psalmists' Bible

IN reading Psalm 19.7-14, it is interesting to see how many different things the Psalmist says about the Word of God. He calls it by various names, but that is only because, being a poet, he likes to use several words for the same thing As for Psalm 105, where else but in his Bible would the poet have learned that story of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph and the deliverance from Egypt?

The reader of this Psalm will observe that the subject of most of the sentences is GOD. As the poet reviews his people's history, he shows that it is not simply the doings of the Israelites, but it is God who brings things to pass.

"Man proposes but God disposes" is a proverb which the writer of Psalm 105 would approve Psalm 119 is known as an "alphabetic" or "acrostic" poem It is divided into 22 sections, each one exactly eight verses long There are 22 letters in the Hebrew alphabet, and in the Hebrew original of this Psalm each verse of the first section begins with the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, Aleph; in the next section, Beth, and so on down to the last letter, Tau.

The Book of God

WHAT the writers of these Psalms said about the partly-done Bible of their times is of course even more true of the completed Bible which is our heritage as Christians. One thing they make clear is that this is first of all God's book. They knew as well as we do that different human minds had a part of it, but for all that it is always God whose message comes through what they wrote. The Bible, properly understood, reveals the mind of God and the will of God. The Bible reveals also the doings of God. His story is the weaving of God's eternal decrees on the looms of time. Again, these poets see that the Bible is for man and about man.

None of them thought of it as a guide to heaven, but rather as a road map or to guide us through the mazes of this world. Psalm 119 stresses this world, and no other, as the world on which God's light shines.

The commandments of God are so many lengths of barbed wire to fence us in, rather road-signs to guide us on life's open highway. The Bible presents the "How" of living. It is God's map for me.

The Bible in The Heart

THE SENTENCE: "Thy word have I hid in my heart" (Psalm 119:11) is the clue to the right use of the Bible. When a Hebrew writer says "heart" he means something more than mere emotion. The word means character, what a man really is. A young Korean was learning the Sermon on the Mount, but making slow work of it.

When a missionary asked him about it, the boy said, "I have to be slow. First I learn a verse, then I go out and live it. I can learn the words in a few minutes; but it takes longer than that to live it."

That is the right idea. One verse, translated into living, is worth more than a chapter that never gets deeper in than the edge of the brain.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

SOMETHING NEW will be added to "Take It or Leave It" on Sept. 11 when Eddie Cantor takes over as quizmaster of the oldest of the jackpot quiz shows. Cantor has spelled Phil Baker on the show twice, in 1945, now steps in permanently. He has been quite a pioneer in radio—when he came into it studio audiences were kept behind a glass screen, seen but not heard. Cantor, used to theatre crowds, brought them into the open, then developed the pre-program show, to get the crowd into the right mood before the show went on the air. Format of "Take It or Leave It" remains the same, with those $64 questions.

Bill Goodwin, playing a movie producer in Warners' "It's a Great Feeling," lies and lies and lies—in an oversized double bed, in a pullman berth, in a lawn swing and on a chaise lounge. He's supposed to be exhausted from being harassed by Dennis Morgan's and Jack Carson's efforts to try to make an actress out of Doris Day, cast as a studio waitress.

"Where Men Are Men" marks Chester Conklin's 310th picture in nearly 37 years; he'd have made more if he hadn't retired for eight. Then he came back strong. You will see him in the hilarious "My Friend Irma" soon.

Publicity tie-ups are queer things. Shirley May France, 16-year-old miss who aims to swim the English channel, will do it as an amphibious press agent for Edward Small's historical opus, "Black Magic." A country-wide personal appearance tour is scheduled after she comes home, plus some radio appearances, then she'll be groomed for a screen career.

RAY CASHES IN

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

NO ONE would have believed Ray Sharon capable of stratagem. One look at him and you would have catalogued him in the reserved, conservative class of young men who adhered to the accepted patterns dictated by propriety and convention. He was a good looking boy with soft brown eyes and a sensitive mouth. He worked as a clerk in the Southport Trust Company. There was a future there for him.

It occurred not even to Ray that the fine reputation he had could be used as an asset, cashed in on. Not, that is, until Phil Clairmont came to town.

Clairmont had been born in Southport. At 18 he had gone off to college and not returned. He had been a football hero, an All-American quarterback. After graduation he had sold bonds and coached football teams and written magazine articles on gridiron tactics and given a series of lectures over the radio. He had made quite a success.

Two winters later Phil returned to his home town for the Christmas holidays. The folks gave him quite a reception. They held parties for him and asked him to talk at this function and that. He stayed through New Year's, which was longer than he intended. The reason that he stayed was Sheila Farnsworth, who taught the seventh grade.

Sheila was a native of Southport. She had wheat-colored hair and blue eyes. She had known Ray Sharon all her life. She liked him. When they grew up and Ray began taking her around, she was quite happy.

PHIL CLAIRMONT met her at one of the many parties that were held in his honor. He remembered who she was and was quite surprised that she had grown up and blossomed into something that was easy to look at.

Sheila was, after all, only a normal girl. Phil Clairmont was famous. When Phil took an interest in her she was flattered. It gave her a recognition that most any girl would have delighted in. No one blamed her. No one condemned her for it. If anyone felt about it at all it was a sensation of envy. A few wondered about Ray Sharon. A smaller few felt sorry for him.

Occasionally she saw Ray and thus it happened that one wintry night Ray and Sheila set out in the former's coupe for the distant town of Merkdale to attend a banker's ball there. It began to snow before they were a half hour on the road.

"We'd better take the old road through the woods," he said. "It will shorten the journey by five miles."

Sheila thought this would be a good idea. They left the main highway and cut through the woods. But neither anticipated that the storm would reach such proportions. Two miles from the highway they got stuck.

Ray didn't mince matters. He confronted the situation squarely. The chances were even that both would perish. At any rate, he had something he wanted to ask Sheila in case he didn't get a chance later on.

He asked it. Sheila thought of many things, among them what a ninny she'd been. Ray was the man she loved, the only man she could ever love. With death staring her in the face she realized this to be a fact. She put her arms around Ray's neck and told him exactly how she felt.

An hour later Sheila dropped off into a doze. When she awoke she was lying on a couch before a blazing fire. Ray was feeding her hot soup.

No one could have believed Ray Sharon capable of stratagem. He was too definitely catalogued. Which is why not even Sheila suspected that he had planned it all; that he knew about the camp, had stocked it with firewood and provisions, had stalled his car on purpose, had removed most of the fuel.

It had required a courage which he had never suspected he possessed to cash in on his assets

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Be Sincere In Your Aims

By Lawrence Gould

Is "determination" the secret of success?

Answer: Only when it is wholehearted: that is, when it does not conflict with unconscious fears or wishes. "Grim determination" often represents a desparate effort to keep from admitting that we do not really want the success which we have been trained to feel that we must strive for. What you really want, you'll automatically keep on trying to get, and whether you get it will mainly depend upon how well you adapt yourself to the "realities" of how it can be had. On the whole, adaptability is more important than determination.

Will real danger blot out a neurotic fear?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Richard W. Kilby of the University of Denver in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Phychology. There's a "hierarchy" in our motives on the basis of which more important needs take precedence over relatively unimportant ones when both are present. The desire for self-esteem, which is involved in most neurotic problems, gives way to the instinct of self-preservation in the face of actual danger. He asserts that psychoneurosis decreased in Great Britain during the Blitz, and is rare in cold and hungry countries today.

Are there limits to how far back you can remember?

Answer: If you're speaking of conscious memory, yes. What is sometimes called "childhood amnesia" blocks most of us from recalling anything that happened before we were five or six years old. But this does not mean that earlier events are really forgotten. With the weakening of fear and inhibition that takes place in psychoanalysis, I have seen people remember thrills or shocks which they experienced at the age of two or younger and about which no one could have told them. And hypnosis can revive events of the first year of your life.

Eleventh Year Is Safest in Life

By Dr. James W. Barton

A FEW YEARS ago we learned from records of illness at different ages that the years between five and 10 were the ones with the lowest rate of illness and death. It is interesting to learn that the age of 11 is now found to be the safest year according to the bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

The first year, and especially the first week of life, is fraught with serious hazards, most of which begin before or during birth. When the child has passed safely through infancy, the chances of surviving from year to year increase with each advance in age during the next 10 years of life. After this the chances of living to the end of the next year become less.

By the age of 11 the death rate from infants' diseases has decreased while adult or chronic diseases have not yet started. The death rate at 11 years of age is just one-half of what it was only 12 years ago.

It will come as no surprise to learn that a large proportion of the deaths at 11 years of age is due to accidents, especially among boys.

Parents soon learn that when a boy does not climb fences, jump in sandpits or play strenuous games, he is not like other boys. On the other hand parents do not like to see their girls engage in any of these pursuits. Even in accidents in the home, where the hazards might be expected to be nearly equal, the death rate among the boys was three times that among the girls.

While the three diseases causing most deaths—pneumonia, influenza and tuberculosis—have been reduced from between 60 to 80 per cent in the past 12 years, accidents lead other causes of death by a higher margin than ever.

As parents we know that school principals and teachers are doing their part in educating boys and girls in safety methods. It is now up to the parents to supervise their children insofar as this is possible in and out of the home.

FROM THE DESK OF THE EDITOR

OH, WELL, WHO THE HECK WANTS A DRINK

Oh, well, it will soon be winter and we won't need a drinking fountain on Main Street.

Drinking fountains must be awful scarce. Last spring the City Dads at their Council meeting voted to buy and install a new drinking fountain on Main Street. That is several months ago . . . no drinking fountain. Wonder why?

Come hot days and hot nights, tongues hanging out, but no water on the sreet. How come?

Klemme brags about having one of the best wells in the State. Why not advertise it with a good drinking fountain on the Street.?

Beautiful Park Benches

Who should we compliment for keeping the City park benches in such a "lovely" condition? Why are they scattered all over town, and some even being used on private property?

Seems like the park benches should be gathered together, new boards put on them, repainted, and put back into service ON MAIN STREET where they belong. Why let them go to rack and ruin and get lost?

Lets get the park benches over-hauled, repainted and put back into service. This work can be done during the winter by our city employee with little cost except for paint and new wood.

IOWA MOTORISTS TOLD OF NEW STATE LAWS ON SCHOOL BUSES

Des Moines,—Iowa motorists this week are being alerted to changes in state laws which govern the approaching and passing of school buses on highways and roads in the state.

The Iowa highway patrol, in cooperation with the Iowa department of public instruction, plans an intensive drive this fall against drivers who fail to observe traffic regulations designed to provide greater protection for school buses, and more particularly, school children

Pointing up the increase last year in accidents involving school buses, officials of the 2 state departments advise that the joint drive is aimed at reducing the number of accidents.

School buses were involved in 169 accidents in 1948 of which 78 were on the open highways and roads in rural areas. In 1947, state records show, there were 85 accidents in which school buses were involved. Of that total, 43 occured in the rural areas.

No Lives Lost

In spite of the increase in school bus accidents last year, not a single life was lost. In 1947 one school child was fatally injured in a crash involving a school vehicle.

Paul B. Norris, director of the school transportation system of the Iowa department of public instruction, points out one important change in the state law regarding the passing of a school bus.

All of the state's school buses this year, he said, will be equipped for the first time with flashing red lights. These lights will be turned on by the driver at a distance of 300 to 500 feet before he brings the bus to a stop for loading or unloading passengers.

The state law provides that the driver of any vehicle, when meeting a school bus on which the warning signal lights are flashing shall reduce the speed of said vehicle to not more than 20 miles an hour, and shall bring his vehicle to a complete stop when the school bus stops and the bus "stop" arm is extended.

A motorist overtaking a school bus, according to law, may not pass the bus when the flashing warning signal is operating. Also, the motorist must stop his auto not closer than 15 feet behind the school bus when it stops and the bus "stop" arm is extended. The driver of a vehicle may not pass the school bus until it resumes motion or until the school bus driver signals a driver to proceed.

Only In Country

Norris points out that this new meeting and overtaking procedure will apply only in suburban districts of cities and towns and on the open highways.

This school year will also mark the first in which the new special bus driver permits are effective. Such permits will be issued by the department of public instruction. Drivers, to obtain such a permit, must be under 65 years of age; must undergo an annual physical examination, and must also hold a regular state chaffeurs license.

Norris said approximately 118,000 students were transported in school buses last year in Iowa, and the number to be transported this year probably total 125,000.

An estimated 3,150 school buses will be operated in the state this fall. At the close of World War II there were but 1,800 school buses in use in Iowa.

W. S. C. S. Meets

The September General Meeting of the Klemme Woman's Society of Christian Service will be held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Mrs. John Chambers will be the leader.

The hostesses are Mrs. Ronald Gibbs, Mrs. M. Grossbeck, and Mrs. Dale Brede. Come early and help quilt.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

40th Anniversary

This year marks the 40th anniversary of outboard motoring in the United States and not only the devotee but the spectator of the sport realizes the vast development of the industry and what the outboard motor has meant to the sportsman.

Forty years ago, Ole Evinrude's first production model of the outboard motor came from his unpretentious shop a few blocks from Milwaukee's Kinnickinnic river.

That was the start. In the years to come detachable boat motors began to appear in increasing numbers, always improved in performance and moving into a price range which made them available to almost every boat lover or boat owner.

As fall and resultant cooler weather approach over most of the nation, scenes such as this will be familiar ones on every body of water where Americans fish. Fall is the time of year when bass and other game fish feed in the shallows. It is also the time when the outboard motor boat owner who is also an angler will find his most thrilling sport.

Since Ole Evinrude's beginning, outboard motor boats have spread practically to every lake, river and stream in the United States and in many other sections of the world. From the high-powered job of the speed demons who race outboard motor boats, to the larger, safer family type and the utilitarian, fisherman's craft, the outboard motor renders a valuable and varied type of service.

The industry, as a whole, is keenly proud of its progress and is continually attempting to improve its products. The part the outdoorman has played in this development is recognized and appreciated by both the motor and boat manufacturers.

Tips for Gunners

While anticipating the season a bit, it might be well to recall that in many states the opening of the squirrel and dove seasons is not far off. That means an army of gunners in fields and forests, not quite but almost as large as the ranks of quail and rabbit hunters who will venture afield later.

However, when anyone takes a gun and goes hunting, safety factors should be paramount in his consciousness at all times. For that reason this list of the "Ten Commandments of Safety" for hunters is offered:

Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded, deadly weapon.

Carry only empty guns into automobile, camp or home.

Always be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.

Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble.

Be sure of the target before you shoot.

Never point a gun at anything you do not intend to shoot.

Never leave your gun unattended—unless you unload it first.

Never climb a fence or tree with a loaded gun.

Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of the water.

Do not mix gunpowder and alcohol.

The hunter who remembers these safety precautions is the safe and dependable companion in the hunting field. No squirrel, deer, rabbit, quail or other item of game is worth life or limb. In going afield with a gun be safe by being sure—sure that you follow sensible safety rules.

Save Your Fish

As long as fish are alive they may be kept in the creek, tied to a root or slung over the side of a boat until the angler is done for the day. They should be checked often, however, and dead ones cleaned immediately or at least gutted and placed in dampened burlap, watercress, or, if to be transported any distance, chipped ice. They should not be allowed to lie in the water from melting ice, or they will become tasteless.

Smart Storage Space

A few square feet of clay tile and some built-in cupboards worked wonders in giving this old kitchen more storage space. Even space underneath the sink, so often wasted in old kitchens, was boxed in and now serves for storing the drying rack and cleaning materials. Drainboards and counter are finished with clay tile because of its ease in cleaning and waterproof qualities. The tile was also used to face the lower cabinets, giving them a trim look, and for wall space over the counter tops.

Take the case of an old dining room table which is round and was found too small as the family grew in size. The first thing to be done is to saw the legs down to coffee table height. Next the old, dark finish is removed with varnish remover and sanding. The table may be finished with lacquer or painted with a high glossy paint, whatever is needed to match the room.

Other furniture renovating tricks may consist of taking off "gingerbread" the name frequently applied to ornate and excessive trim on legs, arms and backs of chairs, sofas, tables and cabinets. The furniture will then have to be refinished, to show the good and simple basic lines of the pieces.

It's Easy to Renovate Ceilings and Walls

Have you a cracked plaster ceiling or one where the plaster is constantly falling? This is not only an unattractive sight, but also an unsafe one. Patching mere cracks may be done by yourself with many available preparations.

In cases where there is a large piece out of the ceiling already, you may have to consult a professional plasterer who will have to cut out a section of the ceiling and then patch it. It may be necessary to give the whole ceiling a finishing coat of plaster.

When side walls need renovating, you have a wide choice of wallboard, in finished and unfinished varieties. A lumber dealer or building supply dealer can show you various types for specific problems, and also give you help in choosing.

If walls are sound but shabby looking, why not try painting or papering them to give the room an elegant new look. If you do not consider yourself an experienced painter, you might try doing the job with a spray which is simple enough for a child to use.

As for wallpaper, there are many kinds of ready-pasted papers available which need only to be dampened and hung, each step of which is quite simple.

Be Smart!

Pleats and more pleats are in the fashion picture for fall. You'll find them large and stitched down over the hips in plaids, stripes and tweeds to fluttering accordians in lightweight wool and many kinds of jersey. They're wonderful for school or business because these modern pleats are treated so they are permanent! This fact plus fashion importance make separates more important than ever for the coming season, so choose yours to wear as an ensemble, as a blouse and skirt combination or for wear with weskit, crisp pique and ever so many different blouses and toppers.

Divorce Isn't Happiness Road

STEPHEN JACKSON is one more victim of the divorce scourge. He was married for six years. He loved his home, he dearly loved his small son and daughter. He was a good provider, he didn't drink or gamble or look at other women.

But Adele fell in love with another man, and was crazy with love and passion and pain. Stephen, after months of resistance, agreed to get a divorce, surrendered his children, and has never had a happy hour since.

Divorce brings more tragedies to American homes than infantile paralysis does. We should fight it with the same horror that we do the psysical disease. Wise mothers should warn their daughters of the dangers and symptoms that lead up to it; fathers should instruct their sons as to the best ways of avoiding it. Nobody should ever lightly suggest it as a solution to marital troubles, for it never is.

Divorce Must Be

True, if a marriage is childless, and if circumstances are unusually serious, there must be divorces. But where there are 50 now, there should be only one. No money paid to psychiatrists in years to come will undo what your divorce does to the minds and souls of your children now.

But to come back to Stephen Jackson. Here is a man I have known since he was a cheerful, sturdy little fellow of 10. He delivered papers in high school days, took a part-time job to pay his way through engineering school at college, and immediately upon graduation obtained a good job. He has changed jobs twice in these 10 years, but always upward.

He married a nice girl, with the usual white veil and the usual promises—and Steve meant them. Little Georgia was born, to completely captivate her father, and then a sturdy small edition of himself in Steve junior. He loves them, he loved his home, he deeply loved Adele. But Adele, three years, ago, fell in love.

The man is a vocational adviser in a large institution. It makes me wonder who advises him. For, from the moment he and Adele decided to shake off their respective mates at any cost, they proceeded to make everyone concerned thoroughly miserable.

Adele took her children and went to her mother's home. Her mother warned her that she couldn't stay, but at the same time she didn't turn out Adele, and she loved her grandchildren. She prayed and hoped that the situation would clear up.

Everybody Miserable

Philip, the vocational adviser, got his divorce with no trouble, and he and Adele went to Steve and begged him to relent. Stephen finally gave in, but he claimed the custody of his children. Adele agreed, perhaps because she knew what would happen. Stephen hasn't a relative in the world; the care of children of five and three simply isn't possible for him. As an engineer he comes and goes between the west coast cities; he couldn't be sure of getting a housekeeper who would care for them. So Adele has them.

The children at first welcomed their father when he came to see them. But that is lessening. In the institution where their stepfather works they are absorbed. There are other children; community meals. They are not unhappy, Stephen tells me, although in one sense they have no father and no mother.

For Adele, three weeks after her marriage, after the achievement of her dream and her dream man, was stricken with a disease that has baffled science. She is bedridden in the big institution. She has books and callers and care, but she will never walk again. If it is merely a fixation it is a very real one, for she makes desperate efforts to walk, without success. The children visit her. One wonders what goes on in their small minds about the whole thing.

Stephen's heart is broken. Or rather it is stilled and sobered in a way that makes seeing him hard for those of us who love him. He is very quiet about it, but he cannot understand what went wrong. Here was a lovely home with a man and a woman in it; a garden; here twice were those tremendous hours that usher in a new life, and twice the delight of bringing home a child to its new home. What happened? Aren't those things permanent, fundamental? If they aren't, what is?

Census Bureau Jumping Gun

Running Tests Prior To 1950 Tabulation

WASHINGTON — Although the big 1950 census doesn't start until next April, the federal bureau of the census isn't waiting for the kickoff whistle to get going.

Every month census bureau enumerators visit about 25,000 households in the United States. They ask questions about the marital status and employment of members of these households.

The employment census on which the bureau bases its estimate of the number of job holders and job hunters, is now rated more important that the population count. Employment information is valuable to the government and to private industry as an indicator of business conditions.

Some householders resent the questioning as "prying into private affairs." A few others are scared by it in these days of agitation over Communists and charges of disloyalty.

Census officials say people have nothing to fear from the interviewers. The information is strictly confidential.

Names of individuals are not sent to Washington headquarters. The information is used only for compiling the number of employed and unemployed and other statistics.

Not even the FBI or internal revenue colectors can obtain census information for investigation or tax collecting purposes. Federal law prohibits its use except in statistics.

Some people refuse to co-operate with enumerators or interviewers. However, relatively few persist in refusing after the interviewers have shown identification cards with their photographs and have explained why the information is being collected.

Care is taken to put the questions in simple words and in terms which are well known in the community where the interviewed person lives. The interviewers take short training courses.

What Is Justice?

Lesson for September 4, 1949

EVERYBODY is in favor of justice but not everybody knows what justice is. Justice is more fundamental than democracy. If we believe that democracy is the best form of government, it is only because we believe that justice can be better secured in this way than in any other.

Justice is as old as God

Since for at least 3,000 years historians, politicians, philosophers and theologians have been wrangling over the meaning of justice, you won't learn the last word about it merely by studying one Sunday school lesson. But this is the place to remind ourselves that justice as an ideal, and democracy as a means of reaching that ideal, were not born yesterday.

Dr. Foreman

Labor Day will recall the great services rendered to democracy by the organized workers of the world, for example, in the push they have given to free and universal education. But democracy is older than the labor movement, is older than July 4, 1776, is older than the Magna Charta, is older than the Roman empire, in which one of many mottoes was "Let justice be done even if the sky caves in!"

Justice and democracy go back to the ancient Hebrews, the people who wrote the Old Testament. It was written in their laws, preached by their prophets, sung in their Psalms. But of course they did not invent it. They proclaimed it; but justice is older than the human race. The whole Bible and not only the Old Testament teaches that justice is rooted in the nature of God himself. No unjust person can be called godly.

Songs of Justice

OUR Psalms for this week give us some valuable light on what justice is. Some people think that if everybody were rich, that would be justice. Psalm 49 shows how foolish that notion is. It says in almost so many words, "You can't take it with you."

Riches do not spell happiness. Making everybody rich might mean making many people miserable. Money by itself does not cure the ills of life, it may make them worse or even create new ones. Many a family in the "upper brackets" has troubles that would vanish if they had less money.

Psalms 72 and 82 give us more positive suggestions. Psalm 72 sees it as the king's main duty to judge the people with righteousness and justice. The king was the government, in those days; he was the executive and the legislative and the judicial branch of government all rolled into one In modern terms, the business of government is something more than furnishing police to lock up and punish wrongs after they have been done.

The welfare of the people is the concern of government. When public officials take any other view of their job, they are off the beam. In a democracy, the government is the people, that is to say, ourselves.

If things are bad we are to blame for it; if they are going to be any better, we shall have to work for it. Every appeal to a king, in the Old Testament, when translated into terms of a democratic country, means an appeal to the people.

The Little People

JUSTICE always has to be concerned with the little people. It was true in the simple little world of the ancient Hebrews, it is just as true in our global complex world, that the strong will always exploit the weak if there is not a hand to stop them.

God is always for the "poor," the "children of the needy," and he is always against the "oppressor." In ancient Israel the oppressor was usually the big land-owner who treated his slaves with cruelty or underpaid his workers. Nowadays the oppressor is any exploiter, any man or group of men who will use power to squeeze out or crush down the little man.

But justice is positive, not negative, prevention and not cure only. Concern for social justice includes taking care of people laid low by an epidemic or made homeless by fires; but it goes far beyond this. It will mean working for conditions such that no one will be forced to live in unsanitary firetraps.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Marks on Refrigerator

QUESTION: I have a new refrigerator with a finish that is not porcelain. I would like to know what to take marks off with. I mean when something is bumped against it and leaves a black mark. I have a small child, so you can imagine how many bumps the refrigerator gets. A cleaning agent removes the finish. I would appreciate this information.

ANSWER: As the refrigerator is still new, why not call up the dealer who sold it to you and ask him either to come and clean it up for you or else recommend a cleansing preparation? I could give you a better answer if you had told me what the material is, since it is not porcelain. If the finish is washable, which it certainly ought to be, try a damp cloth sprinkled with a scratchless scouring powder, rub very lightly, and follow with another clean, damp cloth. The powder should not be used except in instances of stubborn spots. Mild soap and water on a damp cloth should be sufficient.

At a court hearing, the barber pleaded that such items were exempt from attachment because they were the "tools" he needed to carry on his trade. And the judge agreed with him. Ordering the creditor to keep hands off these articles, the judge said that no self-respecting man would go to a barber who didn't have "the usual incidentals."

How Strict May a Medium Be During a Seance?

A spiritualistic medium invited a skeptical neighbor to a seance, so he could "see for himself" what happened. Soon after the lights went out, the neighbor felt the medium's chair slowly moving! Instantly he struck a match. The spiritualist got so angry at this interruption that he knocked the neighbor down on the floor — and that was the end of the seance. Afterward, the neighbor sued the medium for damages. The latter claimed that he had a right to punish anyone who disturbed the seance, but the court held him liable anyhow. The judge pointed out that the neighbor had been invited for the purpose of seeing what happened — so he had a perfect right to strike a match and look!

CULL POOR LAYERS NOW, AVOID TROUBLE LATER

Poultrymen can avoid trouble with poor layers in their flocks this winter by doing a good job of culling this fall and housing only good pullets, says W. R. Whitefield, extension poultryman at Iowa State College.

Good pullets, he says, are large, well fleshed, early maturing, early laying and healthy. You can distinguish the difference in pullets as to these qualities when they are between 4 and 6 months of age.

Whitefield gives these pointers on inspecting for comb and wattle development. The pullets having the largest and the brightest red combs and watties are most nearly ready to lay. Those that have lost their shyness may even be laying now. "Singers" also are near or in production.

On the other hand, dull-eyed, timid pullets with smaller and more pinkish colored combs and wattles are not yet nearing production. Their plummage, in contrast with the sleek coats of their early-maturing sisters, is usually rough. Several tail feathers may be missing, and the neck is somewhat naked. In whitefeathered birds the immature pullets have yellow cast to their plummage while the early-maturing pullet's coat is white.

A deep yellow color in the legs and beak is a sign of health and well-being in a pullet of the yellowskin breeds, according to Whitefield. Yellow-skin pullets having light-colored shanks and beaks will make less dependable layers.

House only large, well-fleshed birds. Whitefield says that some early-maturing pullets are too small to keep. Some are small-boned and never will grow large enough to lay normal eggs. Poorly fleshed pullets are also poor risks in the laying flock. They are underweight even though they have enough frame. Often these poorly fleshed birds are in a partial or false molt and won't lay until they are fat and their plummage is mature.

Also, Whitefield suggests sorting out pullets that show signs of disease. Do not house birds with abnormal eyes, lame birds and those that are inactive.

Non-Magnetic Sky Compass Developed for Polar Areas

A new non-magnetic compass which can be used for air navigation in the polar regions has been developed by the national bureau of standards in cooperation with the bureau of aeronautics, department of the navy. Known as the "sky compass," it is particularly useful during the long periods of twilight in the polar regions when neither the sun nor the stars are visible.

Such an instrument has long been desired, since the magnetic compass is inoperative in the areas above Hudson bay and below the Straits of Magellan, close to the magnetic poles. Nor can a sun compass, which indicates the direction of flight by direct sighting on the sun, or an astro compass, which measures direction by the stars or other heavenly bodies, be depended upon—for there are many hours of twilight in these regions. The bureau-developed sky compass can operate when the sun is slightly below the horizon as well as when the sun is obscured by clouds, provided the sky is clear overhead. The sky compass is thus of particular value when the sun compass and the astro compass cannot be used—after sundown before evening stars appear, and after morning stars disappear but before sunrise.

Not only is the sky compass most accurate in the polar regions, where it is most useful, but it will aid aircraft operation in parts of the world where round-the-clock navigation was heretofore hindered.

The bureau's sky compass is based on the investigations of the late Dr. A. H. Pfund of Johns Hopkins university and was developed in cooperation with and at the request of the bureau of aeronautics, department of the navy.

New Wonder Drug Produced Synthetically at Low Cost

A major chemical triumph, which may open the way to conquest of several of man's deadliest diseases, was revealed when the American Chemical society made public a report announcing that chloromycetin, one of nature's newest wonder drugs, has been made artificially from readily available raw materials.

This is the first time any of the spectacular antibiotic drugs, which include penicillin and streptomycin, has been produced synthetically at a cost low enough to be practical, according to the report, based on three technical papers prepared by chemists of Parke, Davis & company, Detroit. Full-scale production of the synthetic drug is expected soon.

Beyond its immediate importance in assuring abundant supplies of low-priced chloromycetin, the report says the chemists' achievement is of enormous significance for world health because it offers hope that related compounds may prove effective against virus diseases, such as polio, measles, and the common cold.

Putty For Window Sash

The principal use of glazier's putty is for fastening window glass in sash. If it is made properly and of suitable ingredients, it will give practically a life time of service. The ideal glazing putty is one which does not adhere to the hand or putty knife, but which does adhere indefinitely to glass and wood. It also spreads readily, does not sag after it is applied, and remains soft enough to be easily removed in case the glass needs replacement. When inserting glass into new window frames, it is important to see that new wood is carefully primed before the putty is applied and that the putty when it has set, is given a protective coating.

School of Social Research

The New School of Social Research, in New York City, has announced that it will sponsor a six-week summer session in Europe in cooperation with the Columbia university travel service. Bryn J. Hovde, president of the school, states that the course is planned "to afford American students the opportunity to study political and economic conditions at first hand and to advance the cause of international understanding through the free mingling with people of other lands." Three groups of about 70 students each will study in Paris and other cities in Europe under American and European professors.

U. S. Leaves Toy Trade

By 1939, the United States had become the world's largest toy producer. Not only was it filling most of its own needs, it also was the Number One supplier to all other nations. Today, after a war period in which domestic production took a back seat, and foreign toys were practically off the market, the United States still heads the list of toy makers and international merchants. In 1947, U. S. toy exports were valued at more than 14 million dollars, notes the National Geographic society, with a home retail business worth some 250 million dollars. American imports last year were about $688,000, a revealing drop from the 1923 high of more than 8 million.

Orchids To The Farmer Who Cuts Off Corn At Intersections

It won't hurt your corn crop to cut the stalks off above the ears and it may save someone's life. Gee whiz, it could be your own life!

ASK TAXPAYERS TO DIG DEEPER

Hancock County taxpayers will have to dig down in their jens for an additional $64,118 to foot the 1950 tax bill, according to a report from the office of the County Auditor, Maynard Schoneman. The additional tax is based on budgets and certificates of tax submitted by the various levying bodies in Hancock county.

Rural schools will get the largest slice of increased revenue, accounting for $37,180 of the total increase. Independent and consolidated districts will receive $10,066 additional. Some of the independent districts have rduced their levy but in a majority of cases the levy has been increased. The Garnr independent school levy was decreased $4,054 and Corwith $1,500. All others either levied the same as a year ago or had an increase. Ell, Erin and Amsterdam townships school showed no increase over 1949.

The county budget will be $7,000 higher which is due to an increase in the court expense, poor and tuberculosis eradication. There is no increase in the road fund for 1950. The county board of education also was required to levy an additional $2,508 over 1949.

The 8 towns in the county have increased their total askings in the sum of $8,406 with Garner leading the increase with $4,123. Three of the 8 corporations show an increase of slightly over $100. They are Britt, Corwith and Goodell.

The certificates of tax filed in the office of Auditor Schoneman indicate that taxpayers apparently were satisfied with budgets in their respective taxiig districts as no taxpayers appeared at any of the hearings.

GOOD APPLE EATING

Fresh apple pie in the midst of winter. What could be better? You can have apples for pie, main dishes and salads as well as for that raw "apple a day" next winter if you store fall apples the right way in a cool cave or frost-protected pit. Too warm temperature will make them mealy and soft.

Most fall apples will be ready for storage during September You'll want to store as many as practical, for apples—which provide much of the vitamin C your family needs—are almost an all-purpose fruit. They can go on the table this winter as the main dish, salad or dessert. And there's nothing better for in-between meals.

A. E. Cott, extension horticulturist at Iowa State College, says that fall apples should be stored correctly so they'll be "good" to eat and cook later this fall and winter. Guard against too-high storage temperatures or the apples will become mealy and mushy before it's time to use them, he warns.

Pick Before Ripe

It's also important to harvest the apples at the right stage of maturity. Pick them just before they are ripe, while they are still firm and juicy. For best keeping, don't let them ripen on the tree. There's also the chance that an early frost might catch the fruit if it's left to ripen naturally.

Among the apple varieties which will probably be ready for harvesting in Iowa the first weeks in September are Jonathan, Golden Delicious and McIntosh.

Delicious, Grimes, Ben Davis, Gano, Stayman, Winesap, Turley and Secor will be ready fo. picking later in the month.

Apples will keep best if they are stored in a cave where there is moisture and the temperature is around 40 degrees F. Do not store apples in a heated basement unless they are in an insulated room separated from the furnace. They ripen too fast in a heated room, lose moisture, shrivel and become mealy.

If a cave is not available, Cott says apples may be stored in the ground. Select a place that is well drained. Line the pit with straw to protect the fruit from freezing Put the apples in the center of the pit and cover with straw. Pile the dirt over the straw to about 12 or 15 inches deep Add more straw

Pack Carefully

Pack the apples carefully in closed baskets or crates which have been lined with paper. This protects them against bruising as well as against damage from mice or rats. Store only firm, sound apples. Apples which have begun to rot may ruin the entire contents of a box or basket in storage.

Plan to use the apples before they are over-ripe. They lose their fresh, juicy flavor and become mushy if they are stored longer than their natural storage season.

Cott says that Jonathans are best if used from October through January. Use Golden Delicious during October through February. McIntosh apples do not store well. Plan to use them during September through November. Use Delicious sometime between October and February; Grimes from October through December, and Ben Davis or Gano from January to April.

Staymans are best if they are eaten from November through February. Winesaps keep well and can be used anytime between January and the end of June. Turley, a newer variety, should be eaten in December or January. Secor, another new variety, is best if it is eaten from October to January.

SET PHEASANT, SQUIRREL AND RABBIT SEASONS

The State Conservation Commission has set the pheasant, squirrel and rabbit seasons for 1949 and concurred with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in the migratory waterfowl season. The quail season will be announced after completion of censuses sometime in September

The pheasant season opens at 12:00 noon November 11 for 25 days in 68 counties in the long season zone, and for 7 days in 11 counties in the short season zone. The season opens at 12:00 noon and closes at 4:30 p. m. each day. The daily bag limit is 2 cock birds, possession limit 4 cock birds.

The various censuses indicate an increase in pheasant populations of 15 per cent. The '49 season in the long season zone is five days longer than in 1948. The new hours add 30 minutes in the afternoon to the legal shooting time.

Nine south-central counties are open for the first time to pheasant shooting, and for the first time in pheasant season history, the open pheasant range extends south to the Missouri border.

Counties in the long season from November 11 through December 5 include: Lyn, Sioux, Plymouth, Osceola, Dickinson, O'Brien,, Cherokee, Buena Vista, Clay, Emmet, Palo Alto, Franklin, Cerro Gordo, Worth, Mitchell, Floyd, Butler, Howard, Chickasaw, Bremer, Buckanan, Black Hawk, Fayette, Winneshiek, Allamakee, Clayton, Deleware, Dubuque, Woodbary, Ida, Sac, Calhoun, Green, Corroll, Crawford, Shelby, Audubon, Guthrie, Linn, Webster, Hamilton, Hardin, Grundy, Tama, Marshall, Story, Mahaska, Boone, Dallas, Jasper, Poweshiek, Keokuk, Washington, Muscatine, Benton, Iowa, Johnson, Jones, Scott, Clinton, Jackson, Cedar, Pocahontas, Kossuth, Humbolt, Winnebago, Wright and Hancock.

Counties in the short zone from November 11 through November 17 include: Louisa, Monona, Cass, Adair, Madison, Adams, Union, Taylor, Ginggold, Decatur, and Clarke.

The rabbit season has been set from September 15th to January 31, with shooting hours from 6:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m., and a bag limit of 6, possession limit of 12.

In face of a sharply reduced rabbit population, up to 50 percent in some sections, the rabbit regulations are considerably restricted. Night shooting of rabbits under the present regulations is prohibited for the first time in many years, and the Commission has established a possession limit on this valuable game species.

The squirrel season, opening September 15th, closes November 15th. The daily bag limit is 6, with a possession limit of 12. Squirrel populations remain the same as previous seasons, and no changes have been made in open dates or bag limits,

The Commission has concurred with federal regulations governing the 1949 duck season.

The migratory waterfowl season opens October 21 and closes November 29, both dates inclusive. Shooting is allowed on opening day from noon until one hour before sunset. Each day thereafter the season opens one-half hour before sunrise and closes one hour before sunset. Bag limit is 4 per day, with a possession limit after the first day of 8. Only one wood duck may be had in possession at any time.

The bag and possession limit on geese is 4. Not more than 2 of the limit may be Canada, Hutchins, cackling, or white-fronted geese. Two of any of the above may be included in the limit. The entire bay may be made up of either blue or snow geese, or any combination of them.

The bag limit on coot and mudhen has been reduced to 10.

FEED MORE PLANT PROTEIN TO HOGS

Soybean Oilmeal And Linseed Oilmeal InFavorable Price Situation

High prices of animal proteins may make it pay to feed more plant protein such as soybean oilmeal or linseed oilmeal.

E. L. Quaife, extension swine specialist at Iowa State College, says that hog producers are now confronted with a cituation, as far as tankage and meat scraps are concerned, very similar to that which prevailed during the war. When hog feeders have to pay around $8 to $10 a bag for protein feed, they begin to look round for something else to take its place. Soybean oilmeal and linseed oilmeal are in a more favorable situation as to price, and it might be well to consider the recommendations made during the war to feed more plant protein, Quaife says.

He suggests that the following protein supplements be fed in addition to a full feed of corn and oats.

Proposed Supplements

For pigs weighing 30-75 lbs. in drylot, a supplement may consist of 10 pounds tankage, 40 pounds soybean oilmeal, 19 lbs. linseed oilmeal, 25 pounds of ground alfalfa hay, 3 pounds limestone, 1 pound steamed bone meal, and 2 pounds iodized salt.

Another suggested supplement for pigs in drylot consists of 15 pounds tankage or meat scraps, 40 pounds soybean oilmeal, 14 pounds linseed oilmeal, 25 pounds groud alfalfa hay, 3 pounds of limestone, 1 pound steamed bone meal, and 2 pounds of iodized salt.

A supplement for pigs weighing 30 to 75 pounds on pasture may include 10 pounds tankage, 50 pounds soybean oilmeal, 22 pounds linseed oilmeal, 10 lbs. ground alfalfa, 5 pounds limestone, 1 pound steamed bone meal, and 2 pounds iodized salt.

Another supplement for pigs on pasture consists of 10 pounds tankage, 55 pounds soybean oilmeal, 22 pounds linseed oilmeal, 5 pounds ground alfalfa, 1 lb. steamed bone meal, 2 pounds iodized salt, and 5 pounds of ground limestone.

OVERALLS

Mrs. Mac Yakle of Wapello was doing the family washing recently when a pair of overalls "exploded", showering her with water. A July fourth "torpedo" in one of the pockets was found to be responsible. The question of "who threw the overalls in Mrs. Yakle's washing machine" was answered by son, Jarett, 13.

CATCHING UP WITH BONUS APPLICATIONS

Des Moines,—Good news for those Iowa veterans of World War II who have been anxiously awaiting their bonus checks, came out of the state bonus board office Saturday.

"We expect to be even with the board in the next couple of weeks" a spokesman for the board said. He meant that it won't be long now until the board will be precessing claims as fast as they are received.

As of the close of business Friday, 60,017 checks had been mailed; 67,950 claims had been precessed, calling for a total of $25,752,690, or an average of $378; the claim number on the last check mailed was 90,500.

At the end of last week's business the claim number on the last check mailed was about 26,000 higher than the number of claims processed. This meant that about 26,000 claims had been held up for further investigation. But procession had been resumed on some.

Friday's report indicates some of the slack has been taken up. As of then, the claim number on the last check mailed was about 22,500 higher than the number of claims processed.

The filing of claims has dropped off now to about 100 a day. About 210,000 have been received, out of a total of about 230,000 expected. Approximately 250,000 Iowans served in World War III.

Friday's report showed 183,737 claims had been given a preliminary screening and 174,250 had been acknowledged.

Corn Moisture And Sealing

It has been brought to the attention of the AAA office that some of the 1948 stored corn is a little high in moisture for safe storage as shelled corn, and so they suggest that anyone selling their sealed corn and extended their loan have a sample taken before shelling.

Corn containing 13½ percent moisture and below will be safe to store as shelled corn.

Ear corn that does not contain in excess of 15½ moisture is eligible for resealing as ear corn.

HOG FEED

While putting up hay this spring, Ernie Jensen of Jacksonville lost his billfold. He found it recently but the hogs had beaten him to it and had eaten up part of the currency it contained.

MILK TASTES BEST IF COOLED RIGHT

Poor Cooling May Be Reason Farm Youth Drink Less Than City Youth

An Iowa State College extension dairy industry specialist believes he has one of the answers to why farm boys and girls drink less milk than city youngsters.

A. W. Rudnick thinks that the trouble lies in improper cooling of milk on farms. This results in flavor changes that discourage a farm youngster from drinking milk.

A public health survey recently established the point that farm youngsters don't keep up with their city cousins in drinking milk.

Cooling System

Rudnick has found that it takesfrom 3 to 4 hours to cool a quart of milk from 80 degrees down to 50 degrees in a refrigerator. In larger containers, such as pitchers often used on the farm, milk takes 4 to 5 hours to cool down to 60 degrees. That is too long, according to Rudnick. It gives bacteria a chance to develop and may cause off flavors.

The secret of good tasting milk, according to Rudnick, is to cool it quickly immediately after milking and to keep it cold. To cool milk quickly, first cool it in water to within 3 or 4 degrees of the temperature of the water, and then put it into the refrigerator An hour in 60-degree water is better than 2 hours in a refrigerator at 35 to 40 degrees, according to Rudnick.

Home Pasteurizers

If a home pasteurizer is used, take the temperature with a thermoneter to be sure that milk is within 3 to 4 degrees of the temperature of the water before putting it into a refrigerator. Gain made by pasteurization may be lost if milk isn't cooled quickly, Rudnick says, or if it's put in the refrigerator when it is warm.

He also recommends storing milk for use on the farm in quart bottles rather than in larger, open containers. It steps up the rate of cooling and helps keep out other flavors from food in the refrigerator. Cover bottles with plastic, snap-on covers.

Birthday Party Held

Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Christie was 9 years old on Monday, August 22 and in honor of the event her mother had a birthday party for her and invited a lot of little girls in the afternoon. Games were played after which a nice lunch was enjoyed. Joan received many nice gifts.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER

When a bottling company truck caught fire at Gowrie recently, the quick-thinking driver uncorcked several bottles of pop, shook them up and by holding a finger partially over the end of the bottle, used the spray of pop to put out the fire.

EXPLODED

Mrs. Frank Raymond, young mother, was burned to death at her home near Soldier recently, in a kerosene explosion. There were no witnesses but a five gallon kerosene can was found beside the stove, with the bottom blown out. Mrs. Raymond was the mother of two small children.

STORAGE SPACE NEEDED IN CORN LOAN PROGRAM

The government loan and purchase agreement program on the 1948 corn crop proved effective, but now it faces an obstacle in lack of storage space, that threatens to weaken the price support structure. This statement was made by Hervey Hazen, state Production and Marketing Administration chairman.

Objective of the program is to keep farm income at a fair level through price supports. This is done through loans and purchase agreements, and direct purchases by the government for some commodities.

"The bottleneck is that in order to get price support under the government loan program, storage space must be increased on Iowa farms so that loans can be made in conformity with requirements," Hazen said.

The present need for storage is not a temporary one, according to Hazen, but is long-term in scope. Every farm should have enough storage space to carry one year's crop in addition to the current one. That much storage space on every farm will take care of the 100 million bushels of corn now without a place, as well as the new crop.

A price support program can work only if farmers and government cooperate with each other, Hazen said. The government provides loans on corn under a sealing and resealing program. It also provides loans to farmers for construction of bins and cribs, and put a storage fee of 10 cents per bushel for corn in storage. It is the farmers responsibility to build enough farm storage space to make the program effective, according to Hazen.

PREVENT SOFTENING WHEN CURING PICKLES

Soft pickles aren't a problem when you take proper precautions in curing cucumbers, says Jewel Graham, Iowa State College nutritionist.

When pickles become mushy and slippery, the softening is due to bacteria, she explains. These bacteria thrive in air but do not grow in the presence of acid.

In curing, lactic acid forms from the natural sugars in the cucumbers. It is lactic acid which brings about the improved flavor, color and texture in brine-cured pickles.

It's important to use soft water in making the brine, Miss Graham says. Hard water often contains carbonates which neutralize the lactic acid naturally forming in pickle fermentation.

Keep the cucumbers under the surface of the brine throughout the curing process. If they come above the surface they quickly turn soft from action of the bacteria which live in the air. Miss Graham adds that once softening has begun, vinegar added to the brine sometimes keeps the bacteria from growing.

The brine must be of the right concentration. Use 1 pound of salt to 9 pints of water, to form a 10 percent solution which will just float a fresh egg. Too weak or too strong a brine may cause softening. Be sure to use dairy or other course clean salt; ordinary refined table salt contains too much "filler."

Scalping, practiced by some American Indians, was painful but not necessarily fatal, since the part taken was usually a small circular patch of skin just back of the crown of the head.

When Lloyd Klever, of Williamsburg, fell asleep in his car near Traer recently, the machine left the highway and according to witnesses rolled over 7½ times. Klever received a few cuts and a shoulder bruise.

"IRON MAN"

Mrs. Leslie Smith of near Lemars pulled an "iron man", or perhaps one should say. "iron woman" stunt recently. When a tractor she was driving hit a ditch, Mrs. Smith was thrown against the machine, out of balance and finally leaped to the ground to avoid falling into the combine. She continued to drive the machine, found out later she had cracked several ribs.

UPSIDE DOWN

At Williamsburg, little Janice McAllister, 16 months old, put her head into a 10-gallon jar slipped over the edge of the jar and lit upside down in it in about six inches of water. A neice found her almost immediately and pulled her out. Janice recovered quickly.

YIPE!

When Mickael Mulroney of Elkader and Leo Koehn of St. Olaf left for the All Iowa Fair at Cedar Rapids recently, they started early. They made the 80 mile trip on horseback, spending two nights on the road.

FAST TIME

Ray Douglas of Postville received a telegram from his daughter, Darlene, from Lisbon, Portugal recently. The message was filed in Lisbon at 4:50 p. m., July 25, and arrived in Postville at 1:20 p. m., July 25, nearly three hours before it was filed. The Portugese time belt is five hours earlier than Central Standard Time. Actually, it took the message about a hour and a half to arrive.

CALLS FOR BORER STUDY

Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper has introduced a resolution in Congress authorizing the chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to appoint a five-man sub-committee to study current infestation of the European corn borer.

More than 28 states now are infested with the corn borer and this year there is an even higher potential for damage, especially in the corn belt. Last year the corn borer caused damage estimated at $103,236,000.

"According to reports I have studied, and the information which I have received from the farmers, the total damage by this insect and the territory which it infests are constantly increasing, "Senator Hickenlooper says. "I hope Congress will see fit to act as soon as possible on this measure in order that we may get the facts and have a sound basis for dealing with this problem at the earliest possible date."

The Iowa senator points out that the Congress has appropriated more than $75,000,000 to aid in fighting hoof and mouth disease "while we are spending only about $150,000 per year, a mere mittance in comparison, to fight the European corn borer which caused an estimated $46,000,000 damage last year in Iowa.

Klemme Park Popular Picnic Spot During The Summer

Nearly every Sunday during the summer there has been a family gathering, re-union or picnic at the Klemme Park. Sometimes there have been two and three separate groups enjoying a picnic dinner or supper in the beautiful Park.

There is a need for more picnic tables and many more park benches. This should be provided by the Town Council before another year rolls around. We like to have people come to Klemme and use the Park, but let's have more tables and benches and do all we can to attract visitors to our Park and make them comfortable.

Newest Models Have Built-in Parking Space

. . . INTO AN APARTMENT AUTOMAGICALLY

By H. I. PHILLIPS

USEFUL AUTOS

THE latest trend in auto design is toward a pleasure car that can be transformed, presto, into something else. By little more than button pressing one model is converted into a truck or station wagon. Similarly, another model has a trunk compartment that can be made into something of a boudoir. We look for extensions of the trend, bringing perhaps, the combination sedan, deep-freeze unit and rumpus room.

Elmer Twitchell, the eminent engineer, is at work on a design for flivving that will give the summer auto tourist a car to be known as the cabana special. You can drive it onto the beach anywhere, throw a switch and change it into a beach cabana with cocktail bar.

Mr. Twitchell has other utilitarian models in mind for Detroit including the following:

1. Fisherman's special. Here the back-seat area can be converted into a huge aquarium for live bait, with a fish well for the day's catch. The car itself is aquatic and by a few wrist motions can be converted into a motor or sailboat. As an extra there is a sun lamp under which the fisherman can loll and lie to one another in comfort.

2. The Loaf-a-Mobile. Here, by a remarkable use of engineering skills, an extension can be whisked from the back end of the car which becomes, as if by sheer magic, a patio with flowered walls and birdbath. A palm tree can be had in the deluxe model. Through this model the problem of having an auto, a beach home and a small yard is solved.

3. The Kitcheny-Eight. Lives there an autoist who has never longed to whip up a meal en route? In this model Mr. Twitchell gives the world a roomy limousine in which the touch of a button transforms the rear of the car into a complete kitchenette with icebox, stove, pantry shelves, cabinets, etc. A compartment for live birds is included in case the owner wants a fresh chicken dinner.

4. The 12-cylinder What-Fun. By a few manipulations, taking less than 10 seconds, this model, seemingly an ordinary touring car, is converted into a police car with all the traditional symbols and sirens. The mechancial devices which accomplish this change also slap a police hat onto the driver. There is no model as satifactory as this to operators in a hurry.

The Accordion-Kar. Here Mr. Twitchell has something which will be the answer to every autoist's prayer. It is a model which folds up when the driver wishes to park it. All hands alight, a button is touched and the car contracts in the manner of an accordion until it takes up little more room than an umbrella. The car can then be left in hotel lobbies, home hallways, or even phone booths.

God Spoke to Me Today

GOD spoke to me today,
Through the gray mist above the hills
Before the day was quite awake;
Through the pink splendor of the east,
The lilac lights across the lake.
He spoke, a voice within the wind:
The little gentle winds that blow,
A bed of tulips in the sun,
Each deepest golden heart aglow,
Were God's own messengers to me—
I love him so! I love him so!

God spoke to me today —
His voice? Nay, I could not mistake.
I hear him speaking clear tonight
As the day dies and in the west
The crimson sun sinks from my sight.
Uncomraded awhile I mark
Now far, now near the darkness grow,
And lo, he speaketh, "Child of mine,
When days and nights all passing go,
Still will I hold thee, still will keep—
I love thee so, I love thee so!"

Polio Rate
Still Increasing

WASHINGTON — Figures from the U.S. Public Health Service show a continuing increase in infantile paralysis cases.

Last year, in which 27,894 cases were reported for the entire year, was the second worst polio year in the nation's history. It was topped only by 1916, when approximately 30,000 cases were listed.

Officials point out that in 1916 most of the cases were paralytic cases and included in the totals.

A total of 684 new cases was reported for the week ended July 9, 1949, compared with 479 for the preceding week and 510 for the corresponding week in 1948.

Since the first of the year, 3,881 cases had been reported as of July, 1949, for the nation as compared with 2,878 for the same period last year.

States reporting the largest number of cases are Texas 121 (118 the week before); Oklahoma 74 (51); Arkansas 70 (59); California 58 (29); and Minnesota 38 (25).

Animal Once Thought Extinct Discovered On Haiti Peninsula

WASHINGTON—On the brink of oblivion for more than a century, an animal once believed to be extinct has been rediscovered, and a freshly-killed specimen is in the hands of the Smithsonian institution to prove it.

It is a Haitian species of the hutia, ratlike distant relative of the guinea pig and porcupine, which was last collected in 1830 and described by the French naturalist Cuvier.

Since then no living specimens have been reported, although there are quite close relatives in the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Jamaica and some other West Indian islands. They represent a meager remnant of what was once a large flourishing family of rodents.

The Smithsonian has received from Anthony Curtiss of Port-au-Prince a freshly killed specimen collected on the southwestern peninsula of Haiti. Here the little creature apparently has found its last refuge.

Although scientists have assumed that this hutia was extinct, Curtiss wrote the Smithsonian that "it is well known to the country people of the region, who have dogs trained to catch it."

A near relative in the Dominican Republic is known to live in hollow trees, and dogs are trained to drive it out. The Haitian type is believed not to be a tree dweller, owing to the structure of its body.

It is quite closely related to the long-extinct "giant rat" of the West Indies, which probably became extinct about the time the first white men arrived in the New World. Its remains are common in cave deposits and Indian kitchen middens, and it may have been an important Indian food.

New Device Halves Time, Cost to Turn Out Pilots

NEW YORK—By means of a $250,000 electronic devise called a Dehmel flight simulator, pilots can learn to fly the new double-deck $1,500,000 stratocruisers in less than half the usual time and at half the usual cost.

This disclosure was made by Capt. Sam Miller, chief pilot for Pan American Airways' Atlantic division, in reviewing his first six months' experience with the device.

Veteran pilots who ordinarily would have to spend ten and a half hours in the air to learn to fly the new double-deck $1,500,000 stratocruisers now spend less than five hours in actual flight.

The device makes pilots experts in handling problems they are never likely to meet in years of actual flying.

Animals Subject to Two Ailments Common to Humans

LINCOLN, NEB.—Humans never suffer from diseases like rabies, hoof-and-mouth disease or strangles common only to animals, but animals are subject to at least two diseases generally believed to be common only to humans—"hives" and hay fever.

The American Foundation for Animal Health reports the same types of antihistamine medicines often successful in treating these conditions in man now are being used with pets and farm animals.

Upon coming in contact with or eating certain plants, the foundation said, horses and cattle commonly founder, or develop nettle rash or a severe form of sore mouth.

The foundation warned use of antihistamine drugs must be carefully supervised. Improper dosage may result in death, it said.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By Lawrence Gould

Need a writer ever "run out of ideas"?

Answer: He's at least more apt to do so if he makes a bugbear of it, since anxiety blocks the creative impulse. But in general, if you are alert to what's going on around you, you can hardly help receiving new impressions faster than you can put them on paper. And while the most of these will follow a fairly familiar pattern, there will always be new "angles" from which to approach the oldest and most hackneyed subject. Everyone repeats himself occasionally, but if your mind keeps on growing each fresh repetition will be an improvement.

Is the fear of being "different" neurotic?

Answer: Neither more nor less so than the feeling that you MUST be different at all costs. For in either case your way of living is determined by that of your neighbors, not by what you yourself want or prefer. A man who must wear a coat in summer because everybody else does is in less neurotic than the has to go without a co in order to "show h dence." For there is advantage in not maki conspicuous in ways t hostility or ridicule fro

LARRY PARKS, who just finished "Jolson Sings Again" at Columbia, shares a fondness for old songs with his wife, Betty Garrett. They have one of the largest collections of player piano rolls in America, also a foot-operated pianola. So a party at the Parks' means that everybody makes a beeline for the rumpus room; with cider and pretzels for refreshment, and Larry pumping the pedals, they lift their voices in old favorites like "Sheik of Araby," "Whispering" and "Moonlight Bay." Incidentally, "Jolson Sings Again" is reported to be even better than the film that made Parks famous.

Radio's Galen Drake has finally given in to the demands of his listening audience; for the first time in his career, he has given a magazine permission to use his picture, (full color, at that!) with an exclusive story. His multitude of fans will be happy to learn that "This Is Galen Drake" will appear in the September issue of Radio Mirror Magazine.

For the first time in his life Danny Kaye is thinking of taking a nice, long rest. In "The Inspector General," at Warners', he wrestled with professionals, had several sword fights and performed assorted acrobatics.

Columnists are always reporting that Howard ("Sam Spade") Duff is engaged to somebody. The weirdest "engagement" was to a stage actress, Eloise Jansen—Duff didn't know her, finally found the columnist had invented her.

Betty Hutton was just recovering from one injury — she broke a finger while rehersing a dance routine with Fred Astaire for "Let's Dance" — when she broke a toe while playing on the beach at Malibu with her daughters.

The Fiction Corner ★ TRAPPER JOE ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

THE BLIZZARD, first of the season, was roaring fitfully when Trapper Joe climbed over the river bank and approached his cabin. Midway across the intervening clearing he stumbled over something and almost fell. The something, he discovered, was a man, almost buried by snow, unconscious.

Trapper Joe rolled the stiff form over and saw a huge pack strapped to the man's back. He grunted, picked up pack and man, and carried both into his cabin.

Trapper Joe examined the pack and found that it contained five pouches, each filled to capacity with gold dust. There must, he reflected, be thousands of dollars worth.

PRESENTLY the blanket-swathed figure stirred. Trapper Joe stared down at it solemnly. The unconscious man's eyelids fluttered, then opened.

"Take it easy, pardner," said Trapper Joe. "You're coming around."

The man stared at Trapper Joe, then sat bolt upright.

"Where am I?" he demanded. your cabin, but——"

"What happened? I remember setting out for the Post. It began to snow. I kept falling. Then I saw

"But you didn't have the strength to make it. I found you almost dead. I lugged you back here and nursed life back into your body. You're safe, and so's your gold."

"Sure. Some of it spilled out. You must have made a rich strike."

"I did. A pocket. I stayed too late in order to get it all out. My name's Tim McLeary." He eyed Trapper Joe curiously. "Kinda queer having this happen; waking up and finding myself alive and—up and finding myself alive and—"

Trapper Joe nodded. "You're wondering why I didn't leave you there to die and appropriate the dust, eh? Well, I considered it Then thought of what a chance I'd be taking. I thinks: When he wakes up he'll see I saved his life wakes up he'll see I saved his life.

McLeary brushed a hand across his face. His lips tightened. "I get it. You were scared to snitch the stuff. You figured I'd give you half of it on account of you saved my life.

"You're a cool one all right." McLeary twisted his thin lips into a grin. "Mebbe it was good figurin' at that. Mind if I take a sleep? I feel sorta weak."

"Drink some more soup first. Warm you up inside."

OUTSIDE the storm beat and tore at the tiny cabin. Presently Trapper Joe slept. Time passed. The storm diminished in volume, died. The figure near the fire stirred, sat up, listened to Trapper Joe's deep breathing and reached for a stick of firewood.

Trapper Joe returned to consciousness to find himself bound in his bunk. He struggled at his bonds.

After an intermittently long time he freed himself, chafed his wrists, flexed his muscles. Then he built up the fire. There was a note above the mantel. "Sorry, old timer, I've been dreaming of a strike like this for years. I'm young and can enjoy the money. There's not enough for two. I've tied you lightly and left enough supplies to see you through the winter. Thanks for the lift."

Trapper Joe folded the note and put it in his shirt pocket.

"Time to celebrate," he said aloud. "'Sides, I'll be wantin' to travel light so's I can reach the Indian village in three days' time."

Before sitting down to his feast he lifted a loose board behind the chimney and hoisted up a gallon can. He opened the can and his eyes lighted at sight of the yellow gleaming particles of dust there.

He chuckled and replaced the can. "Well," he soliloquized, "the kid had a chance to play fair, and didn't take it. If he'd been willin' to split I'd have come half way. It'll take him a week to reach the post. By that time I'll be safe and sound.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Operation to Relieve Intense P

By Dr. James W. Barton

I HAVE WRITTEN several times about the operation of cutting certain nerves supplying parts of the brain that have to do with excessive grief and anxiety.

All that was first expected of this operation, lobotomy, was that it would lessen undue grief and anxiety.

Recently I wrote a number of cases in which following lobotomy, the patient was able to return to home and be of some help there, and of cases where the patient was able to resume his former occupation.

One of the ailments that causes men and women to become drug addicts or commit suicide is what is called "intractable pain," pain that cannot be relieved. That this terrible pain can be relieved by this same operation, lobotomy, is now stated in the "Journal of the American Medical Association" by Drs. John B. Dynes and James L. Popper, Lahey Clinic, Boston.

"Every physician has in his practice patients who experience pain which is unrelieved by the usual measures and great physical and mental suffering result."

These patients are ofte to their families becaus to drugs, or mentally u

Lobotomy for the reli cases was performed on at the Lahey Clinic. Of nine had cancer which w ing throughout the body, nine had various other causing pain. Before lobotomy, despite the fa patients had been treate or by local operations, surgical treatment alike to relieve the pain.

The patients were not lieved of pain by lobotom were relieved of excessi and concern. "In patient dying of cancer there c doubt that their remai are more free of mental and happier than they would have been."

When we remember patient had been treate known methods—medical gical—without getting re physical and mental pain, may well become the op choice to relieve intracta cal and mental pain.

Instinct Is Guide of the Great

By GRANTLAND RICE

WHICH IS THE MAIN factor in sport competition — direct thought or the subconscious mind? How much success belongs to quick brain work and how much to intuition?

Grantland Rice

To help settle this issue, we called in the patriarch of brain waves, the same being John Kieran, who in his day was a high - class competitor at Fordham and who needs no further comment when it comes to a matter of brain action.

"The subconscious mind," according to Kieran, "does most of the work. The brain can't work with the speed needed to handle too many situations. For example a jockey has less than a fifth of a second on many occasions to decide whether he must go inside or stay outside. A Ted Williams will often wait until the ball is within 15 feet of the plate before he decides to swing—or not to swing. That is another fifth-of-a-second decision.

"Some brains, of course, work faster than others. But there are few that can work with split-second speed in making a decision. Subconscious action takes over or intuition or whatever you want to call it."

Both Eddie Arcaro and Ted Atkinson bear out this angle in regard to racing.

"I'll be moving up," Arcaro said, "and suddenly there's an opening to the left. I haven't time to size things up. Your intuition acts for you—and sometimes your intuition can be wrong. You can use your brain in mapping out a race in advance. But once you get into fast action, you've got to depend a lot on your reflexes or your intuition, which are the products of experience. In fact, I think this is where experience counts most. I mean in giving you the right intuition."

Boxing follows the same line. A younger fighter, in his prime, sees an opening and punches at practically the same instant. Or he sees a punch coming and ducks. Later on, he is just as smart. His brain is just as good as it was years before. But his subconscious action has slowed down, his intuitive action has gone rusty—so he punches for the opening too late or he doesn't quite duck in time.

Joe Louis, for example, had as good a brain in 1948 as he had in 1938, but though he kept catching Walcott in 1948, his subconscious reactions were too slow to land a knock-out punch.

Applied to Golf

"Now golf is a game," J. Kieran continued, "that should be played with a subconscious mind entirely. But it isn't. The ball isn't moving so there is the deadly temptation to start thinking— what club to use, etc. This is when the trouble begins.

"Remember that round Watts Gunn had in the amateur at Oakmont in 1925? I think Watts lost the first five holes, I know he was being murdered. Then suddenly he seemed to settle into a trance and he won the next 15 holes—15 holes in a row.

"I talked to him later and Watts admitted he didn't remember a thing that had happened in those 15 holes.

"'I never thought of anything,' he said. 'I just kept swinging the club head. I was in a sort of mental groove.'

"There was certainly no conscious effort in anything Gunn did. He went sailing through until he met Bobby Jones in the final round where neither conscious nor subconscious effort was of any use.

"Direct thought or brain action has certainly wrecked many a round of golf," Kieran continued. "If a fellow could just step up to a ball and think about nothing at all as he swung the club head, scores would take a terrific dive.

"Here's another thought along these lines," Kieran reported. "I've known a lot of baseball and football players. Many of these—not all of them—I wouldn't call too smart. I wouldn't say their brains were too agile, although they had their share of good sense. I've seen these fellows make few mistakes. They were generally where they should have been. Some instinct seemed to guide them. I know it wasn't sharp thinking.

Trying to Think

"On the other hand, I've known extremely intelligent players (I mean intelligent off the field) who always seemed to be pulling some boner or doing something wrong.

Expanding Market Seen For Dog Food Market

Some idea of the tremendously expanding market dog foods now represent for agricultural products can be seen from a recent report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The bulletin shows that over 50 million more cans of dog food were produced under their inspection in the first six months of this year than in the comparable period of 1948.

While this report covers only the the first grade foods that meet U.S.D.A. specifications and are certified by them, the figures for one pound cans packed in the six month period still runs nearly 175 million. Since this grade of dog food is required to have not less than 30 per cent meat food content and to use only clean fresh grains, it represents a considerable market for both the stock and grain grower.

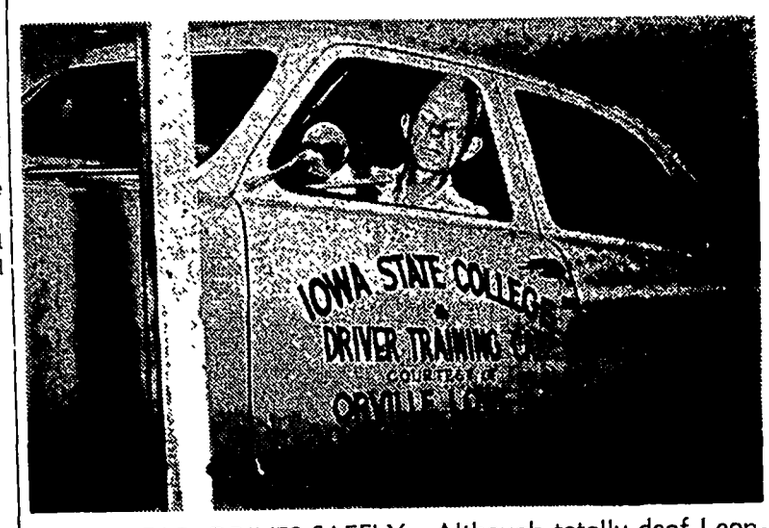
DEAF KLEMME ISC STUDENT AMONG SAFEST ON HIGHWAYS



CAN'T HEAR, DRIVES SAFELY—Although totally deaf Leonard Lau (in car above), of Klemme, is described by ISC authorities as probably one of the safest drivers on the highways Lau hopes to become an instructor in driving for other deaf persons. He is shown maneuvering driver training car into simulated parking area at Iowa State College driver training grounds.

RETURNED FROM 5,000 MILE TRIP THROUGH THE NORTHWEST

Mr. and Mrs. Rhine Schlawin and son Virgil and Mrs. Fred Etchen have returned from a 5,000 mile trip through the Northwestern States, of Minnesota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana, North and South Dakota.

They visited such interesting places as the Columbia River Drive, Grand Coluee Dam, Pacific Ocean and enjoyed the fine fruit in the Yakima Valley where they ate peaches, pears, apples, grapes and prunes.

They found scenic beauty in both the Cascade and Rocky Mountains and mountain flowers were in full bloom. They encountered a lot of snow in the mountains. On the coast the ladies enjoyed wading in the Pacific ocean. They all enjoyed the fine sea food along the coast.

At Intake, Montana, they visited Caroline Greiman, called on the Henry Ollerman family at Bloomfield, Montana; and the Elmer Katters at Independance, Oregon, all of whom sent regards to folks around here.

They enjoyed the entire trip but thought Iowa is still the best state in the land.

BACK FROM 5,500 MILE TRIP TO NORTHWEST AND WEST

Mrs. Ida Ridder and son Walter, of Leland, and Frank Ward of Klemme returned home on Saturday from a 5,500 mile trip which took them to the West Coast.

Leaving here August 17th they visited the Beier relatives at Beltrami, Minn. and then drove through Glacier National Park in Montana, enroute to Colville, Wash. for a visit with the Emil Kohlstedt family.

Leaving Colville they drove along the Columbia River and visited the great Coulee Dam. Their next stop was at Waterville Washington where they visited with Elwyn Ridder, who was workng in the great wheat fields where they hook several large combines together and can cut a swath 76 feet wide. Elwyn operates one of these machines.

They then drove on to Wenatchee, Wash., and the Yakima fruit country and west to Portland, Oregon and followed the coast on highway 101, to San Rafael, Cal. for a visit with the Dwight Johnston family. (Mrs. Johnston is Frank Ward's daughter.) Mr. Johnston showed them the sights around San Francisco.

On their return trip home they followed highway forty through Nevada, Utah, Colorado and took time out to visit the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado. They visited the Virgil Lamm family at Dailey and then came on home through Nebraska and into Iowa.

Ames—Although totally deaf, Leonard Lau, a native of Klemme, is probably one of the safest drivers on Iowa highways.

Lau completed the driver training course at Iowa State college this summer, and he hopes some day to become an instructor in driver training for deaf pepole.

A graduate of the Iowa School for the Deaf, Council Bluffs, and of Gallaudet College, a national college for the deaf at Washington, D. C., Lau has been working toward a master of science degree in industrial education at Iowa State

He has taught at state schools for the deaf in Washington, Lauisiana and North Dakota.

According to Doctor A. R Lauer, professor of psychology and head of the driver training program at Iowa State, deaf persons can become equally as good drivers as those with full capacities. Lauer points out that the deaf often are better drivers because of heir handicap. They are apt to stay more alert at the wheel, and to use their other senses to more than compensate for lack of hearing, Lauer says.

The department of psychology at Iowa State reports that Lau is the first totally deaf person to graduate from the driver training course there with the object of teaching in a training program. Durng lectures at the college Lau was seated next to a student who took full and legible notes which he could copy. If he wished to ask a question, he wrote it on the blackboard.

Select under-ripe apples and grapes. Wash and pick over. Add just enough water barely to cover the fruit and boil until soft. Mash and pour into a jelly bag to drip. Do not squeeze. Measure juice and let boil for 5 minutes. Add sugar (¾ cup sugar for 1 cup of juice) and cook until a drop jells on a cold plate, or until two drops come off spoon at the same time. Pour into sterile glasses and seal with paraffin at once.

Delicious Cucumber Pickles
6 quarts of cucumber slices
1 quart sliced onions
4 large green peppers, cut fine
6 cups vinegar
6 cups sugar
3 teaspoons turmeric
¼ teaspoon white mustard seed
Few whole cloves

Place layers of cucumber slices, onions and green pepper in a crock or large vessel and cover with salt water, made by using ¼ cup salt to 1 quart water. Let stand for 3 hours. Drain. Mix together vinegar, sugar and spices; heat thoroughly but do not boil. Pour over the vegetables and seal in sterile jars.

Raw Tomato Relish
(Makes 6 pints)
1 peck ripe tomatoes
2 cups chopped celery
6 large onions, chopped fine
2 cups sugar
½ cup salt
2 ounces white mustard seed
1 quart vinegar

Peel tomatoes and chop fine. Drain in a bag overnight. Add celery and onions and remaining ingredients to tomatoes. Mix thoroughly and seal in sterile jars. This may be served just as it comes from the jar with sandwiches, or it may be warmed slightly to serve with leftover meats.

Sweet Pear Pickles
1 peck ripe pears
6 large onions
2 red peppers
2 green peppers
1 cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
3 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Pare and quarter the pears. Slice onions thin and mince the peppers. Combine all ingredients and cook until the pears are tender. Seal in sterilized jars.

Many delicious combinations of jam may be made from two favorite fruits in place of one. A good example of colorful and appetizing jam is the use of peaches and plums, as illustrated here.

Make a man-sized snack by placing corned beef hash slice on a piece of bread and spread with barbecue sauce. Broil until hot.

Hungry men will appreciate a sandwich from the pork roast when it is made by placing slices of the meat on buttered bread, then topped with thin slices of unpeeled, cored apples. Top with a slice of buttered bread and serve with cheese-stuffed celery stalks and potato chips.

Combine canned fruit juices for interesting beverages to serve with sandwiches and cookies. Half and half combination of apricot whole fruit nectar and sweetened grapefruit juice is most refreshing.

is seen in many of the popular colors.

Neck, Shoulder Lines Reveal Changes

Most striking changes noted in the new clothes come in the neck and shoulder lines. You'll be seeing large collars of arresting shapes everywhere on suits, dresses, coats and evening gowns. Forward flying collars and big, pointed cuffs give the clothes the movement for which the silhouette is distinguished.

Normal shoulders are still fashion-wise, but that doesn't mean they look poor or droopy. The secret of the new and exciting line is the "rising" shoulder line, an optical illusion made by flanges and points shooting up from the bodice. Bias-cut shoulder folds and draped halter necklines will be popular.

Other bodice interests include high-laced, out-curving pockets, bows, points and twists of fabric.

Tuxedo treatments are coming to the fore in the new clothes, as well as the shorter length jackets and young-looking, short, boxy coats.

One of the more popular neckline treatments seen thus far is called the two-way closing neckline which may be buttoned high or left unbuttoned to form a collar. This is seen on both coats and dresses.

Design Simplicity

A junior fashion which will be ideal for the girl who goes back to school this fall is this dress designed with classic simplicity. The slanting bodice and skirt buttons on this kelly green New York designed dress are fashion highlights for the season. A high neckline, three-quarter sleeves and slim belt complete the dress.

Be Smart!

If you're buying a bag now, you'll want to choose one which will serve you in the fall, too. A revival which will serve you just as well now as later is the beaded bag or the metal mesh bag that gives a beaded effect. There's newness in their soft, crushed look that looks equally well with summery print dresses or the semi-dark dresses which you'll be choosing for fall. Another trick which you'll appreciate for two-season use is the black bag which is touched with white in place of all-white bags of the earlier summer.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Leopard Doesn't Change Spots

WHY DO HUSBANDS, so often, after marriage, want to change the women they found so completely perfect in pre-marriage days? And why do so many engaged girls speak with assurance of the alterations they expect to make in their mates, once they are sure of them?

Early married life consists, for such couples, in an unending war between Dick's preconceived ideas of what a wife should be, and Betty-Lou's iron determination that he shall abandon all his old ways, friends, amusements, interests.

Whatever threatens successful marriage is of vital national importance in these domestically-shaken days, and this is one of the most serious threats. It seems to me that any mother or father who wants the future of a daughter or son to be somewhat secure, could do worse than warn that daughter or son of this particular danger.

Here are some quotations from the letters of two June brides of 1947; one written from Montreal, one from Tuscon, Arizona, and both with the same complaint.

Two Letters

"Harry," writes Joan, the Canadian wife, "used to come down to Buffalo on business, and our courtship was there. He liked everything I did then, he likes nothing that I do now. My manner with his friends, my occasional loyal mention of my own country, my resentment of his mother's interference, the words I use, my handwriting, my liking to sing now and then, though my voice isn't anything remarkable, my planning of meals—everything! For days I go about with a crushed, dumb feeling of being an utter failure. Sometimes I try to discuss matters with him, but he resents that. He is the master, and what he says goes, and what I say is just annoying and boring."

". . . crushed, dumb feeling . . ."

Now here is the Arizona letter, in part.

"Fred," writes Ethel Nelson, "knew when I married him that he had faults, serious faults. He promised to amend them. He was, and is, a successful businessman, but without any background. He never finished grammar school, rarely reads a worth-while book, knows nothing of music or art, has abrupt gruff manners at times, poohpoohs me when I talk of college for the baby, goes with his old crowd of poker-playing noisy associates, and in no way has shown any inclination to improve, or to take my constant suggestions seriously.

"I hate nagging wives," the letter goes on, "and I try not to nag. But I want Fred to be a gentleman. I want to be proud of him, and have him a man who will never shame or embarrass little Peter. But I make no headway and, on the contrary, Fred is getting into a chronic state of ugliness and resentment, slams doors, eats meals in silence, talks or gulps coffee with a mouth full of food, slings his clothes about, and last week made a real scene when I spoke of the baby's daily bath and said, before several of my friends, that he never had seen the necessity for it himself.

Wants Perfect Marriage

"We love each other," Ethel concludes. "If I didn't love him I wouldn't bother with all this. I keep a spotless house and am a good cook; financially we have always been solvent. But I want my marriage to be perfect, and want your advice about mine."

Well, my advice to Ethel and to Canadian Joan is the same. In the early years of married life, it is salutory to remember that you two girls picked these men to be your mates, and the fathers of your children. You picked them as they were, and they chose you the same way.

To all of us character changes are distasteful, to say nothing of their being extremely difficult. The impluse to improve must come from within, never directly from without.

If his wife is gentle, good natured, appreciative and companionable, Fred can be brought to a condition so improved as to astonish even the rather smug and faultless Ethel. She has only to tell him that he was wonderfully nice with her friends tonight, she has only to say that considering what Fred has made of himself without much schooling, it is not surprising he doesn't feel that Peter—aged less than two years at this writing!—may not need college. If Ethel has any sense at all, she will let the far future take care of itself.

As for Joan. Well, she must remember that between the two great English-speaking races there is a jealous cousinship. Harry is anxious to be proud of his American-born wife Her Americanisms in pronunciation, in customs, her expectation of finding all the freedom in her girlhood in this marriage, cause him constant wincing, constant sensitiveness. If she'll keep that constantly in mind for a year or two, there is nothing in her problem that cannot be solved for the happiness of them both.

Don't Be Sorry For Tall Girls

'Stratoliners' Say They Like Height

NEW YORK—Don't be too sorry for poor Cousin Lucy because she happens to be 6 feet tall. Maybe she likes it that way.

Take 6 foot 2 Catherine Bedell, New York telephone operator and member of the Stratoliner club, who says:

"You're all by yourself up there—and it's nice. When I'm with our crowd I'm really annoyed because I can't see over their heads. A tall girl looks better in her clothes, too—when she can get them. A lot of us make our own."

It isn't any harder for a tall gal to get a job, she asserts, and a lot of medium sized men like to go out with a tall girl.

"How do we like it? Oh, we think it's fine. Still, we do like tall men."

Question 6 foot women and nine out of any 10 probably will tell you they like it that way. And you will note, too, that most of them wear high heels.

And where do you find ten 6 foot women?

There were 200 men and women as tall, or taller, at a convention just held here.

There were delegates from 24 clubs the country over, such as the Kansas City Skyliners, Pittsburgh Star Dusters and a lot of others banded in the American affiliation of tall clubs. Men members must be 6 feet 2; women can get by at 5 feet 10.

All of the elongated fraternity were much concerned with the problems as well as the advantages of their height.

"Being tall is all right, but it has a lot of complications," says Chester Aronson, 6 foot 4 president of the New York Stratoliners and chairman of the convention.

Jesus and the Psalms

Lesson for September 11, 1949

SOME parts of the Old Testament Jesus never once mentioned. Others he quoted again and again. Could this be because some parts were more helpful to him than others? At any rate, the Psalms were one section of his Bible which he often quoted.

Worship

ONE USE Jesus made of the Psalms was in public worship. Whenever he went up to the Temple he would join in singing or in listening to the great choirs singing these ancient hymns. Many of our own best-loved hymns, while not direct translations, are based on Psalms. For example, "Still, Still With Thee" is from Psalm 16; "God Is My Strong Salvation" from Psalm 27; "The King of Love" from Psalm 23; "O Worship the King" from Psalm 104.

Dr. Foreman

In private worship also we know Jesus used the Psalms. One of the Hebrew names for them was "The Book of Prayers," and Jesus, like many another who has loved these Psalms, found in them the natural expression of what was deepest in his heart when he turned toward his Father in heaven.

A striking proof of this comes from the story of Calvary. The cry, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" is a quotation from Psalm 22:1, and "Into thy hands I commend my spirit" is from Psalm 31:5.

Thus, two out of three prayers he uttered in his last moments were from the Psalms. So the reader today, pondering in a quiet moment these immortal poems, either from the printed book or better yet, as Jesus did, from the treasures of memory, may often find in them prayers which seem breathed from his own mind and to which he need only say, Amen.

Truth about God

JESUS also found in the Psalms a revelation of truth. It would be too much to say that Jesus derived his ideas of God from the Psalms. But certainly some of the great teachings about God which we hear from Jesus we can read already in the Psalms.

Jesus did not use the Psalms stupidly, of course. He would never have supposed that you could take just any sentence about God out of some Psalm or other, and quote it as the last word about God.

For instance, during his temptations the thought was suggested to him that he could jump off a high building and not be hurt; had not God promised just that in a Psalm? Now it is true that Psalm 91:9-12 does say that God will keep you from "dashing your foot against a stone" but Jesus knew that does not mean that God will guarantee to keep you out of trouble or harm no matter how foolish you are!

Christ in the Psalms

JESUS found in the Psalms also prophecies. There is a rather thin line between illustration and prophecy.

For instance, when the Jerusalem boys and girls were making such a noisy welcome for him, and the dignified priests were protesting, Jesus quoted Psalm 8:2 in defense of the children: "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise."

Did he mean that the Psalmist had predicted that very occasion, or did he mean that the Psalm expressed a truth always good.

At all events, we do know that Jesus often took a Psalm, or a part of one, as a prophetic picture of himself. He knew himself to be the true King of Mankind, "the Lord's Anointed," as his use of Psalm 110:1 plainly shows.

Yet he also knew that he must pass through suffering to his throne (Luke 24:26). When the leaders of his people rejected him he was not surprised, for he thought at once of Psalm 118:22-23. When he hung on the cross, and saw the soldiers gambling for his clothes, Psalm 22:16-18 would surely come into his mind.

And can we doubt that in his last agonies, one who knew the Psalms so well would not have remembered also the later lines from the same prophetic Psalm? It begins with the tragic question—Why? But it rises to a song of triumph—"When he cried unto him, he heard!"

May a Convicted Killer Get a New Trial— On a Mere Technicality?

A young man was arrested on a charge of murdering his sweetheart. The trial lasted for several days, finally drawing to an end late Saturday afternoon. Anxious to wind up the case, the judge immediately began giving his instructions to the jury. He talked, and talked, and talked — until 10 minutes after midnight! Now it so happened that the local law prohibited any court sessions on Sunday. When the jury brought in a "guilty" verdict, the convicted youth filed an appeal on the basis of this 10-minute overlap into Sunday morning. And the court — very reluctantly — granted him a brand new trial. The judge said it was just as wrong to break the rules by 10 minutes as by 10 hours!

MAY BE WISE TO SELL HOGS LIGHT

Possibly More Profits This Year If They're Not Kept Too Long

Farmers may be ahead by selling hogs at lighter weights this fall, Sam H. Thompson, agricultural economist at Iowa State College, said this week.

Reason for this statement is the big pig crop coupled with an apparent weaker demand for meat, compared to a year ago. Thompson said that these factors combined suggest the advisability of marketing at 200-220 pounds rather than feeding to much heavier weights, even though there is plenty of feed on farms.

May Depress Prices

He recognizes that some individuals may be able to feed to heavier weights at a profit. However, with a fairly large crop of hogs, should many feed to heavier weights the additional meat and lard produced might be a burden on the market and unduly depress prices at some part of the season, according to Thompson.

To put 50 pounds of gain on a 200-pound hog requires about 4.5 bushels of corn or its equivalent in other feed. It takes about 4.6 bushels of corn to put 50 pounds of gain on a 225-pound hog, 4.8 bushels on a 250-pounder, and 4.9 bushels on a 275-pound hog.

Break-Even Prices

Feed is about four-fifths of the total costs involved in raising hogs, according to Thompson. Figuring corn at $1.00 per bushel and hogs at $20 per hundred pounds, he gives these required break-even prices for putting an additional 50 pounds on different weight hogs. Putting 50 pounds on 200-pounders would require $18.25 to break even; 225-pound hogs, a selling price of $18.45; 250-pound hogs, $18.67 ; and for 275-pounders, $18.80.

These break-even prices allow for a 25 percent margin above feed costs. It allows for other costs and risks involved in feeding hogs.

Support Price

Thompson points out that the support price in $18.50 in Sept., through Sept. 24. For the last 5 days of September the support price is $18.25. About October 1st support prices for hogs will be announced for the October-February period. Support prices will decline weekly until they reach a point around $14.50 to $15.00 in December.

USE HORMONE SPRAY TO IMPROVE APPLE QUALITY

With prospects for a large apple crop in all parts of Iowa, many orchardists are preparing to apply hormone sprays in order to lengthen the picking season and give the apples better color and ripeness.

Malcolm N. Dana, horticulturist at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station, says that using these pre-harvest hormone sprays does most good on Sharon, Jonathan and other varieties of apples that are apt to fall early. Hot weather is one cause of apples falling prematurely. When weather is hot near harvest time, spraying is doubly advisable.

Hormone sprays are manufactured by several chemical companies, and are available in either the dust or liquid form. Dana recommends the liquid form. Spray can be applied any time after the first of September. Spray should be applied directly to the fruit and until it is dripping wet. Manufacturer's instructions on mixing the Spray should be followed. Conventional sprayers may be used for applying spray.

According to Dana, hormone spray cause continuing growth in the stem and thus prevents the apple from falling. The spray is harmless to warm-blooded animals.

STORE SOME CORN IN SHELLED FORM

Has Several Advantages Over Storing It In The Ear Specialist Says

Storing shelled corn has several advantages over storing it in the ear, according to C. H. Van Vlack, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

He said this week that farmers faced with the problem of providing additional corn storage space on their farms this fall would do well to consider storing some corn in the shelled form. Especially is it advisable to shell out old corn now under government seal or purchase agreement and reseal it in a tight bin.

Temporary Space

For one thing, Van Vlack has pointed out that on many farms the problem is to find space only for a year or two. For example, some farmers normally have enough corn storge space, but now with the largest carryover of old corn on record plus prospects for a good crop, they need extra space this year. Those farmers are looking for a double-duty building—one that can be use for storing corn this year, and then converted to another use such as a hog house or garage later on. Most of these combination structures will work much better for storing shelled corn than for ear corn, according to Van Vlack.

Cost of storing shelled corn on a per-bushel basis is less than storing corn in the ear. A bushel of shelled corn takes up about half the space of a bushel of ear corn.

Less Spoilage

Too, spoilage and damage from rats is usually less if corn is stored in the shelled form. This is because it is put in a tight building that is rat-proof according to Van Vlack If a hole develops in the bin, shelled corn runs out and a fermer will plug it up. Rat damage in ear corn storage is less noticeable until the crib is shelled

With a tight bin there is no spoilage such occurs around the sides of the cribs during extremely wet weather. Too, dirt and shucks can be removed from the corn during the shelling process.

Van Vlack recommends shelling out cribs of old corn now under seal instead of storing the new crop as shelled corn for these reasons.

Keeping corn in cribs for more than 1 year is hard on cribs. The corn dries out during summer and settles down as it dries. During wet weather later, it takes on moisture and expands, forcing crib walls out. Long-time storage of corn in a crib allows rat infestation to build up.

REMAINS OF NEW WORLD'S FIRST INHABITANTS ARE DISCOVERED

New York,—Extensive remains of a primative group of hunters, who roamed the American west thousands of years before Christ's birth, have been unearthed near Cody, Wyo., it was disclosed in New York Friday

Doctor Loren Eiseley of the University of Pennsylvania said the Wyoming camp site probably dates back to between 5,000 and 12,000 years before Christ. He called the find one of the most important ever made in connection with the culture of the Yuma, the Nomadic group who disappeared centuries ago as a cultural unit. They were among the earliest known inhabitants of the new world.

600 Square Feet

Doctor Eiseley estimated that the ancient camp site covered about 600 square feet of terrace overhanging Sage creek, 5 miles northeast of Cody.

The valuable deposit of tools, weapons and food remains were preserved through the centuries by dusty desert sands, now covering the camp site to a depth of about 10 inches.

The Yuma were foot hunters who roved the high plains of the American west in search of bison. Evidences of their existence have been found before, Doctor Eiseley said, but never so extensively or in a deposit that may enable scientists to fix more accurately the period in which they lived.

For example, he said, from the bison bones on the site it may be possible to determine whether the Yuma lived before certain types of bison became extinct late in the ice age

No Human Bones

No human bones were found, Doctor Eisley said.

There were numerous "Yuma points," delciaately fashioned flints that apparently tipped Yuma lances It is believed the Yuma did not use bow and arrow.

There is evidence that they tamed animals, even dogs. The bones found apparently were the remains of centuries-old meals. Campfire sites were littered with bones, some of them charred.

The Yuma roamed the same general area of the Folsom men, who it is believed lived about 15,000 years ago. Doctor Eiseley said the Cody site again reveals clearly that the Yuma and the Folsom cultures were distinct.

Both, he belives, may have been the remote ancestors of the latter-day American Indians.

WORLD WAR I VETS TO GET DIVIDENDS

Des Moines, —Approximately 75.000 Iowa veterans of World War I who are carrying permanent government life insurance policies will share in a $40,000,000 dividend payment being made by the veterans administration in Washington this week.

This estimate was made Thursday by veterans administration officials in Des Moines.

There is no connection between this dividend plan and the dividends on insurance for which World War II veterans now are making application. The dividends to World War II veterans will be paid in Jan.

The only World War I veterans who will get dividends are those who converted their term insurance into permanent policies prior to January 1, 1944, and kept them in force through December, 1948.

The dividends will run from a few dollars to several hundred dollars depending upon the amount of reserve behind each policy. It is estimated that Iowa veterans will collect approximately $1,000,000.

. . . THE 'STARCH' OUT OF PHILLIPS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

'NO STARCH'

"THEY STARCHED my shirts again," we said to the wife.

"Well, don't say it so accusingly," she replied. "I didn't do it. It's the laundry."

"But the laundry has been told again and again not to put any starch in 'em," we said.

"I'm all in from repeating the word 'No starch' to it," said the wife.

"What does the laundry say?"

"It says 'O. K.! No starch.' "

"And back it comes starched in technicolor, with the collars on summer shirts as hard as lawn-mower blades, and the cuffs so hard you have to button them with a chisel and hammer. Why don't we change laundries?" we moaned.

"Hah!" snorted the missus, "Change 'em and what do you get?"

"More starch," we suggested.

"Exactly! The laundries or the laundry workers are in a great national conspiracy in restraint of soft collars and cuffs. They are in a secret society dedicated to the use of starch. Their motto is 'You'll take starch and like it!' "

We resolved to investigate. We spread our shirts among different laundries. Our routine was the same at each laundry.

"Does this laundry do shirts without starching them?" we asked.

"Certainly. All you gotta do is specify you don't want no starch, mister."

"I so specify. Do you want it in writing?"

"Naw. I'll put a note on it 'no starch.' Then it goes through and comes out with no starch."

"I've been putting notes 'no starch' on my shirts for years," we said.

The laundryman looked surprised. "I can't remember that," he said. "Are you sure they came back starched?"

"Look at my neck. You think those red circles are from rope?" we demanded.

"Some laundries are careless, you know how it is. With us when a customer says no starch he gets no starch. We got a system."

"What is it?"

"We have a starch department and a no-starch department. All the stuff that don't want starch goes to the starch department. Also we got a starch superintendent and a no-starch superintendent. And on top of that we got starch and no-starch classification clerks and inspectors. Here's something else, we don't use much starch anyhow, even if you ask for starch."

"So these shirts will come back with no starch then?"

"You can take my starch—beg pardon—my word for it."

"Positively no starch!"

"Positively!"

The laundry came back in a few days. We felt confident and carefree as we opened it. Then we leaped through the second story window.

"I know," called the wife, looking out, "Starch!"

"Starch," we admitted, crawling from the shrubbery, cut and bleeding.

VIDEO AND EDUCATION

College courses by television are now being announced. We suppose the grads will win iceboxes instead of diplomas.

And get minkskins instead of sheepskins.

—*—

We can see it all now . . . the baccalaureate by Howdy Doody.

—*—

But a lot of people have felt that our educational system flickered too much as it is.

—*—

Personally we feel that education hasn't been dramatic enough. A jackpot could have helped us through ancient history. And we are positive that we would have done better under our professors if they had introduced puppets in the Latin, French and mathematics courses.

—*—

We just had to get an education, such as it was, by study. We had no outside aerial.

—*—

But now we are entering an era when ignorance may be easily attributable to the fact that the set was connected up poorly and lacked a "booster."

Your education may become a little dependent on fuses and you may find that your low scholarship resulted from a small screen.

Ira Hirschbaum, former education and now a video official, makes the announcement that Hunter college will make the first tests in video education, with history the first televised subject. Lectures on historic events will be synchronized with the picture, the cash prize on the commercial.

The Everlasting Arms

AROUND me and about me and beneath me,
Closer than breathing, closer than any friend,
The everlasting arms draw near to shield me,
To comfort and to keep me to the end.

Earthly arms grow weary in their holding,
Earthly arms may fail the weight they bear,
But oh, these everlasting arms, enfolding,
Have never one brief moment failed me there.

I wake each morning in their blessed keeping,
I rise to serve, or wait his blessed will.
Life passes—whether waking, whether sleeping,
God's everlasting arms will hold me still.

What Value Restocking?

The Missouri game and fish division makes out what this writer believes is the most logical and graphic summation in years of the pros and cons of the eternal controversy concerning the value or lack of it of restocking streams with fish.

Missouri streams are enormous fish hatcheries of their own, capable of producing billions of fish fry annually. A female smallmouth bass, for instance, spawns from 2,000 to 10,000 young a year If only

"Putting more fish in such watery deserts is like turning cattle out on a concrete highway . . . to graze."

50 per cent of all Missouri smallmouth successfully spawn, the yearly potential toward reproducing their own kind would run into billions.

"We certainly don't catch these billions of fish," says the fisherman, "so, what happens to them? What happens to the fish that are reared in the hatcheries and turned loose in our streams?"

So, Mr Fisherman. Look about you. Here is a landowner turning too many cattle in on an already overgrazed pasture. Here is another overcutting the steep slopes of his woodlot, trying to convert it into pasture Here is still another burning off his land; another cropping on steep slopes that are bound to wash.

Think of the floods too Many of these terrific floods come about the time fish are spawning With tons of rocks and earth churning on the bottoms of our streams, it isn't hard to imagine what happens to spawns fry and fingerlings

Then, on those glittering August days when the stream is too low, the fisherman plods wearily down miles of gravel bar and "shallows" between fishable holes of water. Few fish can live in those barren shallow stretches where food and cover are gone.

"Putting more fish in such watery deserts," one conservationist says, "is like turning cattle out on a concrete highway or into Death Valley to graze."

Stocking is not the solution to better fishing in a sick stream The only answer here is to cure the conditions which lowered its fish-producing capacity in the first place—in controlling erosion and burning and pollution and silting It's going to take time to restore our streams.

Boon to Sportsmen

This Coleman floodlight lantern is the answer to the outdoorsman's prayer, as it provides concentrated light for fishing, hunting and outdoor night jobs. This writer is particularly intrigued with the reflector and "Koolgrip" handle attachment which makes the lantern unbeatable for focusing on particular spots or areas. The bait fisherman will find it a "must" in his equipment.

Don't Misjudge Carp

Although much maligned and disdained as a food fish, the carp, if taken from running streams and moderately deep lakes during the cool seasons of the year, has a delicate flavor superior to some of the popular game fish.

This is the collective opinion of thousands of anglers who seek the carp and who regard it as good table fare. It is true that this specie of the rough fish does taste muddy if taken in the hot months

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Wishing Make

By Lawrence Gould

"Is it morbid to feel you are useless"?

Answer: It is certainly not morbid to wish you could be of more use to your family and to society, provided you don't just "take it out in wishing," for you cannot enjoy normal self-esteem unless you feel that you are of value to somebody besides yourself. But there is a morbid or neurotic sense of uselessness which is mainly an expression of self-pity, since it grows out of a feeling that you've never been appreciated or given a chance to show your real worth. You may also ignore minor ways of being useful because your pride demands big ones.

Can delinquency be foreseen?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Kate Frienlander, British child psychiatrist. PRETTY ROSEMARY PETTIT thinks she's just like any American girl; had no exotic birthplace for Hollywood to make a fuss about—she was born in Tulsa, Okla. She went to high school and college, one year, in California, where she lives. She had to go to New York for Hollywood to discover her and take her back for bits in Michael Curtiz productions.

ROSEMARY PETTIT

She returned to New York to study, went back again, really ready for films this time. You will see her in Warners' "The Lady Takes a Sailor," and later in Curtiz' "Young Man with a Horn," for which she's just gone west, after a season in summer stock at Princeton, N. J.

Paul Henreid, seen currently in Paramount's "Rope of Sand," will be long remembered for his appearance as the family counselor on "The Second Mrs. Burton" August 31. Vitally interested in doing what he can to further the conquering of polio, Henreid's own experiences when a member of his family was struck by the disease gave him touching material for his talk.

Joan Crawford's six-year-old son, Christopher, believes that his mother is the bravest woman in the world. So does Joan. During her vacation in the wilds she caught six lizards for him, put them in a box and brought them home.

Helen Hayes returns to radio's "Electric Theatre" Oct. 9 in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street"; meanwhile she and her daughter Mary are doing a new play for six weeks in summer stock; if good enough they will do it on Broadway. 12-year-old Jamie, last member of the family to become an actor, has appeared in "The Corn Is Green"—once in a part all written in Welsh!

The Fiction Corner ★ ON BUSINESS ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

WHEN DOUG PRINGLE signed a contract to illustrate stories for Midweek Fiction magazine at a figure that surpassed any amount he had earned in the rather uncertain past, he felt that he had reached a milestone in his career.

"Now," he declared to his wife, Aggie, "we can begin to have a few of the things we've been doing without for the past seven years."

"And the first thing we'll have" Aggie told him, "will be a nice little camp on Spur Lake where you can work amid surroundings that you love and where, accordingly, things will be easier for both of us."

"The camp," he told her gravely, "will come immediately after Mrs. Pringle has replenished her wardrobe."

It turned out that Aggie could have her new clothes and they could purchase the camp and not feel too extravagant. They went up to Spur Lake the following week and talked to a real estate agent. They had been there many times before. They knew just what they wanted for a camp site and where they wanted it. That afternoon the real estate agent made the easiest sale he'd transacted in years.

The Pringles sat down and made up a schedule of guests for weekends. They wanted to have company. This was the first time they had lived in a place big enough to hold guests conveniently. They were eager to share their possession.

And so two weeks later the first guests arrived. Doug and Aggie slept in the work room and everything was fine. All hands had a swell time. The guests departed in high enthusiasm. In fact, their enthusiasm apparently bubbled over, for in the middle of the following week some friends dropped in who had "heard so much about the cute little camp the Pringles had bought." Aggie and Doug asked them to stay over night and they did.

The summer hadn't progressed very far when Doug decided they ought to turn the present workshop into another bedroom.

"I'll build a studio for myself down by the lake. It seems there are a lot of people who are just dying to see our cute little camp. Gosh! After all, I'm a working man."

It's fun having guests, though," Aggie said.

"Sure," Doug agreed

So the Pringles built a studio for Doug, a rather attractive building that added to the general outlay. He moved into it with all his equipment—and the next week-end Aggie moved in with him.

In August the Hollands arrived. The Hollands were bores. Steve Holland belonged to Doug's golf club. They were friends of some of the Pringles' friends.

HOWEVER, they arrived and Mrs. Holland spied the studio and wanted to look at it. Aggie smiled wearily. She was getting used to this sort of thing. She led them down to Doug's workshop and Mrs. Holland peeked inside.

"Why, there's no one there!" she exclaimed.

Aggie nodded. "Doug's away. On business."

The Hollands were disappointed at not being able to see the artist at work, but there was nothing they could do about it. They departed shortly after.

At dinner time Doug came home. He was in high spirits.

"I've found just the place I wanted. A room right in the heart of Goodwin's business district. Plenty of noise and dust—a place where a man can do a real day's work without being bothered."

Aggie smiled fondly.

"The Brants are arriving tomorrow."

"Swell!" said Doug. "Show them the works and tell them I'm away—on business."

KEEPING HEALTHY

Teeth May Cause Heart Disea

By Dr. James W. Barton

SOME YEARS AGO an old boyhood friend called me up and asked me if there was anything that could be done for his 12-year-old boy who had heart disease. He told me that his family doctor had called in a heart specialist who said nothing could be done.

However, since I was an old friend he thought I might know of something. I had to admit that in this type of heart disease, inflammation of the lining of the heart, endocarditis, once the inflammation was under way, rest was the only known treatment. The boy died a few days later.

Today physicians are not helpless in the treatment of endocarditis, now that we have penicillin and streptomycin which render these dangerous organisms harmless. These organisms, as do many other dangerous organisms, the streptococci, start in infected teeth and tonsils. Thus, instead of all these cases of endocarditis dying, the majority of them are saved. Unless they allow infected teeth, tonsils or other parts to remain in the body they will live many years.

Because an inflammation in the lining of the heart ca damage to the valves in a short time, hea advise proper dosage into a vein at once. mycin is also effecti to streptomycin occur tients so penicillin is of choice.

Teams Fall for Michigan 'Pitch'

By GRANTLAND RICE

ISN'T THERE some way someone can spill him?
Isn't there some way one can stop him?
Isn't there some way one can kill him?
Isn't there some way one can drop him?
Isn't there some way someone can show him
He should be placed in his last, final rest?
Isn't there someone—one who might know him
To prove without doubt he's the world's greatest pest?

Summer, Smoke and Football

Mr. Tennessee Williams, an eminent dramatist, some time ago delivered an epic known as "Summer and Smoke." We'll make this epic "Summer, Smoke and Football."

Grantland Rice

For it suddenly occurred to us that football was just around the corner and before any could guess what had happened, Michigan would be throwing passes again and beating teams 20 to 0 that were just about as good as Michigan. Which proves that it still pays to be smart. Michigan is always smart. And as long as the forward pass is legal, Michigan will continue to throw forward passes, dating from Benny Friedman to Charley Ortmann.

Why murder running backs along the ground when you can pick up 55 yards on one pitch? Which brings to mind the thought of what an amazing combination Michigan has in Fritz Crisler, graduate manager, and Bennie Oosterbaan, head football coach.

Crisler, a great coach on his own, adds 15,000 to Michigan's seating capacity—giving Wolverine followers space enough for 100,000. Also Crisler has already sold out his four big games—Army, Minnesota, etc for a 400,000 four-game total. And in the same interim Benny Oosterbaan is starting with 22 lettermen this fall, plus a flock of promising sophomores, to keep the Maize and Blue where it has been for the last two years—at the top.

Red Blaik will have a fine Army team. It will be ably coached and directed. But it will have to be something extra to invade Ann Arbor and return with a Wolverine hide.

Look at that Michigan backfield—Charley Ortmann and Leo Koceski—the brilliant 220 pound Dick Kempthorn — Teninga and Tom Peterson—these and many others.

Will Minnesota with its powerful line finally return to the Big Ten's top? What about the reviving West Coast, determined to slip back into the big picture? California, U. S. C., Stanford, Washington, UCLA and Oregon—all stronger?

What about the revival of the Ivy League, headed by Cornell and Dartmouth? This 1949 season can be the all-time peak.

Great Pitching

In a season of rather shoddy pitching where the average pitcher has only a vague idea of where the plate is located, we took a brief journey through years long under dust to see what past performances had to offer.

In juggling around we ran across a compilation by Tex Oliver known as "Kings of the Mound." In this review from the present to the long ago, Oliver put together some of the most remarkable feats of the game.

For example, he gave highest rating for the year to Eddie Rommel, the umpire, back in 1922. That year Rommel won 27 games and lost 13 with the Athletics, who finished seventh with one of the worst ball clubs on record. Oliver figured that any pitcher who could win 27 games with the 1922 Athletics should wear an Oliver wreath studded with laurel blossoms.

He gives his next rating to Jack Chesbro in 1904, who won 41 games and lost 12. Walter Johnson runs third in 1913, when Old Barney won 36 and dropped only seven with Washington, as remarkable a record as one can recall.

The same is true of Ed Walsh in 1908 with the weak hitting White Sox. Walsh that year won 40, lost 15 and saved nine other games.

Walter Johnson won 23 games with the 7th place Senators in 1911 and Urban Faber won 25 with the 7th place White Sox in 1921.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Meeting is open to public.

HANCOCK COUNTY HIGHLIGHTS

Dental Health

This years' school health program is off to a fine start with one rural school reporting 100 percent return of dental cards as of September 3rd!

Bingham No. 7 pupils and the teacher, Mrs. Clarice Schleuger, Britt, are the first to achieve this standing for the 1949-1950 school year. In 1947-1948 they were the first school to report 100 percent, and in 1948-49 the second school (Liberty No. 3 being first).

In other years the schools reported these results later in the year. We are encouraging that emphasis be placed on the dental program earlier rather than waiting until late in the spring. Hancock County has few dentists and appointments need to be made well in advance. It is impossible to get a dental card signed by a dentist in order to enjoy the dental health activities unless the necessary work has benn completed. We must get an early start.

Crippled Children's Clinic

Crippled Children's Clinic is scheduled for September 23rd, Friday. This is a joint, Winnebago-Hancock, clinic and a staff of State University Hospital physicians see children referred by the family doctor. Children up to twenty-one years with crippling, diabetic, rheumantic heart, and plastic conditions are seen for diagnosis and recommendations for treatment. Hours for registration at the clinic are 8:30-10:30 a. m. and 1:00-2:30 p. m. at the Lutheran Church in Forest City. There is no charge for this service.

4-H BOYS TO AUSTIN

Hancock County will be represented with two 4-H Livestock judging teams at the Annual livestock judging contest at the National Barrow Show in Austin, Minn., on the Morer County fair grounds. This judging will be of practical experience to all concerned. The judging will start at 9:30 a. m., on Wednesday, September 14th and continue until 11:30 a. m.

Those making the first team are David Smith, Delwyn Stromer, Dale Huling, and Cletus Hejlik. The following boys will be on the second team: Ronald Knop, Darwin Wille, Arnold Prohaska and Paul Zrostlik.

Rabbit And Squirrel Season Opens Sept. 15th

The rabbit and squirrel season opens September 15th with a bag limit of six and a possession limit of 12 on these popular game animals. Rabbits may be hunted from 6:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m. The squirrel season closes November 15, the rabbit season January 31, 1950.

COUNTY C.R.O.P. CONVENOR NAMED AT DISTRICT CAMP SEPT 21ST

Hilary Greiman of Garner has been chosen convenor of the Hancock County Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) organization meeting to be held September 21st at Britt.

Mr. Greiman was named to the county post at a district meeting held in Algona on September 7th, at which time State Director Albert W. Farmer of Des Moines discussed the 1949 Iowa CROP program. Last year Iowa led the nation in collection of food and cash for relief of the needy in 22 foreign lands, when the equivalent of 393 carloads of corn was contributed. This year's goal, Farmer said, has been set at 450 carloads. Campaign will take place November 6-13.

District Supervisor Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch of Klemme will explain the CROP program at the Hancock County meeting and the new CROP motion picture "Operation Mercy" will be shown. Church, farm and civic leaders are invited to attend. Sponsors of CROP are Catholic Rural Life Conference, Lutheran World Relief, and Church World Service.

Have your Meat Tender, Delicious, Juicy

Meat Magic

THERE DOES SEEM to be a magical quality about meats which are cooked to juicy, tender perfection. However, it's not a mystic magic which all aspire to, and few achieve. If there is a secret, it's available to all.

It is no secret that you should have a good cut of meat with which to start, if you want to have a delicious cut to set on the table. But once you have a good cut, do cook it properly instead of ruining it.

This latter statement may sound a bit far-fetched, but every day there are thousands of women who go to a great deal of trouble finding a perfect roast, then cook it like a pot roast which is practically stewing it. Then, too, there are other thousands who lose pounds of meat by using old-fashioned methods such as high temperature for "browning" the meat. This is not necessary because meat cooked at constant low temperature will brown enough to be attractive to the most discerning eye, and will not shrink and lose juice as well as waste meat.

If you have a covered roaster, resolve right now to discard the cover and invest in a rack for a roast. A true roast is not, at any point during roasting, cooked with a cover. It should sit on a rack, fat side up, at low to moderate temperature in the oven, to roast perfectly.

How long should a roast be cooked? The most accurate way of determining this is to insert a meat thermometer into the meat as you place it in the oven, and when the temperature has reached its proper point the roast is done. Insert the thermometer through the center, as deep into the meat as possible. You may figure out the time to roast by pounds, but this is not nearly so accurate, especially if you are cooking roast beef to medium rare.

WHEN PROPERLY PREPARED corned beef can be a real delicacy. The meat is muscular, and needs to be cooked long and slowly for real tenderness, without which it is not a delicacy by any manner of means. Here's a novel way to prepare it:

Glazed Corned Beef
6-7 pounds corned beef
¾ cup canned fruit juice
½ cup brown sugar
10 whole cloves
Spiced peaches

Wash corned beef under running water to remove all traces of brine. Cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Drain and replace water. Simmer, slowly, in a covered kettle for 4½ to 5 hours or until meat can be pierced easily with a fork. Add more water if necessary.

Drain meat and place on a rack in a roaster. Pour fruit juice over meat and sprinkle with brown sugar. Stick with cloves. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for ½ hour. Serve, garnished with spiced peaches.

HARD AS IT MAY BE for you to try roasting meat at low and constant temperature, if you've followed other ways in the past, do give it a try. You'll never go back to the old way because the roasts are so much more delicious and juicy. Besides, who doesn't want to get all the edible meat possible for their money?

*Roast Leg of Lamb
Mint Jelly
Browned Potatoes
Cabbage Au Gratin

Butter and Jam
Grapefruit-Shredded Carrot Salad

Butterscotch Sundae
*Recipe Given

Pork Roast with Spicy Sauce
(Serves 6)
Fresh picnic shoulder
Salt and pepper
2 small onions, minced
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon paprika
½ cup vinegar
½ cup water
2 tablespoons catsup

Have picnic shoulder boned and rolled at the market. Season with salt and pepper. Place fat side up on rack in an open roaster. Roast in a moderate oven (350°) until thermometer registers 185°, or allow 40-45 minutes per pound. Combine all remaining ingredients in a saucepan and cook for 5 minutes.

Roast Leg of Lamb
(Serves 8-10)
1 leg of lamb (5 pounds)
1 teaspoon ginger
1 clove garlic, if desired
Salt and pepper
½ cup grape jelly
½ cup water

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Do not remove fell, the thin, papery covering over the meat. Make four gashes in the roast and insert a piece of garlic clove in each of them, if desired. Rub ginger, salt and pepper into the meat. Place in roaster on rack, fat side up, and roast in a slow (300°) oven until thermometer registers 180° for well done lamb. During the last 20 minutes of cooking time, baste the meat with grape juice which has been melted in the hot water. Remove garlic before serving.

Veal shoulder or breast may be stuffed with the following to give a very tasty roast. In roasting veal, use a slow oven (300° to 325° and cook until the thermometer registers 175°, which is about 40 minutes to the pound.

Raisin Stuffing
(For about 5 pound roast)
4 cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup melted fat
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup seedless raisins
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients and stuff lightly into meat, allowing room for expansion. Or, place stuffing to the side of the meat or in a casserole and baste with juices from meat. If you cook stuffing separately, bake for 30 to 40 minutes.

LYNN SAYS:
Know Cooking Tricks For Variety Meats

Seldom-used lamb liver takes on creole style when it's braised with some chopped fresh or canned tomatoes, green pepper and a dash of curry powder. Add some crumbled bacon for flavor.

Pre-cooked sweetbreads may be sauteed in butter with mushroom caps and served on top of toasted triangles of bread with a strip of bacon for an exciting luncheon dish.

Brains, after pre-cooking, make a delicious dish when dipped in seasoned flour, then browned in fat and serve with creamy scrambled eggs.

Hearts need a lot of long slow cooking to make them tender. Veal hearts are especially good when filled with prune stuffing, then braised.

To shorten the cooking time for heart, cut in in cubes and brown in hot fat. Then fold into tomato sauce used for spaghetti and bake the whole casserole for 30 minutes.

Both Yankees and Indians still recall the 11-game deficit Joe McCarthy and his Red Sox wiped out last summer and fall. And certainly McCarthy has never quit in his belief the Red Sox will win.

The Yankees were the most consistent A. L. team until early August, when Red Sox, Indians, Tigers and Athletics were involved in winning spurts and dizzy downward spirals that looked to be headed for oblivion.

There has been more in and out, up and down, good and bad baseball played in the American League than anyone has seen for many summers. And a good part of it has revolved around erratic pitching.

The National League

The Cardinals are even now an old team, largely products of 1941 and 1942, and by next year they will be over the hill. I can't see any other team coming along to fill in the gap, not even the once-challenging Phillies.

The Cardinals or some other club had better collar the Dodgers this summer or it will probably be too late for some years to come. Burt Shotton's young pitching staff and young team is just picking up the seasoning and experience needed and by 1950 will outclass the National league, Cardinals included.

The downfall of the Braves and the Pirates has been one of the jolting factors in the older circuit. Those who know Billy Southworth and have known him for years can't understand a group of ballplayers backing up under his leadership. He has always been too able a leader and too fine a character in the past. This has affected a ball club that never was too hot, even when it won a year ago. The Braves will be too far back of the Dodgers by 1950 to have a look in.

Old and New Ball

Baseball has had at least one mystery we have never been able to penetrate. How was it that in other years, though the pitchers could do anything to a ball except cut it in two, the batting averages of many players were so high?

The hurlers could douse it with spit-ball moisture — they could use emery—they could fuzz it up—they could blacken it—and there were times when they froze it.

Effect of Choke

To the beginner and confirmed wing-shot alike, the subject of shotgun boring is always a fascinating one. Unending are the arguments concerning the respective merits and effect of one bore over another. Except for patterning his gun, the average shotgunner is never able to see what happens as a result of various bores; and, except for photos such as those here, he is never able to see just what happens when a shot charge leaves the muzzle of various-bored barrels.

Thanks to the Winchester arms company, here is presented visually "what happens" when shot charges leave the barrels of the three most popular chokes in use by American scatter-gun enthusiasts.

Despite the diversity of opinion, it is rather well-established that the ideal boring for the upland gunner is improved cylinder, if he is using a single-barreled gun, and improved cylinder and modified choke if he is carrying a double.

The hunter who goes for ducks, geese and doves will be better armed with the heavier gauges and closer-choked guns, although there is a wealth of contradictory matter on this subject.

True . . . it's a small thing, sportsmanship, but any man who isn't a good sport in a competition involving a fish versus a piece of bait surely is a doubtful risk in the bigger gamble of human relationships.

Why Mix 'Em Up?

If you own a farm fish pond, you may have the idea that you should raise various species of fish together in the same pond. Considerable scientific research shows that this is not true.

It is now known that the greatest production in any body of water, principally small ponds or lakes, can be attained only by having the fewest species of fish present.

The largemouth bass and bluegill make an ideal combination for such waters. The necessity of combining a fish like the largemouth with the bluegill is that the latter feeds on small microscopic organisms, while the largemouth in its advanced fingerling sizes and adult forms feeds on the bluegills. This cycle of feeding creates the best fish production in a pond.

So—why mix 'em up? For it really is not advisable to do so. Factors of food and space, plus the idiosyncracies of each individual species of fish as to how it reproduces and lives is important to consider when trying to mix species.

Camouflaged Leaders

Camouflaged nylon monofilament leaders, tippets, coils and spinning lines are now available. They are dyed the color of the rainbow by a special process. The colors are in the order in which they appear in the spectrum, and this feature, according to the manufacturers, aids in making them virtually invisible. The leaders offered come in either level or tapered forms in a wide range of test weights. Spinning liner are made in multi-test sizes.

TEENICIDE

Road Deaths On Uptrend

CHICAGO. — A car full of teenage boys recently drove through a red traffic light in a suburb near here and rammed their automobile at breakneck speed into the machine of an elderly couple. The innocent couple was killed instantly and all of the boys were seriously injured—some perhaps for life.

This accident typifies a new form of mass murder and self-destruction on the highways known as "teenicide."

Teenicide is violent death caused by an automobile driver under 25 years of age, usually the result of recklessness or immature judgement. Last year, teenicide figures soared to 7,500 killed and an estimated 275,000 injured. This shocking total represents 10 times more casualties than our armed forces suffered at Iwo Jima and cost the nation 600 million dollars in cold cash.

Can anything be done to reduce this slaughter? Scores of insurance agencies, automobile associations and other organizations are throwing their weight into the teenicide problem.

Three-Way Problem

James S. Kemper, chairman of the Lumbermens mutual casualty company and a pioneer in highway safety, believes the present death and accident rate can be cut only by changing the frivolous and irresponsible attitude of youth.

"The teenicide problem must be attacked in three ways," Kemper says "First, youngsters must be taught the techniques of safe driving preferably in schools. Second, traffic rules must be enforced and stricter license requirements established. The third approach—and most important — is that parents should not only teach good driving but set an example themselves."

Kemper points out that any teenage boy who sees his parents driving 50 miles an hour in a 40-mile zone—and getting by with it—can almost invariably be expected to drive 60 miles an hour under the same conditions from natural vitality and exhuberance.

According to statistics, a car in the hands of a teen-ager is about twice as dangerous as a car driven by a mature adult. The 16-20 age group is involved in five times as many accidents as the 45-50 group; and sixteen-year-old drivers cause nine times as many accidents as the 45-50 group.

Instruction Effective

High school instruction in safe driving has proved highly effective in reducing teenicide But, unfortunately, only 600 out of 20,000 U. S. high schools offer this course. The American automobile association is prepared to lend staff educators who will train high-school teachers in safe driving

In addition to pouring out tons of safety literature and advertising each year, Lumbermens helps to pay expenses for Northwestern university's traffic institute. This company also sponsored a safe-driving contest among college newspapers last fall.

The National Safety Council is directing much of its highway material toward teenicide These organizations and many others are all eager to help solve this serious problem.

If school boards and parents would cooperate against teenicide, thousands of lives and limbs—not to mention the personal agony—could be saved.

Air Forces Now Making Cupid's Task Easier

WASHINGTON —The air force has made things easier for Cupid.

Sometime ago an official directive stated that would-be bridegrooms in the four lowest pay ranks must obtain consent of squadron commanders before saying "I do."

The air force's position was that the lower-paid soldier—because of the shortage of service accommodations and benefits—should, among other things, prove his ability to carry the financial end of a marriage.

This caused "confusion," according to The Beam, weekly newspaper of Bolling Field air base here. It also caused a decline in weddings.

Under the new order a prospective bridegroom must write a "letter of intent" to the commander. Then the officer "counsels" the enlisted man on finances, housing, transportation, and other matters of armed-services married life. After this it's up to the couple whether they want to be married.

Experimenter Gives Up Neckless-Chicken Try

BYRON, CALIF.—A chicken with no neck would be a bigger boon to white meat lovers than even the new wingless variety. That idea occurred to Lorenzo Armstrong when he read about wingless birds developed in the midwest.

So Armstrong built his hen houses with low roofs. Feeding troughs were breast high. The wire over the chicken runs was lowered. He figured if they kept their heads down the chickens' necks wouldn't grow.

He gave up finally. The chickens just got humpbacked.

G-Man Hoover Scans Career

Has Served Bureau For Past 25 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It was 25 years ago that John E. Hoover, a librarian turned lawyer, took command of a run down police force whose officers could neither make arrests nor carry guns.

In a quarter century, much has happened.

America's criminal glossary has been swelled by such terms as "G-man," "G-heat" and "public enemy." The era of gang warfare as a national characteristic and kidnaping as a big time source of racket money have flowered and faded The careers of "Machine Gun" Kelly, Dillinger and Karpis have boomed in the news headlines and ended at morgue and prison gates.

And along the way, "John E." has become "J. Edgar" and the sad sack police force of May 10, 1924, has blossomed into the pride of a nation which once maintained that law enforcement was a strictly local problem and no business of Washington's bureaucrats.

In honor of his silver anniversary as head man of the federal bureau of investigation, director Hoover reviewed the FBI story and told how it all began.

It is a story of politics, good and bad, of an era that created a new enforcement approach, and of a criminal punk with a machine gun and a smart wife who did a million dollar publicity job for the FBI. Above all it is the biographical tale of an unimportant federal employe who took an unimportant appointment in 1924, and, without changing jobs, has become one of Washington's and the nation's most potent figures.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Is there anything I could put on my aluminum outdoor clothes line so that black smudges can be kept off the clothes? Even after thorough wiping it is possible to rub "black" off the line.

ANSWER: After thorough cleaning, rinsing and drying, give the line a coat of good spar varnish. To get an even coat, saturate a piece of cheesecloth with the varnish and wipe it on the wire. Since there will be a great deal of friction, the varnish gradually will wear off, and the treatment must be repeated. Instead of all this fussing, why not use a good cord clothesline, to be taken down and put away when not in use?

Beautiful Plaids For Fall...

Plaid fabrics are definitely in the wardrobe spotlight this season. So to keep in step with fashion you probably are going to be sewing with some of them.

Plaids present some additional sewing problems, but you won't have any difficulty if you select your pattern with plaid material in mind and match the plaids carefully before you cut, Mrs. Elsie Williams, Iowa State College clothing specialist, points out.

Choose a pattern that has only a few peices. It should have a simple design because you want to emphasize the fabric itself.

Plan Yardage

Buy enough material. You'll need more yardage than the pattern calls for because of the extra material required for matching plaids. Large plaids and those with right and left and up and down patterns require even more yardage. And when the design runs both ways, the pattern pieces must be placed so that the pattern will match up and down as well as from right to left.

Shrink the material if necessary and straighten the ends and the grainline of the fabric before cutting, because some plaids are stretched off-grain when they are manufactured. When working with a plaid that has an up and down and left and right pattern, cut the pattern, one piece at a time, from fabric of single thickness except when a particular piece of pattern is placed on a fold.

Use a double thickness if the plaid pattern is repeated both up and down and left and right. Put a pin through the cloth as various places to be sure that the design on both thicknesses is exactly the same spit. Then pin the two thicknesses together along selvage.

Plaids should usually match at the seam lines of the armseye and sleeve, skirt gores and any vertical seams on the bodice front and back.

Look for a pattern in which the bust fullness is controlled at the waist or shoulder, as an underarm dart makes it impossible to match plaids under the arm.

Check Notches

Mrs. Williams says the easiest way to make sure the plaids will match is to check the notches. If the notch on the sleeve is at a particular point in the design—for example, the top of a black square—then the corresponding notch on the armseye should also be at the top of a black square.

The matched plaids can't slip while you're sewing on the machine if you use "alternation basting" before stitching.

To baste two pieces together, fold the seam allowance under to the wrong side of one piece. Bring this folded edge to the seam line on the other piece—right sides up—and pin.

Using contrasting thread, put the needle through the single thickness of cloth on the seam line but do not catch the folded edge of the other piece. Run the needle along on the wrong side for one stitch basting. Bring the needle to the right side and catch a thread along the edge of the folded piece. Then push the needle through the same spot it came up from before, but this time only through the single thickness.

Repeat these steps across the length of the seam. When finished, turn the two pieces over, right sides together, and stitch the seam line.

USED GREEN, HARDWOOD LUMBER REQUIRES CARE

Some farmers like to use hardwood lumber in construction of farm buildings while it is green because it saws and nails easily, says Dick Campbell, extension forester at Iowa State College.

However, certain precautions should be observed. Newly sawed lumber should be piled so that its own weight will not warp and twist it. Campbell suggests laying it flat on wooden foundations that are built up 18 inches or more and have supports every 2 feet.

Small flat pieces of lumber should be laid crosswise on the pile between the layers of boards to permit air circulation and discourage fungas growth.

Any building made of green lumber needs a good foundation that reaches above ground level. The main part of the frame, including the sills, lower plates and floor joists, should be made of the more durable hardwoods. These may be white oak, burr oak, black walnut or red elm. Rafters, sheathing, roof boards and partitions may be made of less durable lumber.

In construction, Campbell recommends special nails made for use in hardwood lumber. These nails are blunt-pointed, tempered, and have a twist in them. Blunt points tend to sheai wood fibers as they are driven in, while ordinary nails, which spread the fibers, tend to split the wood. The twist increases holding power of the nails.

Green lumber should never be painted until it is dry, the forester says. This may necessitate waiting at least a year before attempting to apply paint.

KLEMME WON INVITATIONAL SOFT BALL TOURNAMENT

START PIGS SLOWLY ON NEW OR SNAPPED CORN

Farmers having snapped corn on hand from opening fields for pickers and those wishing to start hogs on new corn had better go a little slow at first.

E. L. Quaife, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College, says that abruptly dumping a lot of snapped corn into a pig's ration may cause serious digestive disturbances. Best thing to do is to self-feed some dry oats along with it. The amount of corn fed can be gradually increased as the hogs become accustomed to it.

This same method is a good one to use when starting hogs on new corn any time, Quaife says.

Polio Foundation Asks Dimes and Dollars Now to Pay for Patient Care in Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis Thoroughout Country

With thousands of children and adults in hospitals today as the result of current widespread polio epidemics, and with as many new cases likely to develop in the months just ahead, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has launched a Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive to provide immediate funds for patient care.

The price-tag on this year's epidemic will be so enormous, according to Basil O'Connor, Naitonal Foundation President, that $14,500,000 must be raised to meet the national polio bill.

During 1948, when there were 27,908 cases in the country, the highest number since the record total in 1916, the National Foundation and its Chapters spent $17,000,000 in March of Dimes funds to provide epidemic services, he said. With even more cases this year, it looks as though it may cost $25,000,000 in 1949 to pay for that part of medical and hospital care which families cannot pay themselves.

By the end of August, as much money had been advanced in epidemic aid to National Foundation Chapters whose March of Dimes funds have been exhausted by the cost of care as was sent in all of 1948. The nation's total number of cases now is as large as a full year's toll in previous years, with predictions for at least double that number before December 31.

Furthermore, it is estimated that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be required to continue helping 1948 patients who still need clinic or hospital treatment. The National Foundation gives assistance as long as medical care is necessary, regardless of age, race, creed or color.

The money raised in the Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive will be used exclusively for services to polio patients in all states, Mr. O'Connor said. Contributions may be mailed to POLIO, care of your local Post Office.

"This emergency drive is our only hope of providing care for patients without slowing up scientific research and professional education programs of the National Foundation," Mr. O'Connor explained. "It is an ironical fact that this heavy incidence, severely taxing March of Dimes resources, comes at a time when the nation's leading scientists are more hopeful of finding an answer to the problem than ever before.

"Scientists working under 68 March of Dimes grants at top medical and educational institutions are waging the largest research attack ever attempted against a single disease in this country, supported by March of Dimes funds. We must not interrupt the search for a solution because of lack of funds. We must—and we shall be able to do both jobs—help pay for the care of the stricken while finding a means of prevention or control—if the American people contribute now to carry the work through until the next March of Dimes in January."

Progress since 1938 when the National Foundation was formed, was indicated by Mr. O'Connor as follows:

More than $23,500,000 has gone into a comprehensive research and education program, seeking control of polio and training of experts—virologists, orthopedists, pediatricians, public health physicians, nurses, physical therapists, and other medical workers who make up the professional army now battling the disease in laboratories and hospital wards.

At least $58,000,000 had gone for patient care, prior to 1949, in payment of polio bills families could not meet themselves; in staffing and equipping polio centers for modern care and treatment, in establishing equipment depots in six strategic locations throughout the country from which respirators, hot pack machines, beds, cribs and other emergency supplies can be rapidly dispatched to hard-hit areas.

"We know now that fully 75% of those stricken make good recoveries if good treatment is available," Mr. O'Connor said. "Surely no one would deny a child a three-to-one chance for recovery because of lack of money."

GRADE NEWS

Kindergarten News

Twenty-four smiling kindergarten boys and girls came to school Monday for their first day, Augst 29th. With them they brought their colors and tablet.

We have colored many pictures of animals, and have done a very nice job, considering that many of us have not colored before.

We have learned many new songs and like to sing very much. Some of our favorites are "Lazy Mary" and "Jack and Jill." We like to sing our "Morning Song" and our poems "Ten Little Fingers" and "Pow-der Puff."

We have not done too much more, but after all we are little. We would like to tell you that our room is the middle one on the east side down stairs. You see we moved because we are little and need to be down stairs. We want to welcome all our Mom's and Dad's to come and visit us when ever they like.

—Miss Christ

First Grade News

The first grade has been moved to the northeast room on the first floor. We have twenty-two students this year.

We have had two birthdays already. Daryl Kothenbeutel has treated us to candy bars Sept. 1st on his birthday and Daryl Schlei took us up town for ice cream cones on his birthday last Wednesday.

Patricia Ulrich and Billy Heginger each lost a tooth this week.

We are learning our colors and are reading in our second pre-primer. We are all looking forward to a happy school year.

—Miss Tulp

Second Grade News

Nineteen pupils, ten girls and nine boys, are enrolled in the second grade. We are nicely settled on the second floor after leaving our first floor room to the larger kindergarten class.

We begin each day by giving the pledge to the flag and singing "America" Four "nurses" inspect each row for clean fingernails, etc. When a row is perfect, it gets a star toward winning the health contest at the end of six weeks. Rows 1 and 4 are now ahead. We also write a daily newspaper, first on the board, then on paper which one of us prints to go on our library table. Every week we choose new helpers to lead in saying the pledge to the flag. keeping the library neat, writing the newspaper, cleaning the blackboards, and opening the doors. We like these little jobs and are always eager to be chosen.

One day this week Indians were the subject of our study in music. health, and art. We had also made a fish aquarium on the bulletin board and pasted on it many odd fish which we had made ourselves.

We have a weeky motto which is written on the board. This week it was, "If you want learning, you must work for it."

So far we haven't had any visitors, but we are always happy to welcome anyone to come and watch us work and play.

—Miss Bromes

Third and Fourth Grade News

Thirty-four smiling third and fourth grade boys and girls came into the southeast room on opening day. Since the first morning we have become acquainted with our teacher, Miss Gustafson and realized we have to really work. Reading seems to be our biggest job, but we have health charts and also leaves to collect for science. These are but a few of our activites. If any of our parents wish to visit our room, they are welcome at any time.

—Miss Gustafson

Fifth and Sixth Grade News

The fifth and sixth grade enrollment this year is the largest it has ever been. We have 19 fifth grade students and 17 sixth grade students.

The fifth and sixth grades went on a science trip Tuesday of last week. We watched Mr. Squirrel gather nuts for winter and we gathered weed seeds for our fifth science class.

We have divided our class into four groups for our field trips. Each group appointed their leaders. We made rules which we are to follow and hope that each rule will work out.

Friday both grades boarded the school bus and we journeyed to "Soo Island" where we watched Mexican labor pull and top onions. The onions were then brought in from the field and graded ready to be sent to market.

—Mrs. Schlawin

Seventh and Eighth News

The Junior High has an enrollment of 17 seventh graders and 16 eighth graders. Class officers were elected as follows:

Seventh Grade

President ..... Graydon Barz
Vice President .. Neil Mannetter
Sec.-Treas. ..... Cecil Jacobs

Eigtht Grade

President ..... Jo Ann Burgess
Vice President - Marvin Swyter
Sec.-Treas. ..... Lois Christians

Neil Mannetter treated the class with frost sticks for his birthday on August 31.

The junior high is enjoying the new history and geography books that were purchased for this year's study. We are studying the table of measures in our arithmetic classes.

Our Weekly Motto: "Life is made up. not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things in which smiles and kindnesses and small obligations, given habitually, are what win- and preserve the heart and secure comfort."

—Mr. Juhl

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS NEWS

Freshman Class News

When the largest class in the Klemme High School had been in school for two weeks, our number had increased to 32. The girls have the edge by two. We find our classes interesting; for instance, in a general science expriment we found that a pint of milk was heavier than a pint of cream; in English we have been studying the dictionary; in algebra, parallelograms and percents. In home economics where the girls have been studying, they brought samples of various kinds of deodorants and other good grooming products; in agriculture the boys wrote for pamphlets on hybrid seed corn and decided what kind ranked highest in various tests. These are examples of our class activities.

—Margaret Boland

Last year's green freshmen are now sweet sophomores—at least, that's how we look at it! There are 22 of us, 11 boys and 11 girls.

We begin each day with a study hall, which either wakes us up or gives us that last sleep, followed by Geometry, instructed by Mr. Andreae. We are learning how to make different drawings with our compasses and rulers.

In world History we have had a very interesting lesson about the beginning of man and the development of the world.

Stories and themes have been the top thoughts in Literature, followed by a few thoughts of English and writing for this issue of the school news.

The study of all living things heads the list for Biology. Our class takes a special interest in animals and insects. Also, last Thursday, Bill Roths and Maurice Jacobs showed us an experiment on "How To Make Oxygen." We are happy to say that is was a success.

We have already begun to think of a class roller-skating party. Do you think we'll ever give Mr. Andreae a rest after we get started?

—Iris Schaefer

Junior News

There are 17 juniors this year, 11 girls and 6 boys. When we made out our schedules, we registered for English III and Economics, which were required, and took our choice of two from the three elective subjects, Typing, Sociology, and Home Economics.

English III is under the direction of Mrs. Hansen. This past week we have been getting acquainted with different reference books and reading for comprehension; we are now beginning a study of thinking, including tests of evidence and propaganda.

In Economics under Mrs. Andreae we have been studying about the different types of consumer goods.

Home Economics finds Mrs. Andreae and the girls preparing to do the three methods of canning, using pears and tomatoes. We brought samples of pressure cookers to exhibit to the class.

In Typing, Mr. Patterson's class has been busy pounding away on the main keys as we learn the keyboard. Oh, what racket!

Mrs. Hansen's Sociology class has completed the first unit on the influences of heredity and environment and has begun work on a community survey project which will be described in a later issue.

We have been doing our share in extra-curricular activities and are looking forward to our class play.

—Jo Ann Hummel

—Gene Albers

Community Sociology Survey

The sociology class, composed of juniors and seniors, have begun a project which involves contacting members of the community for the State Board of Public Instruction. The classes went out Friday during class time to check their map of their route. Jerry Finders captains this group of ambitious Klemme students and is group leader for the Southeast section. The other officers are Jo Ann Hummel, whose group will cover the southwest part of town, Willis Bock, northwest and Don Finders, northeast. Be sure to look for more information about the survey in later issues of the Klemme school news.

Teachers Establish Residences

Our teachers in the Klemme Public Schools for this year have now made their homes in Klemme and surrounding community. Mrs. Donna Hansen and her husband have the apartment over the post office here in Klemme. Mr. Hansen works at the Clear Lake Bakery, and drives back and forth. Mr. Stanley Bulka and family and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andreae have houses in Klemme. Mr. Robert Juhl has a room at Geo. Lawhorn's. Miss Shirley Gustafson and Miss Karna Tulp have rooms at Mrs. Jack Etchen's. Miss Eunice Christ and Miss Charlotte Bromes have rooms at Mrs. Mildred Day's. Some of our teachers drive a few miles to and from work each day. Mrs. Betty Schlawin lives at Garner, where her husband works in "Soo Island." Our principal and superintendent, Mr. Patterson and Mr. Ahrenkiel, and their families, live at Goodell.

—Pauline Kramer

The Inquiring Reporter

You will notice we didn't have a "gossip column" this week, but somehow an inquiring reporter seemed to find out some news about the teachers. Next week's inquiring reporter promises to do the same for certain students.

Vacation has come to an end, not only for the students, but for the teachers as well. Here are some of the things our teachers did this summer.

Mr. Ahrenkiel spent most of his time on school affairs. We hear he loafed a little, too.

Mr. Patterson attended Omaha University for ten weeks and went to Texas for two weeks. He tells us he loafed as much as possible.

Mr. Andreae lived inFayette, Iowa, for the summer. He also says he raised a garden and played some golf. From that "55" we hear he made last week, he must be pretty good.

Mrs. Andreae also spent the summer in Fayette. She worked hard doing some papering and painting.

Mrs. Hansen spent the summer at her home in Clear Lake.

Mr. Bulka worked with the band on summer concerts and did some fishing. He also went to Minneapolis for a few weeks.

Mr. Juhl took an eleven-week course at Drake University.

Mrs. Schlawin attended summer school at Mason City Junior College.

Miss Gustafson and Miss Tulp attended Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls.

Miss Browes stayed at her home near St. Ansgar, and Miss Christ worked in a grocery store in her home town of Forest City.

SPORTS NEWS

The boys basketball schedule is near completion and will be announced in a latter issue. Following is the schedule for baseball for the coming month:

Sept. 14, Thornton, here
Sept. 16, Goodell, there
Sept. 22, Goodell, here

Band Activities

For the first few weeks the band has been getting organized. To start the year we are having try-outs for positions which will be held every six weeks. Each student is to play any solo and a piece Mr. Bulka selects for sight reading.

The band is looking forward to the county basketball tournament. We have collected the school loyalty songs from each town to play for them when they are our guests.

—Maurice Jacobs

Library News

Jo Ann Hummel was chosen student librarian for the Klemme High School. Her assistant is Mary Ann Blumer. They have already begun repairing the books. They are arranging the fiction books in alphabetical order by author's names, and the reference books by the Dewey Decimal System. The checking out of books will be done similar to previous years; however, a date stamp will be used.

—Dick Gilpin

Class Play Begins

The juniors will be selecting their three act play in the next week for production in October. Watch for further information on the junior class play.

—Roger Howard

School Improvements

During the summer the outside of the school building was given a new covering to make it waterproof. The windows were also waterproofed by sealing them. Our school house should be fixed so nothing can interfere with our studying. There most certainly was a lot of noise but it was worth it.

More improvements were also made on the inside. The blackboards, refinished, have now become "greenboards" for the new color is a beautiful green that is easier on our eyes.

The halls and rest rooms were freshly painted, and the walls in the gym, the second grade room, and the fifth and sixth grade room were painted a lovely green. We are looking forward to seeing the gym floor re-done at Christmas vacation, and the remaining rooms repainted next summer, as is now planned.

60 YEARS

When George Buchmeyer, retired Toledo farmer, visited his brother Ben in Walcott last week, it was the first reunion of the two brothers in sixty years. When Mr. Buchmeyer last covered the route between Walcott and Tama county, the roads were wagon roads and most of the land was wooded timber. Raising a family of 7 children had kept him "too busy" to go back, he said. Toledo is 115 miles from Walcott.

MOTOR "MEDICINES" OFTEN CAUSE DAMAGE

Motor tonics or so-called patent medicines that are being sold to cure many types of motor ailments are for the most part of little value, according to dale Hull, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

Hull refers to some materials which are supposed to be put in motor oil to clean out the gums from the crankcase, some of the so-called upper cylinder lubricants, and so-called friction-reducing additives.

Many of these materials are nothing more than light motor oils, kerosene, range oils or furnace oils. They usually do no more than dilute motor oil, according to Hull. He points out that one material was found to contain vinegar. Materials such as vinegar, or sugars and alcohols, decompose when they enter the crankcase and become a sticky, gooey mass which might cause piston rings to stick.

So far as dissolving gums in the engine is concerned, Hull says that petroleum oils added to motor oils as a gum solvent will not dissolve gums and sludges formed in motor oils. However, he says that a few of the solvent materials being sold actually will dissolve gums.

Putting the so-called sludge and gum solvents or friction-reducing oils in tractors, trucks and diesel engines might result in damage to motor parts, according to Hull. For example, there are friction-reducing lubricants sold which contain lead soaps. He reports that reliable engine tests made by a reputable refiner's laboratory indicate that lead soaps will quite probably corrode hard metal bearings when mixed with motor oils at high temperatures. Most heavy service engines use this type of bearing material. Heavy duty or premium type motor oil already contains additives to stabilize them and adding anything else is just risky business, Hull says.

Most upper cylinder lubricants sold to be added to gasoline are usually light mineral oils put up in a nice bottle or a pretty can so they will sell for a high price, according to Hull. Quite often industrial perfumes are added to make the oil dealer and customer think the material contains a special solvent.

If you want to use an upper cylinder lubricant, one grade of oil is about as good as another, Hull says. However, don't use more than 1 quart of oil to 100 gallons of gasoline, he says. Using too much may cause combustion chamber deposits to form from the carbon produced by the slower burning motor oil.

Hull says that usually the best way to get rid of chronic valve sticking is to install nonmagnetic exhaust valves. Try picking up a valve with a strong magnet, and if the magnet isn't attracted by the valve, you can feel fairly sure that it is a noncorrosive type made of nickel and chromium which isn't so likely to stick in heavy service.

AROUND IOWA

BIG FISH

Lawrence Schroeder of LeMars caught a 25-pound catfish in the Sioux river recently, near Hudson, South Dakota. His friends say the fish would have been still bigger if it had gotten away.

TOT INJURED

When her father started up a farm tractor, two year old Judy George of near Storm Lake received a broken hip when the front wheels passed over her. She is recovering.

PEACHES

G. F. Klingensmith of Albia harvested a bushel of peaches from one tree at his home recently. The largest weighed three-fourths of a pound; all averaged a half-pound.

CAUGHT OWL

Henry Larson of near Wadena heard a disturbance among his chickens one night recently and found a great horned owl caught in the chicken yard fence. The owl had apparently been traveling with a steel trap on one leg and this had caught on the chicken wire. It had a four and one-half foot wing spread.

TRANSFOR WEEDS INTO— PRETTY TABLE ARRANGEMENTS

Autumn leaves, weeds from the roadside and bits from the garden—collect a supply of material like these. Then turn artist and add beauty to your home all winter long with decorative arrangements like this one.

It isn't a matter of money, having lovely centerpieces and living room arrangements in our homes.

Instead it's seeing beauty in things around us and combining textures and colors which "go together" and fit into the settings of our homes, according to Mrs. June Brown. home furnishings specialist. Iowa State College.

Autumn is the time to be on the lookout for plant forms which will be interesting dried and useful in winter bouquets. Look ahead to your Christmas decorating now. Mrs. Brown suggests.

Don't stop with cattails and bittersweet. grasses and spears of grain and even weeds from mullin to ragweed. Osage orange balls, gourds, corn husks, pine cones, poppy and iris seeds, dried catalpa pods and sumac seeds, not to mention twigs and other bits of wood and stone are all materials for your arrangements. Among Iowa's noxious weeds you can turn to good purpose are wild carrot, sour dock, squirrel tail grass, porcupine grass, rose hips and milkweed pods. Of course you'll want to be careful in gathering these weeds and avoid spreading.

Containers

Even holders and vases need not come from the store. Mrs. Brown suggests such materials as crumpled chicken wire, hardware cloth, pebbles and sand, twigs and evergreen cuttings, and some of the younster's modeling clay to help hold your plant materials in place.

As for containers, a quick look around the attic or kitchen will prove rewarding. Bread pans, beans pots, ovenware, old battery jars, tiles, trays (old unsightly ones may be painted) and rough baskets are good. Mrs. Brown also suggests the small size chicken feed troughs for long, low, bouquet able arrangements. They come in almost any color, she says.

Ordinarily, containers shouldn't be too fancy. After all, they shouldn't be the center of interest. "Earthy" color—browns, rusty reds and greens—usually harmonize best with dried materials.

Work For Harmony

The secret of successful arrangement is to key together the plant materials, containers and even table surface in color, texture and scale.

Several ears of yellow or Mexican corn with husks partly peeled back, some gourds and evergreen are appropriate in a wooden bowl, a rough basket or copper bowl. But they would be out of place in crystal. The same arrangement would look well on a rough-textured monk's cloth, informal blue and white checked gingham or reed mat. But it wouldn't look well on a dainty or finely woven linen cloth.

Plan table centerpieces low, so they won't interfere with table conversation. Of course, if an arrangement is to be on a low table or at the back of a buffet table, it may be quite tall. If it's to be seen from all sides, be sure it is balanced and attractive all round.

Experiment with unusual arrangements. You'll find you'll hit upon something you like, if you are daring enough to get away from the ordinary. Try out new color combinations, and try to see the exciting possibilities in materials you have on hand.

FLUORIDE DENTAL PROGRAM

The fluoride dental program to help prevent tooth decay is being offered the third grade pupils in Hancock County for this school year, by the Hancock County Public Health Council cooperating with the State Department of Health. The program has the approval of the United States Public Health Service and the State Department of Public Instruction The State Department of Health is furnishing funds to finance the program so it is without charge to the parents!

Sodium fluoride when applied to children's teeth will reduce tooth decay about forty per cent. This treatment involves tooth cleaning followed by four fluoride treatments applied to the outside of the teeth by the dentist. This treatment is entirely painless and does not inconvenience the child in any way. Hancock County is one of the few counties privileged to take part in this program.

BUY CATTLE THAT FIT OWN PROGRAM

Careful Selection Will Help Feeder Keep On Right Side Of Ledger

The feeder cattle buyer can't do much about the general feeder cattle price level, but he can take extra care with some of the details in buying that may help keep him on the right side of the ledger.

That's what Rex Beresford, extension beef cattle specialist at Iowa State College, says.

Buy By Pound

First, this is a good year to make sure of getting the kind of cattle that fit your feed supply and your feeding and marketing. Program. If cattle are being bought on the central markets, buy out of first hands if you can. Wherever they are bought, buy by the pound, Beresford says.

Also, watch for condition or fill. For example, and 800-lb. feeder steer with normal fill at $18 per hundredweight cost $144. The same steer with an additional 40-pound fill is worth no more to the feeder buyer than before—still $144. This means that his per hundredweight value has dropped to $17.14.

Health Important

Health is important, and doubly so with calves or young cattle. Surveys indicate that death losses average from 1 to 1½ percent on calves and just under 1 percent on yearlings. These losses result mainly from shipping fever. Losses may run much higher on long-haul calves coming in under bad weather co

EXTRA CARE WILL PAY IN COMBINING BEANS

Taking a little extra care this year in combining soybeans will pay off, especially to the grower of seed beans, according to Charles R. Webner, agronomist at Iowa State College.

He says that injury to beans during harvesting or handling operations is the reason that many soybeans don't germinate well. Injured seeds may not germinate at all, or they may sprout and produce stunted or deformed plants.

For the seed producer, it's mighty important to get sound beans with low germination are hard to sell because a farmer hesitates to buy low germinating seed, knowing he'll have to increase seeding rate to make up the difference.

Last year, harvest injury to soybeans ran high in many fields, mainly because they were so dry at harvest time, according to Weber. Shattering and other losses also were high in many cases. Bean injury frequently resulted from overthreshing to reduce some other, more obvious type of bean loss. Injury to the bean itself is often overlooked because the beans aren't actually lost.

Germanation of injured and uninjured seeds of the 1948 crop was compared at the Seed Testing Laboratory at the college. While most of the injured beans sprouted, only 56 percent of them produced healthy, normal seed sprouts. These seeds with broken seed coats produced 34 percent abnormal sprouts, and 10 percent failed to sprout at all. Seeds from the same lot showing no visible signs of injury produced 92 percent normal sprouts and 7 percent abnormal sprouts, while 1 percent failed to sprout.

Only the healthy seedlings are counted in the germination tests. Stunted or otherwise abnormal sprouts aren't counted because they would never develop into a normal, mature plant.

Webner recommends that the producers of seed beans handle beans this year with kid gloves. It may be better to accept some small losses, such as unthreshed beans, in order to prevent seed injury from overthreshing. He suggests a compromise in setting the combine to keep the total, over-all loss as low as possible, including the less obvious loss of injured beans.

DESTROY RATS BEFORE PUTTING UP NEW CORN

Best time to get rid of rats on farms is in September before corncribs are filled with the new crop, according to Earle Raun, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

The steps in getting rid of the brown rats are to clean up the farmstead, poison, and ratproof buildings. All of these jobs can be done more easily before corn is picked.

Raun says that clean-up work removes hiding places and tends to concentrate scattered rat population so that they can be poisoned easier. Pile posts and lumber on supports at least 2 feet above ground. Scrap lumber not worth saving and other junk should be burned or buried. Stack bottoms, cobs and manure piles should be scattered in the field so they won't give rats a good hiding place. Tall weeds also make rat hidouts if left standing.

Raun says to clean up, poison, and then rat-proof buildings. Farm buildings in good state of repair aren't likely to be infected with rats. Check to see that walls are tight, and foundations and floors are fixed up.

Corncribs can easily be made rat-proof when they are empty by placing ¼-inch mesh hardware cloth 2 feet up on the outside surface of walls and by putting an 8-inch metal strip above the hardware cloth. Raun says that the metal strip prevents rats from crawling above the hardware cloth to gnaw a hole. Floors of cribs also should be covered with hardware cloth.

...TO DOOR OF THIS MOUSETRAP MAKER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A BETTER MOUSETRAP

"HOW ARE THINGS as of early September?" we asked the man who built a better mousetrap, this being our regular seasonal inquiry into business conditions.

"I can't quite make out," he replied, with a glance at the paths made to his door. "The paths seem fairly active but the activity could hardly be called path-beating at this moment."

"Would you say there was a slump?"

"I might think so, but Harry Truman says no."

"Does he think much about mousetraps?"

"You know Washington. There are experts in everything available. The President has aides who claim to be specialists in mouse habits and mousetrap trends in our economic system. There is a federal mousetrap commission at work now."

"Has it been here?"

"I think so. There has been a group here which acted like a federal committee. It came up the paths backward, asked where it was, and immediately wanted to know where there was a good place to eat."

"What did it do after eating?"

"It showed up every day at 11 and quit at 3, announcing after a week that it had studied my business thoroughly and would have an early report with a complete solution to all problems in the mousetrap field."

"You think it will find that you are prospering and that there is no cause for concern?" we asked.

"I am sure of it," said the man who built a better mousetrap. "The commission left in a very happy mood and announced nothing was worrying me."

"Strictly on your own," we asked, "what is the real situation in the mousetrap industry?"

"I am optomistic. It can't be that the country has caught all the mice. Hence the drop in demand for traps must be due to something else. People may be making old traps last longer. I had a fellow come in with some holes and ask that we build a trap around 'em."

"Are you operating in the red at the moment?"

"Yes, but don't let the President hear it. He would hold I am sabotaging public confidence. He may even say I want depression for my own selfish ends."

"So what?"

"Well I guess I should do some deficit-financing and expand. After all I don't want federal control of mousetraps."

The man who built a better mousetrap paused a moment and reflected.

"I shall have to style my mousetraps," he resumed. "I must bring out smarter models with startling new innovations. Streamlining might help and possibly some mechanical devices that will make it possible to bait a trap by pressing a button. This will cost a lot of money, but I can borrow it or something."

"Have you thought of turning out a trap with fewer holes?" we asked. "Wouldn't half as many holes mean that people with mice would need twice as many traps?"

"Aha!" exclaimed the M.W.B.A. B.M., showing us the door. "I knew it. You are one of those economic experts direct from the capital. Scram!"

We scrammed.

Tried by Fire

GRACE NOLL CROWELL

GOD loved you much to trust so great a grief
To you.
He was quite certain of you. O my dear,
He knew
How silver-bright your fire-tried spirit would Come through.
He stood above you, watching, waiting there
To shield you from a hurt too great to bear.

And he who waited by the furnace saw
You rise
From agony to move about with still,
Calm eyes,
To go your tranquil way more beautiful,
More wise,
The silver of your spirit shining through.
God knew that he could trust this grief to you.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Reason Retreats In Face of Love

By Lawrence Gould

Can you keep a girl from "throwing herself away"?

Answer: Rarely. If you give her concrete proof that the man she's in love with is a scoundrel, that may stop her marrying him, though she's more apt to resent it than be grateful for it. But a girl who loves a man you think unworthy of her usually loves him (unconsciously) for the very qualities you disapprove of. He appeals to the repressed side of her nature, whose existence, as a "nice girl," she is unaware of. Marrying him provides an opportunity to gratify this side of herself, and at the same time, repudiate it by trying to "reform" him.

Do aggressive people develop high blood pressure?

Answer: As a rule, no, a committee headed by Dr. Henry A. Schroader told the Medical Advisory Council of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure. The two notable characteristics of the "hypertensive personality" are that the person is unable to assert himself and that he tends to follow rigid patterns (like the man who feels he cannot leave the office until he has "cleaned up his desk"). The apparently aggressive people who develop high blood pressure are those who are timid at heart and "put on an act" to hide their panic.

Is there a "routine" in treating mental illness?

Answer: There's no rigid formula, but every successful course of treatment goes through certain stages. According to Dr. Eugene Ziskind of Los Angeles, these are what a layman might call: (1) winning the patient's confidence, (2) encouraging him to get the things he fears or is ashamed of "off his chest"; (3) helping him realize that they are not as terrible as he imagines; (4) giving him a healthier attitude toward life, and (5) getting him back to his family and his job. It sounds simple, but may take much skilled and patient effort.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

ARNOLD MOSS has succeeded in so many fields that it is hard to know where to begin describing him. He entered college at 15, has a master's degree. He has been a success on the stage, radio and screen, as actor, writer and producer. As narrator for "Duel in the Sun" he was so good that he was engaged for the same stint for "Arch of Triumph." His latest picture is "Reign of Terror," for Eagle-Lion. During the war he did broadcasts in four foreign languages, narrated six pictures for the navy. The coming season will see him on the stage in "Twelfth Night," and on television as well. He is married, has two young children—and makes interviews a pleasure.

---

Daytime serials may be broadcast in Korea, if Miss Ok Yul Kim, an announcer, and Mr. Young Ho Song, a director, both with the Korean radio network, have their way. Here to tour New York's radio studios and study American technique, they visited "The Road of Life" and "Young Dr. Malone" broadcasts, said they'd recommend them to their government-operated radio system.

---

George Burns and Gracie Allen cut their European visit short by two weeks, came rushing home to Hollywood early this month. Could be that they had last-minute preparations to make for their new comedy show, starting September 21 on CBS.

---

Lon McCallister has made only two pictures for Warners', but they represent the high and low of his career. In 1941, in "Gentleman Jim," he did a bit role; in "The Story of Seabiscuit" he's co-starred with Shirley Temple and Barry Fitzgerald.

The Fiction Corner

A MISUNDERSTANDING

By Richard H. Wilkinson

I'LL NEVER FORGET the spectacle of Joe Abbott and Count Obeid fighting. Thinking of it, I am more apt to shudder than smile. Though it certainly had amusing aspects.

3-Minute Fiction

You see, Joe is an American. And he wasn't used to the way they did things in Luandia.

Anyway, when Joe and I stopped off at Cabindas on our world cruise, we were much pleased with the place.

That night we had dinner at the Plaza and it was there that we first saw Kandace. She was sitting alone in a booth, and when she caught Joe staring at her boldly, she nodded and smiled at him.

Instinctively I knew, when I saw the tall dark man come through the door, that Joe was in for trouble. And I was right. The tall dark man strode toward the booth and there was something about him that caused my blood to creep. I stood up, but was by no means quick enough. The stranger had grasped Joe by the coat front, jerked him to his feet and slapped his face.

After a while a messenger came in and handed me a note. I read it and looked sourly at Joe. "Now you've done it. That was Count Obeid and that was his girl you insulted."

"Insulted?" said Joe.

"And he wants to fight a duel with you. He realizes our boat sails first thing in the morning, so in order to accommodate us he'll await our pleasure at dawn. He will do you the honor of permitting you to choose your own weapons."

Joe shook his head and tried to grasp it. "That punk—the dope who smacked my jaw—wants to fight a duel? You mean like they do in Sabatini's books?" "And I can choose my own weapons," Joe went on. He stood up. "Come on."

I followed him, not quite daring to use force in stopping him again, yet ready for any emergency. We went back to the Plaza. The count and his girl were, of course, gone. Joe made inquiries, wrote down an address and beckoned me to follow. A taxi deposited us before a pretentious looking house of white adobe. A servant admitted us and presently Count Obeid appeared.

"You're giving me the honor of choosing my own weapons," said Joe. "I'll take these," and he knotted up his fists and held them under the count's nose.

"Those!" said the amazed count.

"Yeah," said Joe, "and on your honor as a gentleman you can't refuse. Also, why wait till dawn?"

WHAT followed was pitiful. We trooped into the back yard. Joe and the count took off their coats and squared off. Grinning, Joe stepped in and delivered a quick one-two on the nobleman's chin. Blood appeared on his mouth. He swung wildly. Joe set him back on his heels. The count came in again and Joe knocked him down. He got up and came back for more.

"Listen, old horse," he said, "you're as dumb about the customs back in America as I am about them over here. Only I didn't have the guts to fight you your own way—and you, well, by gosh, there are danged few Americans can take it the way you have. And right here and now I rise to remark you have my apology, and I'll tell that dame so, too, if you'll tell me where she lives."

Well, the count only caught on to about one-third of what Joe meant and grinned and offered his hand.

Ten minutes later the three of us were sitting around a fire in Kandace's living room, laughing and talking and drinking punch and telling each other that it was too bad there wasn't a perfect understanding about customs of different countries, and agreed that if such were the case every one would be happier.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Blood Pressure and Weight Related

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS KNOWN that overweights have a greater tendency to high blood pressure than those of normal or less than normal weight. Many of us have read or heard of the little book "Life Begins at Forty;" others have heard that Osler stated that men past 60 should be chloroformed. Osler did not make the statement because the best mental work of outstanding inventors, musicians, professional men, authors has been done after the age of 60.

Referring to blood pressure and body weight it is interesting to know that the greatest number of heart strokes (coronary thrombosis) occur after 40 years of age and grow fewer after the age of 60.

In a series of cases reported from Finland, the results showed that the average body weight in women increased as the blood pressure rose. Among those with high blood pressure, considerable more overweight was found than among those with normal blood pressure. More cases of high blood pressure were also found in women of excess weight than in those of normal weight.

In men, excess weight up to the age of 40 did not seem to affect the blood pressure. Similarly after the age of 60 excess weight did not seem to affect the blood pressure. However in the 40 to 59 age group, men with high blood pressure showed considerable more excess weight than men with normal blood pressure, and overweight men showed more tendency toward high blood pressure than those of normal weight.

Insurance companies have been pointing out for years that as excess weight accumulates the blood pressure rises and that increased blood pressure occurs more frequently in persons of excess weight than in other persons.

A noted United States physician, Dr. Fishburg, has stated that the presence of overweight and high blood pressure in the same person is often due to hereditary predisposition to these two conditions.

The lesson from the above is that weight begins to increase and also the blood pressure at the age of 40, when "life begins," because more and richer food can be bought and less physical work is done or exercise taken.

Religion and Habits

Lesson for September 18, 1949

IF RELIGION is not moral, it is a poor, flimsy, no-good religion. If morality is not religious, it soon cracks. Religion has to be moral and morality has to be religious, or else both of them lose their excuse for existence. This is not a new idea. It was in the Bible long ago. Our Psalms for this week are among those that bring out this truth: God is interested in how people live.

Dr. Foreman

He is interested in what they do seven days and seven nights a week; he is interested in their habits as much as their souls. Psalms 15 and 24 are so plain on this point that they need no explaining.

Churches and Liquor Don't Mix

THIS truth, that right religion and right behavior are twins, lights up all of life like a floodlight; but since this is our temperance lesson, let us focus it more or less on one spot.

It is a sore spot: the drink habit. Why does the church make such a fuss about people drinking? Catholic churches are opposed to liquor in excess, and most Protestant churches are opposed to liquor, period.

The movies have made the "binge," the hangover, almost respectable; but the church knows better Why? Will the time ever come when the churches are not opposed to the liquor business? No, it will not, because the churches know what liquor does.

The minister is usually the man (along with the lawyer and doctor and the sheriff) who has to pick up the pieces when drink gets a man or a woman and breaks up a family The minister gets behind the scenes, he knows that some funerals would not have been funerals if it had not been for drink.

The car that "went out of control," the disease that should not have been fatal, the family quarrel that grew to hatred and violence —he sees enough of these caused by alcohol, to have no illusions about the stuff.

A Psalm in Reverse

IF THERE is a single reader of these lines who imagines that religion is only a "matter of the soul" and has nothing to do with what people eat or drink, then let him try a little experiment with the 15th Psalm.

As it stands in the Bible, it is a description of the kind of man who can appear without shame before God—in short, of the religious-and-moral man.

Now beginning with verse 2, take the Psalm phrase by phrase, and see how false and ridiculous it is if you try to make the description fit the man with the drink habit. "The victim of drink walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness—"! Quite the contrary, he seems to be doing his best to ruin his own happiness and that of others.

"The drunkard speaketh the truth in his heart"—! There is one truth he never speaks in his heart: I am a drunkard. The one thing the victim of alcohol never admits till it is too late (if ever) is the hold which alcohol has on him. "He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor"—!

Contempt Is No Cure

WELL, read on for yourself. The slave to alcohol (and many a man is chained to it, who would feel insulted if you called him an alcoholic) certainly does not fit the description of the man whose life God approves.

But the Christian will by no means think his duty done merely by sitting in the scorner's seat, or being an abstainer himself, or even by helping those who have fallen into the pit. He will remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The liquor business has no conscience. It sometimes comes out with pious remarks about temperance—but it keeps right on advertising, it knows no law but profit.

The only whole-hearted workers for temperance will always be the people who make no money out of intemperance. And the most effective workers for temperance will be those who themselves, in all their habits, give examples in life of what they preach.

COMBINE BEANS BEFORE THEY BECOME TOO DRY

Start combining soybeans just as soon as the beans are dry enough to store, recommends C. R. Weber, agronomist at Iowa State College. Allowing beans to become over-dried may be costly in losses such as shattering and injury to the soybean seed.

Often the season when conditions are right for harvesting soybeans is rather short. So, Weber says to plan ahead for the equipment and storage space you'll need, and when the beans are ready, go ahead with harvesting as rapidly as possible.

Best way to harvest beans is to combine direct from the standing stalk, according to Weber. The pods, should be fully matured and the beans hard. Beans can be combined at 14 percent moisture or higher, but they are not safe to store until the moisture is 13.5 percent or lower. Most elevators have equipment for making the moisture tests,

For a rough tests in the field, the pods should be dry enough to split open when squeezed between the thumb and forefinger. Dry beans will crack all the way through when you bite them. If beans are cheesey you can be pretty sure the moisture is too high.

Usually soybeans are in their best condition for combining after the first frost, says Weber. This completely kills the green stalks and the weeds. If these aren't dead and dry, they may cause the selves to clog up in combining — even though the beans themselves are dry.

RESULTS OF COUNTY T. B. SEARCH

Chest X-rays revealed healthy lungs for 57 persons in Hancock County according to reports sent recently to family physicians on the county-wide tuberculosis conference which was held August 3, 1949, at Garner.

One case of tuberculosis was reported. One heart condition, for which further study was recommended, was included in the findings. A total of 64 X-rays were taken.

The first phase of the program started when Harriet Oxley, public health nurse, began a canvas of persons believed to have been exposed to tuberculosis. She took 69 case histories calling in 32 homes.

Upon advice, 45 persons visited their family doctors for the tuberculin test. Fifteen skin tests were positive, indicating a need for an X-ray examination of the lungs.

Fifty-two pesons were x-rayed for the first time at the conference, while twelve x-rays were taken of the persons who had been examined previously and for whom another film had been recommended.

This was the ninth annual case-finding program, sponsored by the Hancock County Medical Society, Hancock County Tuberculosis Associations, Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Ass'n. and Iowa State Department of Health. Local Christmas Seal funds helped finance the cost.

The sponsoring organizations point out that the program was conducted to find tuberculosis in the early, symptomless stages while chances for complete recovery are best. Prompt discovery and treatment of tuberculosis cases also halt the spread of the disease to others in the community.

Wall-Fill Insulation Resists Poultry Pests

Poultrymen who fear the possibility of lice, mites or bed bugs invading wall-fill insulation in laying houses are probably borrowing trouble, accosding to W. R. Whitfield, extension poultryman at Iowa State College.

He reports that not a single complaint of this difficulty has come to him in the 20 years he has supervised Iowa poultry demonstration flocks.

Whitefield believes that the secret of avoiding trouble with these parasites in wall-fill insulation lies in the vapor-proof tar paper whch is placed just back if the inner board wall. The tar paper is impregnated with a repellant which drives insects away.

Additional precautions which may be taken include mixing either a poison or repellent in the fill before it is put in the wall, Whitefeld says. These include sodium fluoride, powdered sulfur, and DDT.

Other payments, now being figured, will scale downward, he said.

The maximum payment represents a dividend on a $10,000 policy in force for 96 months—the longest possible period—for a veteran aged 40 or less at the time the policy was taken out. This is a payment of 55 cents a month per $1,000 of insurance.

No, Indeed

Indian Representative—"I have come before you gentlemen to plead for the right of my tribe to manage its own lands."

Senator—"I object on the grounds that the average Indian hasn't the intelligence to manage property."

Indian—"Why, Senator, do you think I haven't that much sense?"

Senator—"I said the average Indian. You surely can't be average. Your tribe undoubtedly would send the smartest man they had to plead their case."

Indian—"That isn't so, sir. We Indians are just like the people of the United States. We never send our smartest men to congress."

Sure Enough

Student — "How would you describe a miracle, professor?"

Professor—"A miracle, eh? Well, if you were to see a bullfrog, that would not be a miracle. Neither would a thistle be a miracle. Even the melodious song of a bird singing would not constitute a miracle. But if you were to see a bullfrog sitting on a thistle and singing like a bird, that indeed would be a miracle."

Not Too Much

The new dam had diverted much of the water that a community of truck farmers previously had used to keep their crops healthy. They complained to all officialdom about it. Getting no satisfaction from the state officials they brought suit.

Arguing the case before the court one hot, lazy day the farmers through their attorney contended that the water had been vital to their business.

"But we must have water, Your Honor," thundered the defending lawyer in a roaring basso-profundo.

The lawyer's sudden vehemence awakened the judge, who had been dozing.

"All right," he muttered hastily, "but only a very little in mine."

Outnumbered

Plaintiff—"I have four men here who are prepared to testify that they saw the defendant steal two overcoats from in front of my shop."

Defendant—"And I, Your Honor, have twelve men who are ready to swear that they never saw me take them."

Judge—"Case dismissed. I am forced to take the testimony of twelve men against that of only four."

Had Some Value

Grandpa—"My! This certainly is terrible weather."

Grandma—"Yes, all it's fit for is conversation."

Indubitably

"What do you think mother would like best?" asked the young man, thinking of a birthday present.

Vending Machine Move Proves Business-Getter

A. R. Geist hated to tear down the attractive little building which had been his office when his Traffic Circle service station at Still Valley, N. J., grew up and required larger quarters.

Instead, he moved all the vending machines he had put in over the course of years into one spot in the old building, added a few comfortable chairs, and invited car-weary patrons to use the building as a lounge.

The relocation did so well for both the vending machines and the service business that Geist is planning to add a frankfurter machine, a hot coffee machine selling coffee in paper cups, more cold drink machines, and an ice cream vendor so that he can offer motorists a 100 per cent automatically dispensed lunch. Attractive feature of the plan to Geist is that it requires no extra labor.

Tuna Fish Sandwiches
(Serves 4—6)

1 cup grated tuna fish (canned)
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon grated onion
2 tablespoons lemon juice
⅓ cup salad dressing

¾ cup coarsely grated American cheese

Combine all ingredients except cheese and season to taste. Cut bread slice diagonally in half. Toast one side, spread other side with tuna mixture Sprinkle with cheese and broil until golden brown and puffy.

HERE'S A RECIPE for the thin batter into which to dip the fish for deep fat frying:

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
⅔ cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter or salad oil

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs, add melted fat or oil and milk. Combine with dry ingredients. Beat until smooth and use for fish filets which have been seasoned and rolled in flour. Fry in deep fat until gloden brown. Serve at once.

Oysters have a delicate flavor, but you can coax them into an even more appetite tempting dish as follows:

Savory Oyster Casserole
(Serves 4)

2 dozen oysters
1 cup cooked, chopped spinach
1 bay leaf
¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce
1 cup toasted bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons minced celery
Salt, pepper and cayenne pepper

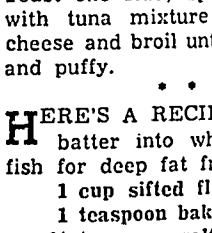
Add seasonings to parsley, spinach, bay leaf, onion and celery.



Brown flour in butter and add spinach mixture to it. Cook slowly for 15 minutes and then remove bay leaf. Drain and dry oysters and place in a buttered baking dish, or in individual casseroles. Mix oysters with bread crumbs, then top with vegetable mixture. Dress with lemon juice. Bake in a hot (450°) oven for about 12 minutes. Serve with additional lemon, if desired.

Chopped sweet pickles added to bread stuffing make a nice innovation when used with pike or other white-fleshed fish.

Lemon browned butter is another fine idea for serving with fish. Brown but do not burn butter over a slow fire in a heavy skillet. Add to this a dash of worcestershire sauce and lemon juice to season.

Fish fillets are sometimes more interesting if dipped in bread dressing, rolled, fastened with string and baked or fried, than when served flat.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Adventure Lure Is Weakening

By Lawrence Gould

Do young people today lack adventurousness?

Answer: Many of them have already had enough adventures to last them the rest of their lives, but according to a recent survey the ambitions of the latest crop of college graduates (seventy per cent of whom are veterans) are quite different from those of young men and women before World War II. Only two per cent of them are planning to go into business for themselves, and few are concerned with becoming rich or famous. The majority have taken special training to prepare themselves for jobs which promise security and "no ulcers."

Can a girl who "keeps you dangling" be a good wife?

Answer: Probably not. The sort of girl who makes you so miserable that you resolve to break with her but invariably changes just as you're about to do so is likely to have too strong an element of the man-hater (conscious or unconscious) in her disposition to help build a happy peaceful home with any man she marries. The fact that the hatred is based on fear of her own natural impulses, so that the more she loves you, the more she has to make you suffer, is not her fault since she does not realize it, but that will not make her easier to live with.

Should you tell a person he has cancer?

Answer: That depends upon the circumstances—and the person. If you're dealing with a mature-minded man or woman, I believe he or she has a right to know the truth, both as an incentive to follow whatever treatment is prescribed and as a warning to put his or her affairs in order For that matter, such a person nowadays would be pretty sure to guess the truth, however hard you tried to keep it from him. But a childish-minded person whom the truth would only terrify may well be left in "blissful ignorance" as long as possible.

Spanking Child Harms Emotions

By Dr. James W. Barton

WHEN YOU SEE a disobedient child, refusing to do as he or she is told, shouting his defiance at his mother's instructions, our natural inclination is to give him the spanking we assume he so richly deserves. What we forget is that this youngster is not normal, that is, not normal from the emotional standpoint, though he may have mental ability.

A child who acts up in this way, may be an only child or an overprotected child and has learned that by putting on his act, becoming hysterical, he can get his own way.

Children's specialists and others who have had much to do with all types of children tell us that it is the home surroundings and the parents that are mostly at fault for hysterical children, in not recognizing that the youngster is emotionally unstable and while scolding or spanking will settle normal youngsters, ordinary handling will not straighten out such a youngster.

IN "Medical Press," Dr. Doris Oldum, West End Hospital For Nervous Diseases, London, states that if a child finds he can get his own way from hysterical behavior he will cling to his symptoms throughout life and may become a "nervous invalid" if the condition is not recognized and treated in childhood. Hysteria in youngsters before they reach the teen age is expressed as loss of nervous control, crying, screaming and complete loss of muscular power resembling paralysis. In the teen age, hysterical symptoms include fainting and loss of memory.

Nearly all hysterical disturbances in an emotionally unstable child are started by unstable home surroundings. "Quarrelsome or drunken parents, an unpredictable mother, overprotection or neglect, or the loss of a parent (mother most often), may be the source of the child's behavior.

If the parents are overprotective and the child sees any little ache or pain upsets them, he adopts their habits to assert or call attention to himself.

PAYS FOR COW TO FRESHEN IN FALL

Production Better And Milk Will Be Sold At Times Of Best Prices

Every fall and winter milk prices go up, and they go down every spring and summer. It happens that way year after year, but regardless of the fact, dairymen have most milk to sell when prices are lowest.

The wise dairyman, however, takes advantage of this condition to increase his profits by having cows freshen in the fall, says Floyd Arnold, extension dairyman at Iowa State College. Besides selling milk at a time when prices are best he reaps the additional advantage of higher production. The records show that cows freshening in the fall produce an average of 600 pounds more milk and 20 pounds more butterfat than cows freshening in the spring and summer.

Other Work Slack

Also important is the fact that heaviest labor load work comes when other farm work is slack, and that fall-dropped calves are large enough the next spring to make good use of pasture and to stand the heat better. Calves dropped by fall-freshening cows just off summer pastures have more vitamin A and carotene stored in their bodies than calves born in late winter or early spring, Vitamin A is essential for the growth of the calf.

Not to be overlooked by the dairyman in the market milk area is that the base period for milk is established in the fall. Thus, having high production durng that time insures a good market for milk for whole year.

Plan Breeding Ahead

Breeding for fall freshening must be planned in advance, Arnold says. Best way to obtain fall-freshening cows is to breed heifers to have their first calf in the fall. This means that calves born in the fall can be bred to calve at 2 years of age. Calves born at other times of the year must be bred early or held over in order to have them freshen in the fall.

Nothing can be done about fall milk this year, but the dairyman can start planning a breeding program to meet the milk demand in the fall of 1950.

SUPER SANDWICHES—

SCHOOL LUNCH STANDBY

Maybe the youngsters have their favorite lunch-time sandwiches, and then again, maybe they'd like surprise sandwiches of a change. It doesn't take much to give a new twist in taste to the old sandwich version.

Sandwiches and school lunch boxes can be spoken of pretty much in the same breath. Every morning, 5 days a week, rain or shine, there's that school lunch box to fill. And always it means sandwiches to spread.

At times it's rather taxing to find ways to vary the usual routine of cheese or peanut butter sandwiches, but Mildred Nelson, foods and nutrition specialists at Iowa State College, has several ideas to help the homemaker who's in this sandwich dilemma.

She stresses that it's important to give youngsters sandwiches that are both healthful and filling. To vary the sandwich menu from day to day, she suggests using egg salad and variations of peanut butter which can be made by adding salad dressing, piccalilli, honey, tomato juice, or dried fruit with milk or salad dressing.

Use Cheese

Cheese—the old standy—can be varied, too. Beat aged cheddar cheese in the mixer and add pimento and salad dressing plus a little salt, Miss Nelson suggests. There's also the cheese and chopped nut combination which can be made creamy with a beater.

Cottage chees, too, has its place in sandwiches. For a particularly colorful spread, Miss Nelson says to add grated carrots, chopped parsley and nuts, sliced olives and salad dressing.

Meat sandwiches are always good and there's no end to the possibilities for variation. Meat loaf, liver loaf, sliced ham, roast beef, pressed chicken, ground tongue or heart are a few suggestions. Many meats and also salmon, mackerel, tuna and other flaked fishes can be used in salad-like spreads. Use very finely chopped up celery, pickles and other relishes and ahrd-cooked eggs with salad dressing. Add them to the flaked fish or ground meat.

Still another sandwich possibility is crisp, chopped bacon mixed with scrambled eggs. Salad dressing will hold the bacon and eggs together. That's a good way to use leftovers from the breakfast table, Miss Neison says, and they do make a fine sandwich.

Nut Breads

Vary the kinds of bread in the lunch boy too, she suggests. These might include dried friut and nut breads orange breads Boston brown bread, rye, whole wheat and oatmeal breads. The whole grain is important from the nutritive standpoint. If white bread is used, be sure it's enriched.

An unusual peanut butter bread can be made by sifting 2 cups of bread flour, one-third cup of sugar, 2 t. making powder and 1 t. salt together. Work three-quarters cup of peanut butter and 1 well-beaten egg into the flour mixture with a fork. Add 1 cup milk. Put into buttered pan and bake 50 to 60 minutes in a moderate oven.

Your home storage freezer will be a great help because sandwiches can be made all at once for several days ahead of time. Cheddar or cream cheese, peanut butter, meat and poultry freeze well. Cooked egg whites, jellies and fresh fruits and vegetables do not. Butter the bread generously. Avoid mayonaise because it soaks the bread, Miss Nelson says. Sandwiches take about 3 to 3½ hours to thaw.

COTTON GROWER

Ed Doughman of Bussey has planted some Texas cotton seed in his garden this spring and is now possibly Iowa's only cotton-grower. The plants are about five feet high, with seed pods as large as small eggs. The cotton did not have time to ripen in Iowa's shorter growing season.

MIXTURE OF GRASSES BEST FOR WATERWAYS

Several types of grasses are suitable for planting in waterways to prevent gullies from forming, according to Marvin Anderson, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

Root portions of reed canary-grass planted in moist soil during early September will be well rooted before the ground freezes. Bromegrass plantings have been used with success in western Iowa waterways, and timothy is recommended for areas other than the western section. Redtop does well in southern Iowa, and bluegrass may be used where there is enough rainfall.

However, Anderson says that mixtures of several grasses are better than one grass alone except in western Iowa where brome does best. He doesn't recommend deep-rooted legumes such as sweetclover and alfalfa for waterways. These legumes have long tap roots which tend to loosen the soil.

Late August and early September is the best time to seed down waterways. New seedings of grasses do better in the fall during moist, cooler growing conditons. Too, there is less competition from weeds. However, in some sections of the state, Anderson says that farmers must control grasshoppers to prevent damage to fall seedings.

Anderson recommends doubling the normal field rate of seeding for seeding grasses in waterways.

Surprise Birthday Party

A number of neighbors, relatives and friends surprised Mrs. Geo. Thieman on her birthday last Thursday, September 15th, at her home. The party was also in honor of Mrs. Bertha Schlei's birthday.

The afternoon was sepnt informally after which a nice lunch was served, with two birthday cakes as the feature. Both Mrs. Thieman and Mrs. Schlei received some nice gifts.

CHEMICAL VALUES VARY IN DESTROYING STUMPS

Knowing the capabilities of certain chemicals in destroying tree stumps can save farmers some unhappy experiences. says E. T. Gardiner, extension forester at Iowa State College.

Tests made at the University of Illinois show that no chemical tested will increase the oxygen content of hardwood tree stumps so far as to make them easier to burn. Chemicals tested included one commercial stump remover. As for the stumps of softwood trees, Gardiner says that both sodium chlorate and saltpeter may produce some beneficial results.

Gardiner does not recommend any of these chemicals, however, for burning out stumps, because it is almost impossible to obtain the conditions needed to permit burning. These conditions are that the chemicals must reach all parts of the stump, that it will remain active until the stump is set on fire, and that the whole stump will dry out enough to burn.

Several chemicals can be used to kill stumps so that rotting can start sooner. Sodium arsenate, sodium chlorate and atlacide are good for this purpose, but it should be remembered that none of these will increase the rate of rotting. All of these chemicals are poisonous to both animals and humans.

Ammate, if applied to living trees or stumps, will cause killing, and there is a tendency for stumps treated with it to rot faster than if nature is allowed to take its course.

Gardiner advises keeping in mind what you wish to accomplish and getting the right chemicals for the job. Stump eradicators containing chemicals to promote both easier burning and rapid rotting should not be used.

FEATURE BAKED PEARS AS BUSY-DAY DESSERT

On a dessert tray with crackers and cheese, baked and topped with meringue and in fruit salads, the good-quality, reasonably priced Bartlett pears on the market can come to the table every day.

Mildred Nelson, Iowa State College nutritionist, says baked pears are an easy dessert for busy days. Just place the pared halves in a baking dish and fill the hollows with a mixture of brown or granulated sugar and butter or a combination of raisins, chopped nuts, cinamon grape juice and butter. Orange or any tart marmalade makes another good filling. Cover the bottom of the pan with water. Bake, covered, in a moderate oven about 20 minutes or until tender.

Served baked pears warm or cold with cream, Miss Nelson suggests. When there are leftovers, heat them up, top with meringue and serve them hot.

Pears may be baked whole. Cut a thin slice off the blossom end, stand the pears upright in the pan, sprinkle sugar over the tops, dot with butter and bake about 30 minutes.

When you use raw pears in salads, roll them in citrus fruit juice or dip in a salt and vinegar solution to prevent browning. The halves may be filled with cottage cheese or grated cheddar cheese and topped with mayonnaise. Or serve them in a mold of lime gelatin with French dressing. The halves may also be combined on lettuce with prunes stuffed with nuts or cottage cheese.

A. H. Faber, of near Oneida, says it pays to advertise. He ran a five-inch ad in the Manchester Press announcing that he would serve free melons on August 28. Over 1,000 persons accepted the invitation and it took three tons of melons to feed them.

DEATH TAKES HOLIDAY

It seems that "death has taken a holiday" as far as the Charles Cram family is concerned. While visiting in Storm Lake recently, the 80-year-old Mr. Cram reveals that there has been no death in the family circle, including brothers, sisters, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, for the past 80 years. The group now numbers 48 persons.

FIVE GENERATIONS

Lots of families have five generations in them. But Mrs. Ophelia Stream of Churdan has something different; her family has 3 different sets, of five each. Mrs. Stream has two daughters and a son, and in each case the family line, starting with Mrs. Stream, extends down through five generations. She is now 91.

DOUBLE STROKES

At New Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Conrad both suffered strokes, within a few minutes of each other. Mr. Conard was stricken first. His wife called their son and while he was calling a doctor, she also collapsed. Both appear to be making recovery.

WHY THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD STRIKE?

Over twenty years ago, the Congress of the United States passed the Railway Labor Act. It was hailed by union leaders as a model for the settlement of labor disputes.

THE LEADERS of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railway Conductors, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Missouri Pacific Railroad have refused to avail themselves of the peaceful means provided by this Act for settling their disputes. They insist that they be the sole umpire of their own disputes over the meaning of contracts.

There is no Need for Strikes

With all of the available methods for the interpretation of contracts, there is no need for a strike or even a threat of a strike, but the leaders of these railroad unions have ignored the ordinary procedures established by law and insist upon imposing their own interpretations of their contracts by means of a strike.

The wheels have stopped rolling on the Missouri Pacific. They may stop rolling on other railroads at any time. Recently the Wabash Railroad was forced to discontinue operation for several days under similar circumstances.

What are These Strikes About?

These strikes and strike threats are not about wage rates or hours. They result from disputes over the meaning of existing contracts. They cover claims for a full day's pay for less than a day's work, or for payments for services performed by others who were fully paid for the work done.

President Truman's Board Condemns Strike

There is an established legal method for handling disputes involving existing written contracts—just as there is such a method of settling any contract dispute which you may have in your daily life.

The President of the United States appointed a Fact Finding Board to investigate and adjust the Missouri Pacific dispute. This Board reported, in part, as follows:

"... it is with a deep sense of regret that we are obliged to report the failure of our mission. It seems inconceivable to us that a coercive strike should occur on one of the nation's major transportation systems, with all of the losses and hardships that would follow, in view of the fact that the Railway Labor Act provides an orderly, efficient and complete remedy for the fair and just settlement of the matters in dispute. Grievances of the character here under discussion are so numerous and of such frequent occurrence on all railroads that the general adoption of the policy pursued by the organizations in this case would soon result in the complete nullification of the Railway Labor Act. ..."

Obviously the railroads cannot be run efficiently or economically if the leaders of the unions ignore agreements or laws.

Provisions of the Law which are Disregarded

There are five ways under the Railway Labor Act to settle disputes over the meaning of contracts:

1—Decision by National Railroad Adjustment Board.
2—Decision by System Adjustment Board for the specific railroad.
3—Decision by arbitration.
4—Decision by neutral referee.
5—Decision by courts.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has been and is entirely willing to have these disputes settled in accordance with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act. Regardless of this fact, the union leaders have shut down that railroad

Innocent Bystanders Suffer Losses and Hardships

There are about 5,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen on the Missouri Pacific. They are known as "operating" employes, and are the most highly paid of all employes on the nation's railroads, but their strike action has resulted in the loss of work to 22,500 other employes of the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they have imposed great inconvenience and hardship upon the public and the communities served by that railroad.

The Railway Labor Act was designed to protect the public against just such interruptions of commerce.

If these men will not comply with the provisions of the law for the settlement of such disputes, then all thinking Americans must face the question, "What is the next step?"

Kindergarten News

It was a big week for Kindergarten this week. We had a birthday on Wednesday. Judith Swanson celebrated her fifth birthday and brought candy bars to school. We are coloring better and have learned to color just one direction better. We had two accidents in school this week. Richard Green got a slight cut on his head while playing on the playground during the noon hour. Sharon Heginger got a bump on her head also while playing on the playground. We hope to be more careful in the future. We have received many pretty flowers in our room which makes our room more pleasant. We invite you to come in and see us.

—Miss Christ

First Grade News

The boys and girls have been bringing fall decorations for the room. Several of the girls have brought yellow and green leaves. Keith Voigts brought some cat-tails Thursday. Billy Heginger found a caterpiller for the boys and girls to watch. We are feeding it leaves. In phonics we have learned the sounds of four letters, f, b, m, and j. We used finger paints in art on Thursday. We have a health chart and morning inspection now. The pupils can earn a silver star each day by brushing their teeth.. combing their hair. cleaning their fingernails, and washing their hands and faces. Billy DeMerritt had a birthday Wednesday and treated the class to candy.

—Miss Tulp

Second Grade News

Every day this week, we have been bringing to school dried leaves, cattails, evergreen cones or dry branches for an art lesson next week. We are very curious as to what we are going to do with them. Some of us have expressed ideas, but our teacher will not say whether we are right or wrong.

Roxanne Bach and Gordon Lassahn are very proud of the fact that they each lost a tooth this week.

Dental cards have been sent home with each pupil to be signed by theid dentist. So far two girls, Sherryl Clabugh and Jo-Ann Jacobs, have returned their cards, which means the girls are off to a flying start in a race to see whether the boys or girls will have their cards in first.

—Miss Bromes

Third and Fourth Grade News

The following third and fourth grade boys and girls earned gold stars in spelling this week:

Jeanne Barz, Sandra Medin, Marcella Nuehring, Rosalie Rosendahl, Larry Ulrich, Karen Clabaugh, Douglas Roul. Roger Olson, Jerry Janssen, Virginia Kudje, Cozette Lau, Mardell Stadlander, Marlin Stadlander, and Jerry Lee LaFavre.

This week we are completing our leaf booklets for science. As a means of expression during the fourth grade art period, we drew leaf men.

—Miss Gustafson

Fifth and Sixth Grade News

The fifth and sixth grade hiked to the bridge one-half mile west of highway 69 Thursday evening after school and enjoyed a weiner roast. Gracka Gerardi, Dennis Haefner, Margaret Haefner, Bob Larson, Herbert Greiman, Martin Brinkman, and Beverly Christiance were resposible for getting the wood and weiner sticks ready.

The fifth grade is in the process of making a window picture movie in history. We have finished our first unit on early exploration. Each slide of our window movie will picture some phase of this period during history.

The boys in our room lost a baseball game to the seventh and eighth grade boys Thursday morning in their P. T. period. The score was 12 to 2. The girls also lost to the seventh and eighth grade girls. Their score was 23 to 3.

The sixth grade have been drawing pictures in history This week they drew the Egyptain pyramids and the picture of the Sphinx.

In art we have been doing free hand drawing. The first week we drew graps, the second week a picture of the squirrel, and this week we studied the structure of trees.

Seventh and Eighth Grade News

In science we are studying about our world environment, In spelling we have workbooks instead of text books. We like them much better.

This year there are three girls who are going out for basketball. They are Daisy Schaefer, Lois Christians and Janice Swanson.

Last Thursday the seventh and eighth grades played the fifth-sixth grades in kittenball. The seventh and eighth grade girls won with a score of 21 and 3 and the seventh and eighth grade boys won with a score of 14 to 2.

Our motto for this week is "Friends like all good things in life can be had by anyone who wants them. There is only one single rule to follow, to have a friend, be one yourself."

—Janice Swanson

Freshman Class News

Studies in our 9th grade classes the part week were as follows:

Argiculture: Types of seed corn; what type of corn the Aztec Indins raised, and when they first planted corn; types of beef steers;

English: Exercises and stories from the magazine "Practical English."

Algebra: Formulas, tables and board work.

Home Economics: Personal grooming, hair styling, make-up.

General Science: Magazine articles on the atom; review and a test of 25 questions. There was only one A and some grades were very low, so the class needs to work harder.

—Reverdy Mace

The third week of school has passed and we sophomores are pretty well settled down with our books. In geometry we are learning all about angles. In world history we have been studying about the early Egyptians. In literature we are reading stories featuring different children and adults as main characters. In biology, Maralee Ridder and Maxine Barz made carbon dioxide from soda and vinegar. We found this experiment very interesting. Also in biology, since we have been studying a pice of skin through the microscope, which we have learned to adjust.

—Delores Thiemann

Junior Class News

In English class, in addition to our other work, we have been working on the newspaper, since it is our turn to write it.

In Economics we have been studying "How We Buy And Use Things." We're discussing the consumer, advertising methods, and buying mehods.

We have started canning in Home Economics, after studying the different types of canning last week. We canned quite a few quarts of pears by both cold packing and open kettle methods.

In typing we have learned more keys on the typewriter, so we can make more words and sentences.

In sociology we have been learning where we stand in relationship to heredity and environment, and studying our natural or geographical envirionment.

—Sondra Bridges

Senior Class News

Heads got scratched and pencils got a work out Friday morning in American history class. The cause of all this commotion was a quiz Mr. Ahrenkiel gave us. The quiz was over the thirteen origional colonies, how the colonial people lived, and what they did to make a living.

The bookkeeping class is busy sorting and summarizing transactions and then posting them in the ledger. We have already learned how to keep a journal. Bookkeeping certainly keeps the seniors busy! It is not really hard, at least after Mr. Patterson explains it to us, but it takes a long time to get everything finished.

The sociology class is looking forward to studying how man cannot live without society. We have already studied becoming social and man's life in the social world.

In English class we have been busy reading American literature. We also have reports each day on a group of states. Mrs. Hansen is trying hard to make good speakers out of us. I wish her luck!

The senior boys have been continuing their discussion on different kinds of hybrid corn in agriculure class.

The first class to have a class party was the senior class. On Friday night we went to Bayside Roller Rink in cars. The drivers were Don Finders, Virgil Pringnitz, Marvin Schmidt, and Calvin Josten. We all had an enjoyable time roller skating and falling down!

—Ruth Janssen

Library News

The library has received the new date stamp, which we find very useful in marking the date due as we check out books. The librarian reported to all classes in high school telling them how to use this year's check-out system, how the books will be arranged, and how to put books back properly on the shelves. We have decided to do away with fines, unless the books are kept too long.

--Jo Ann Hummel, Librarian

Band News

Mr. Bulka is patiently trying to organize a good band again. At the present time there are forty pieces—9 clarinets, 8 cornets, 4 trombones, 9 saxophones, 2 baritones, 1 french horn, 2 snare drums, 1 bell lyre, cymbals and a bass drum. There are approximately 30 taking lessons.

The admission for students at 3:00 is 75c, but during the evening performances it is $1.50 for both students and adults. Students may see Mr. Bulka to purchase tickets and request transportation.

Class Play News

The junior class has found a play in which we will all enjoy working. The three-act comedy we have chosen is "Taming The Brat", written by Earl Louis Russell. There are try-outs for the cast this week. Play practice will begin the last of Sept., and the play will be presented in October.

Season's First Game

The Klemme High School baseball team players opened their season on Wednesday, when they played Thornton on the home diamond. The Klemme starting line-up was as follows: Green, pitcher; Brinkman, Catcher; Barz, first; Albers, second; Josten, shortstop; Baack third; Fearson, right field; Red Schmidt, center field and Kaduce, left field.

Klemme had a good start at the end of six innings, we were ahead six to two. Everything was going along fine when Thornton started to hit. After that the score went up on one side and stood still on the other. The final sore was thirteen to six, with Thornton winning.

—Luverene Schmidt

Girl's Sports News

On Monday, September 12th the girls' basketball team started practicing. Mr. Ahrenkiel our coach this year, says it will take a lot of work for the team to get in shape after a summer without practice. We use the gym now while the boys are finishing their baseball season. When the boys' basketball starts we will have to work out a schedule of practice so that both teams will have the use of the gym. There are about 21 girls out for basketball this year, with 18 having had previous experience. The 6 first team letter winners from last year who returned this year are Luella and Lucille Priebe, Maralee Ridder, Ruth Lacey, Janice Swanson and Iris Schaefer.

ONE AUTO CLUB LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN . . .

Some Drivers Act Late for Their Accidents

. . . AGAINST THE SAFE AND SANE DRIVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ALL DONE BY DAWDLERS

WATCH OUT! You're apt to get hit by a careful automobile operator, bub! You can never tell what those drivers who are in no hurry may do next. Whammo! I knew it another smashup due to one of those scourges of the highway, the cautious autoist!

The Automobile Club of New York, through William J. Gottlieb, its president, issues (with a straight or nearly so, face) a statement saying that dawdling drivers are a menace to safety, and urging that something be done about them. "While it is commonly believed that irresponsible, speeding, intoxicated or reckless drivers cause most accidents, many may be traced to those who drive cars too slowly," says the statement.

"When these slow drivers move out of the right-hand lane," says Mr. Gottlieb, "they create perils for faster drivers." (Ya don't say!) "This is utterly selfish and provocative of accidents," he adds. (How about some traps for slow drivers?)

However, "Anything to make the highways safer!" is our motto. So let's rush up the following caution signs at once:

DRIVE FASTER
for
SAKE!
KEEP YOUR FOOT ON THE GAS!
IT SAVES LIVES
DON'T DAWDLE!
SCHOOL

Or perhaps a few reading "SLOWPOKES CAUSE ACCIDENTS," "TAKING YOUR TIME FORBIDDEN," "ARE YOU DRIVING FOR PLEASURE? SHAME ON YOU" and "DON'T RISK LIFE AND LIMB BY PROCEEDING WITH CAUTION."

Of course, it is just possible the auto club is looking for some publicity. Auto associations are like that. But it is dangerous stuff these dizzy days on the highways to belittle the slow driver and classify him with the drunk, the roadhog and the speed maniac.

The dawdlers are mighty few and you never hear of one running over a child, crushing a baby carriage on a crowded sidewalk or going through a drugstore window. And who are those rough, tough, inconsiderate schmoos who may be seen tearing down our crowded highways at homicidal speed in trailer trucks? Just dawdlers out for a pleasant dawdle, eh?

(Note: At this point this article had to be concluded. The writer heard a terrific crash and rushed out to see what had happened. He found a truck, a bus and two sedans full of picknickers in a tangled mass. Well, that's what comes of caution.)

Anne Notre, the Jersey gal, who won that "Hollywood Calling" gets among other things a trip abroad, an ermine coat, a diamond ring, a sedan, two poodles and a year's supply of dog food free . . . That stirs ye ed.

"There is no need for anyone to intervene between the businessman and the government in procuring government contracts. Let me repeat, there is no need to have any broker between the businessman and the government to do business."—Louis Johnson.

Well, we'd like to see some newspaper send a businessman to Washington about doing business with it and record his progress trying to see the right man.

"Ignorance and uncertainty on the part of the businessman as to how he should proceed and whom he should see have been the basic causes for his succumbing to the five percenters," added Mr. Johnson. Never was a truer word spoken. And the bureaucratic red tapers, whose chief delight is playing hard-to-find and whose motto is "Never do anything in a half hour that can be stretched over a month," would die rather than relieve the ignorance and uncertainty.

YE GOTHAM BUGLE & BANNER

Tobacco Road reached London the other night . . . . British stamina continues to get a rigid test . . . . Western Union reports a deficit of nearly four million . . . . Those "Having a wonderful time; wish you were here" telegrams must have been cut to "Arrived Okay. Toots." . . . And nobody wants a singing telegram unless it's delivered by Ezio Pinza . . . . Ginger Rogers is divorcing her third husband . . . . Love is like that.

The Greater Love

THE sight of others' suffering hurts me so,
How can God bear it, he who knows so well
The innermost recesses of the heart
That hold the secrets tongues can never tell?
I wonder at it often as I see
Some child in pain, some aged one in distress—
When my heart aches with pity, how can God
Restrain a hand with power to heal and bless?

I question it, and then I know, I know!
I learn it in this school which I attend:
Whatever hurts us, hurts his great heart more;
Whatever else may fail, he is our friend.
He does not send our grief, or pain or loss,
But if we wait and trust him as we should,
I am quite certain his great love will turn
Ultimately, all things for our good.

This Casey Will Not Strike Out

By GRANTLAND RICE

DICK HYLAND, the Stanford-Los Angeles football philosopher, used to say and write that it wasn't so much ability and skill that made southern teams hard to beat as it was "pride of section."

"It is still Dixie against the world," Dick said. There was the time the Georgia captain told Mal Stevens, Yale's coach, before the game: "I don't know who'll win but we are hoping to make the South proud of us." Yale didn't make a first down, even with Albie Booth.

Grantland Rice

In the same way I believe it is "pride of name" that gives the Yankees a keen baseball lift. They keep remembering they are Yankees when the blue chips are down—such as winning six of their first eight games with the Red Sox in Boston. Joe McCarthy has been forced to battle the prestige from other years he helped to build.

When a bunch of us left St. Petersburg last March there was little to cheer about. You knew just one cheerful thing—that Casey Stengel was doing a fine job with fine assistance from Bill Dickey, Frank Crosetti and Jim Turner.

Here is what you knew—that Joe DiMaggio would be out a long time, maybe all season That Yogi Berra was still a catching gamble, that the pitching was uncertain with Frank Shea unimproved and others on the wilder side. Would Joe Page be the pitcher of 1947 or 1949? You knew Phillips and Kryhoski were fair first basemen, but not too brilliant. Coleman, Woodling and Bauer were not seen too much. No one seemed to know anything about them. Certainly no one figured they were to help fill open gaps with so much success.

When you looked at the Yankees and then looked at the Red Sox line-up and the Cleveland line-up you had to write off a carload of "ifs" to give the Yankees a good chance. If anyone had said on the first day the Yankees are going to suffer 50 injuries and ailments and accidents of a serious nature to DiMaggio, Henrich, Berra Lindell, Porterfield, Brown, Stirnweiss, Keller and several others," any number of experts would have picked the second division for the Yankees. And no one could have blamed them.

Stengel and his staff have accomplished an amazing job in keeping morale flying high against the dark storm clouds. But they were also helped by the Yankees "pride of name." Haven't the Red Sox and Indians that same pride? Not with one pennant each in well over 20 years Both have known too many defeats when the Yankees were mopping up world series in four straight games. That name Yankee has meant more than a mere word to both the veterans and the rookies who make up the Yankee squad

Lonely Ezzard Charles

It has become pretty evident now that Ezzard Charles will be a lonely man for some time to come. All that he has left is the winner of the Savold-Woodcock fight, if it ever takes place, and that isn't much to wait for.

Charles has come to the top at a time when his division is completely devoid of anything approaching even second class quality. Gus Lesnevich, a tired old man with legs belonging to 50 years of age, was not even second class. Gus had left all his class behind him with his fighting youth. He had started taking beatings from not very good lightweights before Charles sent him into oblivion.

Charles had little chance to prove anything in his last fight. All he could prove was that today he is almost certainly the outstanding heavyweight left. All he had to prove last week was that he could hit a human punching bag at any spot or at any time but that his main ability belongs on the side of skill and not on the side of power.

Ezzard Charles is without question a good boxer who can use both hands effectively, but not in any crushing fashion. He is a good defensive fighter. Just how good he is still has to be proved. You can't prove much shadow boxing, and that is about all he has had to do.

A Varied Career

Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox has proved that he believes strongly in at least one well known motto: "Variety is the spice of baseball." Certainly no other manager has employed more winning tactics than the embattled farmer of Buffalo.

There was a day and time with the old Yankees when the taciturn McCarthy believed in knocking out all rival brains before July had rolled into August. Now he waits.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

MARIE WILSON, in New York to help publicize the hilarious screen version of "My Friend Irma," was probably the most cooperative actress Paramount has worked with in a long time. Also one of the nicest. "I want to go on making comedies," she said, "But with the radio 'My Friend Irma' going on, I won't have to take just anything that's offered." Pre-views of the picture have been so enthusiastically received that a sequel, "Irma Goes West," is being prepared, to be made with the same cast. Three members of it, Miss Wilson, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, the comedians, have been signed for "That's My Boy." So she's back on the screen to stay.

More about the pretty Marie. Arriving on one of New York's hottest days, she posed on a load of ice for news photographers. Her dog, a true lens hound, promptly scrambled up beside her and gazed into the cameras.

If you have a Mark Warnow Victor Record (No. 27868-BO) of "The Music Goes Round and Round" you may be able to get $10 for it. Mark Goodson and Bill Todman, producers of CBS' "Spin to Win," use it as their theme song, and they've worn their disc thin. So they will pay that sum for the first 10 records they receive—in good condition, of course.

Tipsters and radio columnists cannot cue listeners to the "Kate Smith Calls" show about the week's Mystery Personality. Each broadcast features a new celebrity, and a contestant must do some on-the-spot guesswork.

Betty Hutton, whose "Red, Hot and Blue" will be released before the end of the year, will make "Annie Get Your Gun" for MGM, then will do "The Life of Theda Bara" and another story based on the life of Mack Sennett.

The Fiction Corner

3-Minute Fiction

ACTING ON IMPULSE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"IT'S ABOUT TIME," said Uncle Ralph, "that you, my dear Constance, were married. You're nearly 25, which is the verge of the ineligible age. Don't let popularity turn your head, my dear, it won't last forever. One of these days you'll find yourself seeking a man, instead of being sought after. And that," Uncle Ralph added, "often means disaster."

Connie Brigham wrinkled her cute little turned-up nose, closed one eye and stared soberly at Uncle Ralph with the other. Uncle Ralph cleared his throat and began to let his gaze wander about the room. He felt guilty.

"Which," said Connie, with the slightest of twinkles, "is a polite way of suggesting that I accept Bob Merrill, and forget all about Don Baxter. She stood up and ruffled Uncle Ralph's hair, an act which he resented delightfully. And Connie went on: "Uncle Ralph, just why is it that you dislike Don so much? I think he's fascinating."

Uncle Ralph snorted. "Donald Baxter," he said, "is not a fit young man to become the husband of any girl. He's flighty, unreliable, impulsive, and out of a job. You never can tell what he's going to do next."

"He's romantic," said Connie.

"He's after your money," said Uncle Ralph.

"And he's so good looking," said Connie.

Uncle Ralph coughed. "On the other hand, Bob Merrill is dependable, honorable, manly, steady. You can count upon him to make you a good husband."

"That's just the trouble," said Connie.

"What's just the trouble?" said Uncle Ralph.

"He's steady and dependable. So easy to read. Life with Bob would be safe, yes, but it would also be monotonous."

Despite his outward jovialness Uncle Ralph was worried. while conversing with Connie.

I wish, thought Uncle Ralph, I only wish something would happen to open her eyes. Drat that Don Baxter, you never could tell what he'd do next.

Two days later Uncle Ralph had come no nearer to solving the problem.

He had considered every possible plan to make Connie see the light, and discarded them all. In the end he reluctantly decided to interview Connie again.

WITH THIS in mind Uncle Ralph rose from the veranda chair in which he was sitting, only to see Connie coming slowly up the walk. He sat down again, and picked up his newspaper. Connie came on, doleful and sorrowful of expression. She sighted Uncle Ralph, stopped and smiled whimsically.

"I guess you were right," she said.

"About what?" asked Uncle Ralph.

"Don."

"Don? How was I right about Don?"

"About never knowing what he's going to do next."

"What's he done, now?"

"He's married. Decided to last night about 6 o'clock. At 6:30 he was a married man."

"Oh, Hum," said Uncle Ralph. He was not one to gloat, hence suppressed his delight with a masterful effort. He merely said mildly, "Well, that's that. Sort of turned out like I said it would. Well, you'll be happier with Bob. He's a man in a million."

Connie shook her head. "I can never marry Bob, Uncle Ralph. That's what makes me feel so bad."

"Tsck, tsck. That's no way to talk. You'll get over Don soon enough. Bet a thousand the girl he married isn't worth one-tenth of you."

"Yes," said Connie, "she's worth all of me. I'm the girl Don married."

LK FESTIVAL

The 22nd year of the annual Mountain Music and Folk Festival at Chapel Hill, N. C., was a sell-out, and to Bascom Lamar Lunsford, "minstrel man of the mountains," goes the major portion of the credit. In the photo above the Ruby Lovingood string band from South Turkey Creek plays one of the old songs of the hills.

The Psalms We Sing

Lesson for September 25, 1949

IT WOULD be a most unusual person who on his dying bed would turn to the 23rd chapter of I Chronicles and not to the 23rd Psalm. If the reader will think of his own favorite passage of Scripture, and then look them up in some edition which prints the Bible in a modern format, he will discover that his favorite passages are probably all poetry.

Poetry's Power

WHY the appeal of poetry? For one thing, it is vivid. It is in colors, not severe black and white. It lives and breathes, at times it shouts, and it always sings.

It is true to say "The providential oversight of the Creator is continuous and unremitting;" but it is more effective to say, "The Lord is my shepherd." It would be true to say, "The evidences of creative and beneficent purpose can be seen throughout all the orders of nature;" but how much more vivid is the 148th Psalm, calling on hail and fire, sun and moon and stars of light, to praise the Lord!

Another secret of poetry's power is that it is the language of emotion. Professors and theologians may be saying the same things as the poet, and maybe even saying them more completely and accurately; but what they say is less easy to remember

So these emotional Psalms will always appeal, even to the professor when off duty, because they make us feel religion and not merely think it.

Pictures of God

SO IT IS no wonder the Psalms have been loved and sung all over the world. We are perhaps the only religion that has made so much use of another religion's hymn book. Different though our faiths may be, Jews and Christians can sing from the Psalter with one voice and heart.

For centuries it was the hymnal of the Christian church. Indeed, up to recent years some large denominations would allow in public worship the singing of no other songs than the Psalms.

Many of our best hymns and popular gospel songs, as we have already seen, are based on Psalms. "Rock of Ages, cleft for me" "A Shelter in the Time of Storm," "Hiding in Thee," — they all go back to the Psalmist's picture of God as a Rock (Ps. 42 9). The Psalmist was not thinking of a little rock in a cornfield. He was thinking of some tall crag in the fierce hot landscape of his country.

A rock there is a landmark, it is a shelter against the blazing sun, people could live under its overhanging height.

So God is the landmark of life, he gives direction to our ways; he is the shelter on life's weary journey, he is our safe dwelling.

So with the many other pictures of God in the Psalms—he is light, he is shade, he is the guard on duty at night watching over the sleeping city (Ps. 121); he is a shepherd, he is water for the thirsting soul (Ps. 42.)

A Model Hymnal

IT IS true that few Christians today can use in worship all of the Psalms, without omissions or changes. It is also true that practically all Christian churches find that the Psalms, by themselves, are inadequate to express all there is in Christian experience, faith and ideals.

The Christian hymn, entirely independent of the Psalms, has long since come into its own. And yet the Psalms remain the model hymnal. For in them beauty and truth are blended.

This should be the ideal of all Christian hymn and song books. Some of our modern "hymns" as well as some older ones, are bad because they are no better than jingles, —doggerel, not poetry, and often sung to tunes better suited to a juke box; and some are bad because they convey either nonsense or downright falsehood.

But the great hymns, and the best hymnals, are those which like the Psalms of old, combine profound truths about God and man, duty and destiny, with stately, stirring and singable music, aglow with the beauty and power of words.

Sagging Chair Bottoms

When cane bottom chairs start to sag, wash them thoroughly with hot water and dry them outdoors so they'll shrink up tight. To preserve the cane, give it a good coat of clear varnish when it's almost dry.

Prevent Scratches

Paste moleskin on the bottom of heavy ornaments and flower pots to prevent scratches on table tops. Old felt hats can be cut up and pieces used for the same purpose

Self-Watering Plants

If you have to go off and leave them for a few days, plants can be made to water themselves. Set a pan of water next to the plant and place a strip of flannel with one end in the water, the other wrapped around the base of the plant. Through the principle of osmosis, enough moisture will be conveyed from the pan to the plant to keep it alive.

Upholstered seat cushions will keep their shape and last longer if you "up end" them every night before retiring and replace them in the morning.

Football Time!

Notice that hint of fall in the air?

It means football season again. To me, football brings out true American sportsmanship . . . where the spirit of Fair Play typifies our whole American way of life.

Remember that Iowa-Illinois game a couple of years ago? The Illinois captain stopped the play to give Iowa a chance to make a substitution. Who doesn't admire such consideration for the other fellow!

We may not think alike. We may even be in competing businesses. But we all believe in American Fair Play; try to respect the other fellow's right of ideas, choice, and preference. Neighbor Joe likes dance bands . . . I enjoy old-time singing. Ed likes his hot coffee, while I prefer a temperate bottle of beer on a fall evening. We respect each other's rights and insist on fair play, whether it be a matter of a man's choice in music, or his favorite beverage.

That sense of sportsmanship is one of the great things we Americans have to be thankful for.

ROCK ISLAND LINES CUT DOWN ON TRAIN SERVICE THROUGH KLEMME

The Rock Island Lines has announced that beginning this week two-way daily train service will be eliminated between Iowa Falls and Lakota. This, of course, affects Klemme.

The Rock Island trains will now go north on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Southbound trains will run on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Local agent M. L. Harson's weekly time has also been cut and he will not be at the depot on Saturday.

STEEL CRIBS BEING BUILT HERE WILL STORE 140,000 BUSHELS OF GRAIN

The Triple A began work this week of erecting 23 Butler steel grain bins and two quonset type steel bins which will have a total capacity of 145,000 bushels of grain and which will be used by the Klemme Coop. Grain Company for storing government grain.

The buildings are being erected north of the Ben Netland residence, and an old abandoned street was opened by the Town to gain access to the buildings.

Each of the 23 Butler bins will hold 3,300 bushels, while the large quonset type will each hold 35,000 bushels of grain.

Some of the local farmers were helping the building crew to erect the new buildings.

HIGH WINDS OF PAST WEEK CAUSE DAMAGE TO CORN FIELDS

The high winds of the past week were very injurious to corn fields, causing a large percentage of the corn ears to fall to the ground.

A large percentage of the corn stalks were injured by corn borers this season, and this weakened the stalks considerably, breaking off a large number of ears during the high winds.

Soy Beans Harvested

Quite a number of Hancock County farmers began combining their fields of soy beans the past week. The beans are in good condition and dry enough for storage. Many samples of soy beans tested for moisture contained 11 and 11¼ per cent of moisture, which is very low. Corn samples tested still show too much moisture for picking and cribbing and most farmers say a good hard freeze is needed to thoroughly dry the corn for cribbing.

Clinic For Children Held At Forest City Friday

An all day clinic for children was conducted at the Lutheran Church at Forest City Friday by a staff of 4 doctors and their assistants from the University hospital.

One hundred and two children were registered for the clinic. Those from Klemme who attended to assist with the clinic were Mrs. W. F. Missman, nurse; Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, registrar, and Mrs. J. A. PEACHES HARVESTED AROUND KLEMME!

Klemme is a bit north for the successful growth of peaches. However, there are at least two places in the community that had fairly good peaches. Mrs. John Waddingham picked a number of large, nice peaches from a tree at the R. W. Elder farm, and in town Mrs. Graydon Back picked a lot of very delicious white peaches from a tree in her yard.

FLASHING RED LIGHT MEANS BRING CAR TO COMPLETE STOP

The state safety department is receiving numerous reports from school officials throughout the state who say that too many drivers are ignoring the "flashing red" school stop signs installed by many localities this summer.

Frank Ulish, safety education field director, says that the number of letters complaining of persistent violations of this sort seem to indicate a dangerous ignorance or confusion of the law by a large group of motorists.

A section of the Iowa highway code refers specifically to the electrically operated school stop signs. It says that when the sign displays a flashing red light the approaching driver must bring his car to a complete stop before entering the intersection.

When the sign shows a flashing amber light the approaching drivers must reduce speed but may go on through the intersection if it is clear and with caution.

Ulish said that some drivers may be confused by the different color or flashing the light. "Just remember that the red flash means stop and the amber flash means slow down, "caution," he said.

Violation of any authorized stop sign is a misdemeanor and is one of the major moving traffic offences which the safety department notes on the drivers individual record.

Ulish said that school officials should work with local police in setting up an educational or enforcement campaign to put a stop to persistent school stop sign violations.

He suggested that signs warning drivers they may have to stop might be erected several hundred feet in front of the actual school intersection. This would give motorists unfamiliar with the neighborhood time to comply with the law.

STIFF PENALTY FOR DRIVING WITHOUT A DRIVERS LICENSE

More Iowans are trying to evade the state's drivers license laws this year than during any other period on record and the state department calls it a "dangerous problem."

Department records for the first eight months of this year show that 1,220 drivers failed to produce valid licenses when encountered by highway patrolmen or local police. This is 127 more unlicensed drivers than were discovered in the same months last year.

During the first half of this year 18 unlicensed drivers were involved in fatal Iowa traffic accidents, according to the department.

Driving without a license is a misdemeanor which the courts may punish with a $100 to $200 fine or a jail term ranging up to 30 days. This is not the only possible penalty.

Under the safety responsibility law, the unlicensed driver is required to furnish proof of future responsibility. That means a posting of $11,000 in bonds or cash or evidence of liability insurance to that extent with the state to be held for three years after the offense.

State Safety Commissioner Alfred Kahl named the increasingly large non-licensed driver group a dangerous one. He said it includes persons whose driving abilities have never been examined; those who have avoided re-examination because of physical infirmaties and the suspended or revoked drivers.

Kahl warned that anyone who drives while his license is under suspension or revocation faces a mandatory jail sentence of not less than two or more than 30 days plus a like extension of the suspension period.

"The person who willfully neglects to obtain or renew his drivers license and then uses the highways is an expense and danger to every other qualified driver," Kahl said.

Legion And Auxiliary Will Meet Next Tuesday Evening

The next regular meeting of the Klemme Legion and Auxiliary will be held at the hall on Tuesday evening, October 4th at 8:00 o'clock. Mrs. George Buseman, Mrs. Wayne Buseman and Mrs. Bob Roths are the hostesses.

DR. PAUL GROSSHUESCH KILLED INSTANTLY IN AUTO CRASH

Truck-Car Crash 10 Miles South Of Hampton Fatal To Two

Doctor Paul Grosshuesch, the secretary-treasurer of the Mission House College, at Plymouth, Wisconsin, was instantly killed, while his brother, Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, pastor of the Klemme Evangelical and Reformed Church of Klemme, was fatally injured, and three others were seriously injured in a truck-car collision on a country road south of Hampton at 11:00 a. m. Monday. The Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, driver of the car, died at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Lutheran hospital at Hampton.

Also injured and taken to the Hampton hospital were Mrs. Calvin Grosshuesch, who suffered a double fracture above the ankle, and also a fractured collar bone. Her 2½ year old granddaughter, Judith Grosshuesch, of Melbourne, Iowa, suffered a fractured leg below the hip, and the truck driver, Fred O. Hocker, of Altoona, is in a critical conditon at the hospital.

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch died from the results of internal injuries, broken ribs and punctured lung.

Hocker was driving a gravel truck which collided with the Grosshuesch car containing four persons. The truck was going east and the Grosshuesch car was going south to Ackley where the men were to attend a meeting.

Sheriff L. M. Lemke of Franklin County, who investigated the accident said the gravel truck hit the car about in the middle on the right side and knocked it into the southeast corner of the intersection, jamming it against an electric pole. He said the Grosshuesch car was literally wrapped around the pole and both the side and the top was caved in.

Judith, who was in the rear seat at the time of the crash, was in the front seat when the car came to rest. Doctor Paul Grosshuesch was in the front seat with his brother. His death was instantaneous. His body was taken to the Beck funeral home at Iowa Falls to await arrangements.

Rev. and Mrs. Reuben Grosshuesch of, Melbourne, who had been at Klemme, were ahead of the ill fated party and were notified of the accident when they reached Ackley. Both Rev. Reuben Grosshuesch and Doctor Paul Grosshuesch had been in Klemme to take part in the Mission Festival on Sunday.

Reports from the hospital at Hampton indicate that Mrs. Grosshuesch and her granddaughter, Judith, are making a good recovery from the accident.

BOWMAN HAVE POOR LUCK HUNTING IN WISCONSIN WOODS PAST WEEK

Leslie DeMerritt and Bert Jones returned home Sunday and Henry Ward and Melvin Schaefer returned home Monday evening from deer hunting in the Wisconsin woods near Neceda, territory being opened in that region for hunting with bow and arrows only.

Jones and DeMerritt report they saw only a few deer, while Ward and Schaefer said they saw a lot of deer but could not get into range because of the dryness of the woods and the slight noise made was easily picked up by the game.

Just Wanted To Know

A rather smallish man was hailed into court charged with picking a man's pocket. The complainant was very near-sighted and didn't seem very sure of his facts. He couldn't positively identify the other man as the one who stole his watch.

The judge, faced with the lack of evidence, was forced to discharge the alleged pickpocket. When the man stood there, as if he didn't comprehend the meaning of the justice's words, the judge repeated the words which dismissed him.

"All right," he said, "you're free to go. You may leave. You are judged not guilty. Go on."

The man still wasn't sure. "Does that mean," he asked, "that I can keep the watch?"

Gr-rrr!

Dentist's wife—"Have you been able to collect that bill Mr. Jones has owed you for so long?"

Dentist—"No, darn it. I met the guy on the street yesterday and he had the nerve to snap at me with the teeth I made for him."

First Choice

A prospective father had become so keyed up with the waiting that he staged a premature celebration. He managed to break away from his drinking companions soon after midnight and headed for home. He was helped through the door by the nurse.

"Is my son here yet?" he demanded, and without waiting for a reply, continued, "Oh, he must be. Show him to me, will you, please?"

The nurse, without a word, pulled back some covers and revealed triplets. He blinked his eyes several times, counted them again to make sure it wasn't the alcohol multiplying for him, then seemed to brighten all of a sudden.

"I'll keep the one in the middle," he announced.

Somewhat Tougher

In the heat of an argument with a judge, a young lawyer lost a little of his temper. The judge was not one to brook any insolence from young whippersnappers, so he pounded his gavel and said sternly, "I fine you ten dollars for contempt of court."

Hardly were the words out of his mouth when the lawyer piped up, "Yes, Your Honor, I was sort of expecting that. I have the money right here in my vest pocket."

"Well," continued the judge, "look through your other pockets and see if you can dig up the rest of the sentence—thirty days in jail."

Never Fails

Bored—"Why do you call Mark a small-talk expert?"

Boreder—"If there's nothing to say, he'll say it."

No Consolation

The young swain climbed into a field to gather some flowers for his girl friend and sighting a bull in the same pasture, called to a nearby farmer, "Hey, mister, is this bull over here safe?"

"Well, sonny," drawled the farmer, "I don't know for sure, but I can tell you he's a dern sight safer'n you are."

JUST TO BE SURE

Farmer's wife: "This the druggist?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, be sure and write plain on them labels which is for the horse and which is for my husband. I don't want nothin' to happen to that horse before spring plowin'."

Blend shortening and honey. Add well-beaten eggs and cream. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, soda and nutmeg. Add to first mixture. Stir in nuts, dates and cereal. Drop from spoon onto lightly greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate (375°) oven about 20 minutes.

Orange Drop Cookies
(Makes 4 dozen 2½-inch cookies)

½ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
1 orange rind, grated
½ cup orange juice
2½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cup hickory nuts or black walnuts, chopped

Blend together shortening, sugar, salt and egg yolks until light. Add grated orange rind and juice. Sift together flour and baking powder. Stir into creamed mixture, then add nuts and stir until smooth. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate (375°) oven, about 15 minutes, or until delicately brown. Remove cookies from pan to a cake cooler, and ice each cookie separately, holding the cookie in hand while doing it. These cookies are iced while still warm so they will have a nice glaze when cooled. Ice with:

Orange Frosting
2 tablespoons orange juice
1½ orange rind, grated
1 egg yolk
2 cups confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

Add orange juice, grated rind and salt to egg yolk. Stir in sugar and work until smooth.

1 tablespoon cold water
2 cups sifted cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup pecans, chopped
½ cup shredded gum drops

Add sugar and water to eggs which have been beaten thoroughly. Sift together dry ingredients and sprinkle a portion over the gum drops and pecans. Add remaining dry ingredients to sugar and egg mixture: fold in nuts and gum drops. Spread thinly on an oiled and floured shallow pan, 10½"x15", and bake slowly in a moderate (325°) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. When cool, cut into bars.

Drop cookie doughs may be chilled if you do not wish to bake them all at once. Simply wrap in waxed paper or store in a well-covered bowl and refrigerate. Let soften before using by allowing to stand at room temperature.

Cookies will bake to a more even brown if the pans or sheets on which they are baked are not shiny surfaced.

When the recipe for cookies calls for a generous amount of fat, it is not necessary to grease the cookie sheet.

ECONOMIC GLANCE

U.S. Future Looks Bright

NEW YORK. — Despite what appears to be a general air of gloom permeating most official and expert thinking on the probable future of the United States, one agency thinks everything's going to be all right.

That organization is the Twentieth Century Fund, a non-profit foundation established in 1919 by the late merchant prince and philanthropist, Edward A. Filene. Its purpose is to carry on scientific research and public education on economic problems.

And, amid all the reports of recessions, unemployment and declining trade, the fund has sounded a long-range note of optimism. In a statistical study of American development, past, present and future, the agency says that by 1960 the United States could be providing adequate food, housing, education and medical care for every living American.

"We now have the highest standard of living ever attained by man," said the study. "The average American earns more money, eats better food, has a better house, better clothes, schools, theaters, more conveniences than the average citizen of any other country, anywhere, at any time."

Dynamic Country

But that is nothing compared to what we can do. Right now we are just taking a little rest during the march along the road of progress America is a dynamic country, always expanding, always going forward. Despite occasional setbacks, that is what the record shows as far back as comprehensive statistics are available.

"The whole secret of our constant advance is our ability to increase our productivity, our output per man-hour of work," says the fund.

"We have stepped this up from an average of 27c worth of goods and services turned out in an hour's work in 1850 to $1.15 in 1940 and to an expected $1.61 or more in 1960. (See chart in adjoining columns.)

"We have done this mostly by substituting the machine for human sweat and animal power By 1960 we shall be using 100 times as much mechanical energy per man-hour of work as we did in 1850.

"This increased output per hour worked is the only way to make possible higher wages to workers, lower prices to consumers, greater returns to managers and owners, and greater leisure for all of us."

The report points to a crucial fact: "We have made our progress up to now because we have had an expanding system. We are constantly starting new businesses, turning out more goods, new products, we build new factories, schools, hospitals, museums. We provide new services, more leisure."

Can Keep It Up

But can we keep it up? The fund says we can. And we can do this despite the rigors of inflation and deflation.

Our system is strained by our tendency to go too far and too fast in boom, and to drop too swiftly and too deeply in bust," says the study. "But we are aware of the danger. We are making efforts to level out the ups and downs of our business activity.

"For the long pull we can see that both boom and bust are passing phases in the steady record of our long term advance."

Doctor Holds Persons Need Bed to Themselves

NEW YORK.—A room of one's own is one of the physical conditions most conducive to a restful night, according to Dr. Victor G. Heiser, well known medical advisor.

It is the relationships with other people that sap most of an individual's daily energy, explains Dr. Heiser.

"Sleep is designed to rest the conscious mind," he says. "There is little rest if it is kept near the threshold of our consciousness by our awareness of another person."

Complete solitude is necessary to relax from the contacts of the day, free from the need to attune oneself to the moods and needs of another. Only then can fatigue be eased so that one is refreshed and ready for the next day.

Unfortunately, it is not always possible—especially in the crowded living conditions and small homes of today—to have a room of one's own. But, even if a room must be shared, each person should have a comfortable bed to himself.

Absolute relaxation and perfect rest are never possible if a bed is shared. Although both may sleep, each person is still aware of the presence of the other and this awareness affects the restfulness of their sleep.

Tests have shown that the average person turns and moves 20 to 45 times a night, but when the bed is shared these movements are necessarily restricted. The individual cannot move freely in such a way as to thoroughly rest each part of his body. Only in a bed of his own can he turn and toss at will, without disturbing or being disturbed by another.

A room of one's own is ideal—a bed of one's own is a necessity.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 6.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Hosea 14.

What is a Call of God?

Lesson for October 2, 1949

IF YOU knew exactly what God wanted you to do, would you do it? Of course you would. The trouble is: How does any one know what God's will is?

Dr. Foreman

For example, a young man is thinking about his life's work; what shall he choose? Most young men would do what they were sure God called them to do, but what is a call?

The story of Isaiah throws some light on this problem. (We are beginning this week a three months' study of the great prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah.) True, he lived some 2700 years ago, and half way to the other side of the world; but human nature has not changed in 2700 years.

From Man about Town To Man of God

ISAIAH was a young man about town, in the small but wealthy city of Jerusalem, about 700 years before Christ. He was a personal friend of all the important people, a man of good education, with wide horizons of interest, of independent means, eloquent, polished, the sort of man who makes a good career diplomat.

He tells in some detail the story of how he came to be a prophet. The story is in Isaiah 6. Perhaps if we had been there with a camera and a wire recorder we might have been able to photograph the seraphim and take down their cries, just as Isaiah saw and heard them.

What we do know is that that experience changed Isaiah's life. Up to that time (on his own showing) he had been a "man of unclean lips;" from that time on he began to be a spokesman for the Lord. Let us try to say what the story of that life-changing vision, that call, means in terms of our own experience.

The Flame of God

FIRST there was the overwhelming sense of God's reality and power and holy majesty. No one can ever experience a call who does not take God seriously.

A God "afar off," a God who is only a problem, an idea, a hypothesis, never called any one. God alone can make himself real to man; and only a man with a real sense of a living God is going to hear his call.

Next came Isaiah's realization of his own unfitness and sin A man who feels equal to a great task is probably not equal to it. "Them as knows nawthin' fears nawthin'," as the Irish say. A man who feels good enough to serve God, just as he is, is not good enough. A man without a sense of sin is too full of it.

Then comes the burning coal from the altar; Isaiah feels that his guilt is gone. No one can fully do God's will with an unforgiven heart. Isaiah was not sinless at one stroke, of course, yet it is possible to turn from all known sin; it is possible to devote one's loyalty to God; and this Isaiah did.

It was only then that he heard the call: Whom shall I send? In modern and less picturesque language, Isaiah was conscious of a need he had not felt before—that is, of God's need, of his people's need.

What those needs were will come out in later studies. The point is that young Isaiah, who hitherto had lived only for himself, now saw the need of the city and the people among whom he lived.

"Here Am I; Send Me."

THEN comes the last stage—Isaiah's willing offer of himself. His great talent was the ability to use language. He could make words march and sing as few men of any race have done. But up to that time, it seems, his gift of eloquence had been used chiefly in telling dirty stories.

Now he has repented, and been forgiven, and he says to God: Use me. His voice, his knowledge, his eloquence, which he had been using against God (or at best, only for Isaiah) he was now to use for God and man.

So there is a call: A sense of God, near and commanding and holy; repentance; forgiveness; a sense of need; willingness to devote all one's gifts to fill that need.

Malaria Still Regarded Greatest 'Mass' Killer

Although malaria, mankind's greatest killer, no longer claims its toll among the world's great as it did before discovery of quinine the disease still remains the "most important in the world from the standpoint of prevalence"

The yearly number of cases throughout the world is estimated at 600 million with 3 million deaths

Even in the United States, between one and five million cases occur annually with an estimated 1200 deaths.

By claiming such figures as Alexander the Great, Lord Byron, Oliver Cromwell, King James I of England, and a dozen or more popes among its victims, malaria through the ages has enormously influenced world history.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: We have just moved into our new home. We were told to stain our kitchen cabinets and then wax them. After living in the house a month we found that the cabinets were becoming stained and marred by the water splashing on the wood. We would like to remove the wax and restain and then varnish them Is there anything we can use to remove the wax from the cabinets without harming the wood?

ANSWER: Turpentine is a solvent for wax; use it liberally to remove all traces of wax. The liquid is inflamable, so ventilate the room while working and shut off all pilot lights and refrigerator. If you wish to apply another stain of the same color, this can go right on over the old one, although the second staining will make the color still darker. If you wish to lighten the color, you can apply a wood bleach, on sale at large paint stores.

CHANGE of LIFE?

Are you going through the functional 'middle age' period peculiar to women (38 to 52 yrs.)? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel so nervous, highstrung, tired? Then do try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. Pinkham's Compound also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect!

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Little Cattle Feeders Hold Annual Supper

On Tuesday evening at the Meservey school members of the club and their families enjoyed a pot luck supper as their annual get-to-gether to close a very successful year.

Wally Johnston who was with us last year during the summer months was welcomed back by all as full time youth assistant. Our leader, Gene Janssen handed out remaining premiums, told us about Western Lamb Feeding project and that we should get those baby beeves on full feed soon as possible for next year so they will be highly finished by the fair time.

Gene was taken fully by surprise when the president, Galen Gruis presented him with a cash gift in behalf of the club for his work during the past year. They also had a gift for Bob Feldt who worked as youth assistant during the summer and is now back in college at Ames.

Boys and girls interested in becoming members should contact Gene or any 4-H member.

We had another accident this week. Richard Green skinned his face while on the playground. We must be more careful.

We enjoyed a magician on Thursday morning. He showed us many tricks. We were very good boys and girls during the act.

We have had a few mothers come to visit us. We hope to have more.

Every student in our room is now a member of the "Good Citizens Club" which meet every Friday at nine o'clock. JoAnn Jacobs was elected as president to serve a term of six weeks. In this club we discuss how to be a good citizen at home, on the playground, and in the classroom. We also bring or memorize poems to present to the class.

We are beginning a new unit in our readers about our animal friends, and have been bringing pictures of farm animals to place on our bulletin board in connection with this unit.

We had our first visitors of the year on Thursday afternoon. They were Gary Farris' mother, grandmother and two little brothers who came to call during our reading class.

Whether we're reducing or not, moderation is a good watchword for all of us—in food—smoking—beverages—or our daily activities. That's one reason why I always give my preference to a temperate glass of beer or ale as my favorite beverage. It's a good symbol of moderation—mild, yet refreshing—and it's a good part of the temperate way of life.

Actually, moderation ADDS to the enjoyment of just about anything.

SHAMROCK SCHOOL NEWS

Third and Fourth Grade News

This week Carrol Priebe, Linda Swalve and Craig Larson celebrated their birthdays. The class enjoyed the treats these children brought.

Thursday we enjoyed a history movie which was presented by members of the fifth grade.

In music class we are learning the "Autumn Song." Many of the boys and girls are good singers and grasp the fundamentals well.

—Miss Gustafson

Freshman News

Each day we start with English class. In English we have been studying about the proper and improper use of confusing words. Next are two study periods. Then we have Home Economics for girls and Agriculture for the boys. In Home Economics the girls are learning about good grooming In Agriculture seed corn is the main topic. In the afternoon we have Algebra and General Science. General Science is very interesting, especially the experiments and moving pictures. Algebra we find difficult sometimes.

We freshmen worried a lot about initiation. but now that it's over we think it was a lot of fun.

The boys are enjoying baseball while the girls are mostly interested in basketball.

We have a likeable sponsor, teachers and class. We might not be the brighest class. but if we work hard this year we probably will succeed.

—Margaret Boland

Sophomore News

We had a test Tuesday in geometry.

In World History we have been discussing the beginning of civilization which has proved more interesting than we first thought.

In English we had themes and short stories on bravery and courage. Talks in connection with literature were given by Irs Schaefes, Maxine Barz, Harlan Anderson, Roger Howard, Maurice Jacobs, and Bill Rotns.

In biology we have been looking at cells through the microcope and also have been learning about their division of labor. We got our new workbooks this week. We have been writing experiments on finding the parts of a plant and the act of osmosis.

—Judith Brede

Junior News

We have been studying "Why We Usually Buy What We Want" in Economics. In our class period we have had some very interesting discussions.

Tuesday was a busy day for the home economics girls. We have canned four hundred lbs. of pears for the school. This made one hundred and thirty quarts.

Most of us are improving in typing. We have learned the rest of the keys, but there is still much to learn.

In English we have been busy studying how to make reports.

The sociology class learned that man's social environment is meaningful chiefly because means for understanding other human beings have developed. This week they were interested in understanding "the importance of communicaton to social life and personality development, the means of communication established in society, and the needs for further developing man's ability to communicate."

—Delores Karsjens

Senior News

Each senior has given three speaches in English IV. We have finished our short stories in literature, and are now studying for a test. In American History we are studying the 13 colonies. In Bookkeeping we are still trying to balance accounts. Most of us agree that isn't easy. In Agriculture we are studying about corn and how hybrids are started and grown.

—Willis Bock

Girls' Sports

Girls' basketball practice consists mostly of shooting baskets and trying to get back in the groove again. We've found that some of us are pretty stiff and will really have to get down to work.

On Tuesdays and Fridays we have girls' P. T. The girls have been choosing sides and playing softball.

—Luella Priebe

Basketball Outlook

The basketball prospects look very good this year as there are four letter-men back from the first team. They are Merlin Brinkman, Calvin Josten, Richard Kaduce, and "Red" Schmidt.

Other prospects are Dorance Baack, Harley Barz, Wallace Green, Lyle Goll, Norene Pearson and Luverne Schmidt.

Practice starts October 17th. The first game is November 11 at Rowan. There are 20 more games scheduled, not including the tournaments. The county tournament will be held in the Klemme High School gym this year.

—Merlin Brinkman
—Richard Kaduce

Freshman Initiation

Friday was a great day in the life of the Freshmen for that was the day that they were initiated. The boys all wore shirts and overalls inside out and backward. The girls all wore blue jeans with their hair braided in pigtails that stood straight up, each with a different colored ribbon. They looked as if they had just seen a ghost. Both the girls and boys had black or red spots that made them look as if they had the measles.

Tonight at the all high school party, there was a short program in which the freshmen paid the consequences. For entertainment the student council with the help of the teachers started the students in a little square dancing.

Every body had a grand time, especially with Mr. Andreae as master-of-ceremonies.

—Marvin Schmidt

YANKS, CIGARETTES, BUMS AND BEER . . .

Oils Skid, Garters Fall, Cathartics Fail

. . . FIGHT TO FINISH IN BIG LEAGUES

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. TWITCHELL ANALYZES

"I LOOK FOR the most exciting race in years in both baseball big leagues," declared Elmer Twitchell, eminent sports fan, pinochle player and antique nutpick collector, today. "If you wish my analysis, based largely on getting the games by radio and television, here it is. Beer, cigarettes, the Yanks, motor oils, Dem Bums and various breakfast foods will fight it out to the finish in both leagues, and any one of them can win.

* * *

"It has been a very good race so far, with the American league a little faster with the clear-cut commercials, but with the National league clearly outclassing it with the more informal testimonials to popular products. I don't recall a baseball race when the appeals to radio fans to hurry to the icebox for a cold drink were done with such spirit and form.

* * *

"In both major leagues the boys who bat out the commercials were in there trying at all times and they rarely failed to come through in the pinches. The game, it seems to me, is much faster than it used to be. When I was a boy, a game would go on all afternoon with no reference to a cigar, a lubricant or a drink. The emphasis seemed to be on garters and cathartics all via the old-fashioned billboards Advertising as a handmaiden of the national game was minimized. You could take it or leave it.

"Today from the opening cry of 'Play Ball' the contest tingles with sales talks. They are not only using the liveller ball but liveller jingles and selling arguments.

* * *

"For years I took my baseball without having my sales resistance knocked over the fence, but today it happens to me in every inning

"Hitting, pitching and base running have improved tremendously in baseball. So have enunciation and merchandising. The twirling is much better. The announcer throws [illegible] but also has a change of pace.

"They say that whoever is ahead July 4 will finish as the pennant winners. The Dodgers and a couple of breweries were out front on that date this year in one league and the Yanks and tobacco away out ahead in the American. I look for no great change.

"The final result may be influenced somewhat by mishaps. One of the top announcers in the American league has developed calcification of the vocal delivery and may be out a few weeks. And two announcers in the National are out with lame tonsils."

"What do you think of the Athletics?" we asked.

"I would have to know more about the product they sponsor," replied Mr. Twitchell.

FATHER AND SON

Q.—Popper, what is a British dollar crisis?

A.—The British dollar crisis? Ahem Well, er, it is a crisis over dollars The British have trouble buying things with the American dollar.

Q.—Like mommer does?

A.—Yes, in a way. Haven't you any home work to do?

Q.—But, popper, isn't a dollar a dollar in England just as much as in this country?

A.—No, my son I think the Willis boy is outside calling for you.

Q.—Answer my question first popper.

A.—Well, er, the dollar is an American unit. The British use pounds.

Q.—Pounds of what?

A.—A pound is their unit of money. An Englishman never asks "Lend me 10 dollars." He asks "Lend me 10 pounds."

Q.—If we say we haven't any pounds and offer him dollars will he refuse to take the money?

A.—Don't be fantastic. Of course he takes the money, but he won't spend it in dollars.

Q.—Then what good are dollars to him?

A.—The kids are playing ball across the street. Don't you need fresh air?

Q.—Popper, what is a sterling area?

A.—It is an area where sterling is the monetary base. Various countries use different kinds of money but it is converted into sterling, and where's your catcher's mitt?

Q.—Is the dollar worth more than the other kinds of money, popper?

A.—It is worth so much more that the British can't afford to use it to buy things until next September. Now beat it.

Today in a Troubled Hour

TODAY in a troubled hour I doubted God,
And then was ashamed,
For there came a voice through the darkness, calling to me,
That clearly named
Those far-off times when I had cried aloud
In my pain and grief,
Reminding me that unfailingly God's hand
Had brought relief;
Bidding me wait and hope, bidding me trust
Until I could see
That he who had never failed, still will not fail . . .
It comforted me
As a mother comforts her ailing child, and my faith
That had been so small
Suddenly grew as the young corn grew in the sun:
Straight and tall.

Why School Fails

IT HAS BEEN A PUZZLE to me, as it must be to many mothers and grandmothers, why they teach our children what they do teach them — or try to teach them — in public high schools and in all colleges

In the past, the only men who had this higher education — no women had it—were preparing for the law, medicine, the church, or service to the state. They were destined to be the rulers, attorneys, doctors, clergymen, judges, colonels in the empire's far-flung posts, teachers and professors Their studies, of course, included history, higher mathematics, international laws, Latin and living languages.

Today we trail along on the same course, dragging with us thousands of American boys and girls who will never need Latin or logarithms.

Awakened Interest

Correct speech is achieved because it is heard, read and thought about Such mathematics as any man or woman needs beyond grammar school must be learned in the express and particular business to which he or she devotes himself. Any language can be mastered by a person of good intellect in the six months before he takes a post in Brazil or Russia And similarly, enough history of any particular epoch will stay in your mind when you want it to stay there—and that desire is not apt to awaken until you have some reason to be interested in it.

Turn to any college man you know, unless he be yesterday's graduate, with the simplest Latin phrase, and he will look as blank as he did at 15 in the schoolroom. Present any problem in machinery or electronics to the average college graduate, and unless he majored in that subject and intends to follow it up, he'll know less than the unlettered lad in the garage, who can put his shock of hair into the engine hood of your car, mumble mysterious words, and have things righted in five minutes.

We don't teach them what they need We don't help them find the glory of work they like to do, because we give them work they hate to do We bore them to death all through their young years, and then are amazed they don't want to read Shakespeare or Homer. "Gosh, they gave us that stuff in school!"

Modern Conception

I've just finished reading an article on this subject by one Jack Harrison Pollack in a newspaper weekly. It describes what many modern public schools are doing along the line of "Life Adjustment." Many schools—not more than five per cent, it is true, but that means about ten million children—are allowing older pupils credits on part-time outside work, encouraging the development of character in human relations, personal contacts, individual ventures.

We all know that what our children need is strong, fine characters. If a boy or girl has that, little else matters. He is equipped by grammar school to go as far as he cares to go. So the question is; what college work can help to form strong characters, what type of training will guide young minds and souls to true self-development and self-control?

These modern schools are working actual miracles in saving youngsters from the common mistakes of adolescence. They teach sexual understanding, which is a step toward sexual morality; they inspire daring, courage, initiative and, above all, self-knowledge.

But the easier, righter, simpler place for characters to be formed is at home. The national tragedy is that 50 per cent of our fathers and mothers haven't the knowledge or the strength of mind or the fineness of character themselves, to accomplish it. America would be the strongest nation in the world, if they did. She need fear no one then. She would be so much the envy of all other nations that no foreign pagan ideology could find root in the minds and souls of her children.

A boy of 17 was given a life sentence in an eastern state years ago. He won't serve all that, perhaps, but he's been in jail almost 20 years already—good years for more fortunate boys. In the course of several talks, his foreign-born, distracted mother showed me his smeared, rubbed, blotted schoolbooks. He had studied, or rather been expected to study, algebra ancient history, English literature, folklore, gymnastics and music.

One wonders why any of us ever imagined that these would give him sound character.

Do all careers call for special training?

Answer: You cannot do any job well unless you know how to do it, and the simplest way of finding this out is to have someone who knows how teach you. But this does not mean that the only way to train yourself for any kind of work is in a school or college classroom. Many leading newspapermen never attended schools of journalism and one of the great bacteriologists of our time began as a porter in the laboratory If you can read and are not afraid to study, there are relatively few careers to which you cannot aspire.

The Fiction Corner ★ 'HELPLESS' ANNE ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

THROUGH the opening in the trees above the woods road Langford could see the dull glow against the sky. It was growing brighter by the minute, and now the smell of smoke was strong. In his ears there was the distant and ominous roar of crackling flames.

He stumbled forward, his breath a sobbing gasp in his throat, his face white and drawn from the strain of running. It seemed that he had run a thousand miles, though he knew it was not more than eight. Eight at the most. That meant there were still three to go before he reached the river. Then he'd have to swim across and make another mile up the slope to his cabin. By then it might be too late. By then the fire might have swept down on the little log structure and destroyed it, and what it contained. Anne and little Bobby. He closed his eyes to shut out the picture.

After a while he stood up and went on. The glow against the sky was brighter, bright red and orange and yellow. Against it he could see billowing smoke clouds and occasional showers of sparks. That meant the flames had reached the ridge behind the cabin. In another moment they would be sweeping down the slope toward his clearing.

His spirits sank. He choked as the smoke grew thicker and the air suffocating. Above him he heard the wail of a rising wind, and above the wind there was the increasing roar of the fire. Anne wouldn't understand until it was too late.

It couldn't be much more than a mile, he told himself. He called on his last ounce of energy and fought ahead.

Suddenly a wild hope beat in his heart. He looked up and there at his very feet was water. The river! He had come faster than he thought. But abruptly the hope died. Looking across he stared into a solid sheet of flame and smoke belching sparks. The entire slope of the hill, which was between the river and his cabin, was afire.

Groaning, he sank to his knees. Before him the river hissed and steamed as flying fragments fell into it. Its black depths mirrored the licking tongues of flame with terrible beauty.

Watching with horrible fascination, Langford's heart suddenly gave a bound. He leaped to his feet and plunged into the water, shouting. Fifty feet from shore a dark silhouette had come into the path of orange reflection, wabbling crazily but moving steadily toward the shore. Atop it, was a huddled bundle of something, that moved and propelled the silhouette forward with awkward, clumsy strokes.

LANGFORD WADED in to his armpits and then started to swim. He called again and a voice answered him, telling him to go back. But he didn't. And presently the silhouette ranged alongside and Anne's frightened eyes were looking into his own.

"Bobby?" he gasped.

"He's here, under the blankets. And I saved the hens too, and a lot of our personal things."

Langford helped push the improvised raft ashore. But it wasn't until Anne had alighted and he had carried Bobby to safety that he discovered the raft was the hencoop he'd made for Anne's chickens. Four or five boards were laid across its top and lashed together with part of the wire

"It was the only thing I could carry," Anne was saying. "I took the boards from the fence. The chickens are all in the burlap bag, and our things are sunk in a box on the other side of the river."

Langford stared at her and for no accountable reason he began to laugh. It was a curious sound, not wholly rational. But the incongruity of it was justified, for it had occurred to him what a stupid fool he'd been to think Anne helpless.

KEEPING HEALTHY
Helping the Aged Undergo Ope

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS NOT LONG since a physician in consultation with a surgeon often decided not to allow an elderly patient to undergo operation unless it was a matter of life or death.

Because there are now so many elderly men and women in the world and they are beginning to feel the effects of the aging process, physicians and surgeons are studying closely the problem of surgical operation in the elderly.

In "Geriatrics," (disease of the elderly) Dr. J. Dewey Bisgard, University of Nebraska College of Medicine, states that there is greater need for team work between the surgeon, the internist (specialist in internal diseases), anesthetist, and other specialists, and that every detail in surgical management must be cautiously and carefully observed.

These patients should be studied not by their age in years but by their age physically, as some are old at 50 and others are young at 70.

One important consideration is the nourishment of the body; if the patient is undernourished, his weight should be increased. While it is admitted that l longer than fat men, that many elderly me do not eat as much need to keep body s provide enough fat and ings to protect the ner as a food supply in a

Great Golfers Dread Short Putts

By GRANTLAND RICE

"WE DRIVE for pleasure," Johnny Farrell once said. "But we putt for money." I wonder how many dollars have been lost by putts, short putts that just slipped by the edge of the tin cup, possibly a half inch out of line? Or the putts that stopped an inch short? Or the putts that rimmed the cup?

Grantland Rice

A venerable golfer at the age of 70 would consider himself a poor fish if he missed a two-footer or even a three-footer. But consider what has happened to Ben Hogan and to Sammy Snead—to Cary Middlecoff and to many, many others high up.

I recall a masters tournament just a few years back. Ben Hogan was playing the final hole. He needed a 4 to tie the leading score. Ben hit a great drive—some 260 yards up the course. Taking out a 5 iron he almost hit the pin the ball trickling some 12 to 15 feet past the cup. This left him a tricky, downhill putt but easy enough for his 4. He tapped the ball lightly. He seemed to be heading for a 3. But the ball ran over the rim of the cup and stopped some 24 inches below. This looked to be simple enough. But as the return putt came to the cup it veered off a half an inch and Hogan had a 5. He has yet to win the masters.

Two months later, in June, Hogan again needed a 4 to tie in the playoff in the U S. open at Canterbury, Cleveland Again he hit a magnificent drive His iron to the green just slipped by the pin again and stopped 15 feet beyond. Again Ben went for his birdie 3 and again he slipped 24 inches past. And again he missed the short one—two short putts under three feet that cost him two major championships in less than two months.

You can understand why great golfers dread short putts—any putt of any length

Sammy Snead has blown more short putts that cost him heavily than any star I know. Only Sam doesn't wait for the last green. It might happen anywhere along the line. With one of the greatest all-around games golf has ever known, Snead can look back on many a green with a sad shake of his head. The short one he missed at St. Louis in the Open on the final green—the short one he missed again for the Open in Chicago—three putts from 10 or 12 feet at Tam O'Shanter in the big May's money tournament.

In the St. Pete Open, I saw Snead almost hit the pin with his second on a 500-yard hole. He had a 10-footer for a 3. He putted two feet over. He missed that one

We have often wondered how a star golfer felt who had hit two great shots requiring power and skill, control and timing, only to push or stab a two-foot putt and undo all the fine play he had used making shots far more difficult.

But putting isn't so much a matter of skill—at least not always It is also a matter of nerve control Strength has nothing to do with it. A veteran of 70 has skill enough to be a fine putter—as good as many of the better pros I've seen a few of those old codgers from 60 and up at work. Some of them can't understand how any one can miss a five-foot putt.

The .300 List

The .300 hitter, in spite of the lively ball and a slump in pitching, has regained his old place. A 300 hitter today is on the scarcer side. How many would you figure there are now at work in the two leagues?

In the two big leagues there are at least 75 players on each side, not counting pitchers, who have been at bat more than 300 times. From this list we discovered exactly 11 ball players in each circuit who had reached the .300 mark, or better, with five or six others who had a good chance to make the grade. It might also be noted that five or six are so near the .300 mark they may fall out before the season ends.

Jackie Robinson is almost certain to lead the National. He has been between .360 and 370 the greater part of the year

Country Slaughter and Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals are the next two authentic .300 hitters in the older circuit where they have been nesting between 320 and 330. Marshall, Thompson, Lockman, Musial, Hodges, Kiner and Gordon are over .300, but they can't afford to do any slipping through September Musial has been putting on a desperate scramble to reach a much higher mark, but Stan has found the traveling much rougher than it was last year He has been over 40 points away from his 1948 mark Why? ## Wide Dog Choice

When it comes to the breed of dog a man chooses to accompany him afield in search of upland game birds, the choice is far more varied than are the kind of birds sought. For decades, however, the nobility of the race of bird dogs has been the pointer and the setter, with the former having a slight edge, possibly, in preference.

The stylish, far-ranging pointer or setter never fails to bring a thrill of appreciation to the heart of the hunter as the dog goes about the sole business for which he exists—finding birds. Speed, grace, ability, superb assurance, class all stand out in obvious degree when a champion pointer or setter is at work

These proud parents are 18-month old German pointers, owned by Chagrin Falls, Ohio, residents. The puppies were three weeks old when these canine champions posed for their pictures. The German pointer, long overlooked by the general scatter-gun addict, is fast coming into widespread popularity as an efficient complement to the wing-shot.

But the lesser, unsung breeds of bird dogs are beginning to come in for a share of the attention which rightfully should have been theirs years ago. Among these are the German shorthaired pointers, the Gordon setter, the Brittany spaniels, and even cockers and springers when the game is to be flushed close to the gun.

All these proven breeds, though lacking the flash and class of their swifter, more spectacular kinsmen, can and will do the job that is to be done, provided they are properly trained and carry within themselves the instinct to hunt which distinguishes the true bird dog whatever his breed.

Not Always 'Luck'

For the angler who contends that fishing is not always "95 per cent luck," here is some ammunition:

Surveys have shown that the successful angler, whether he uses it consciously or subconsciously, is employing experience and skill, won through years of engaging in the sport of fishing, together with a wealth of "know-how" whenever he comes home with a nice catch of fish.

These surveys reveal, for instance, that the late-summer angler must know, if he is going to get any results, that best catches are made in this season from eddy waters around rocks, logs, rootwads, and along edges where plants and cover provide accessible food. Many fishermen, through inexperience or lack of knowledge, pass up these places in search for large, deep pools in which to try their luck.

How many anglers, for example, know that in many lakes the late summer months produce water stagnation in the lower half of the water level? The novice angler, fishing such spots, would be tempted to fish deep, thinking the fish would surely be found in the deeper, cooler waters. As a matter of fact, however, the contrary is often the rule, since the fish will be circulating in the upper 15 feet of water in such lakes because that is where they find sufficient oxygen.

As a tip to live-bait fishermen wishing to determine proper depths for angling in late summer and before fall has chilled the surface waters·

If your minnows die quickly at the depth you are fishing them, you are most likely fishing in the stagnant, or non-oxygenized, water level and should fish at a considerably lesser depth.

Quiet, Please!

Some of the ancient taboos of fisherman seemingly have good basis in fact and should be observed. While it has not been proved that voices on the stream bank cause fish to leave, a good fisherman will take your name off his list if you persist in talking too much near the stream. Vibrations seem to affect fish, too, as does running up and down the bank, breaking sticks underfoot, tossing articles into the water.

To the Editor:

Recently, square dancing seems to be gaining in popularity once more. The H. S. students had a sample of square dancng at the freshman initiation party and I think everyone agreed it was a lot of fun.

Why couldn't it be arranged, possibly with the Student Council, to have one night a week or every two weeks for square dancing and folk dances?

Let's everyone think about this and perhaps if enough students are interested something can be worked out.

Sincerely,
Luella Priebe

Dahl, Magor Twp.; Wm. Steinhoff, Amsterdam Twp.; Wm. Janssen, Twin Lake Twp.; Wm. Headline speakers at the huge one-day leaders rally included Governor William Beardsley, and Senator Guy Gillette, and top officials of the State Farm Bureau, plus Roger Fleming, former Iowan who now heads the Washington offices of the American Farm Bureau.

This Des Moines meeting was the first state-wide "kick-off" ever held in the state for the farm organization preceding the annual campaigns for county memberships. It will be followed in October by a "new-member drive," and in November by the usual direct mail campaign to renew old members in the organization.

DON'T GO TO SCHOOL IF YOU DON'T FEEL WELL

"Parents can help immeasurably in preventing the spread of colds and communicable diseases by refusing to allow their children to attend school if they show any signs of illness," said the Iowa State Department of Health. "Teachers, too, can do their part by sending the children home whenever it appears their health is not up to par."

Insistence upon 100 per cent school attendance at any cost is a dangerous practice, say the health department. An outstanding school attendance record is shameful if it means that the students who win them have been sent to school with colds or other conditions which expose other pupils to infection.

Several of the fastest spreading diseases, including scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, and mumps. are precisely the ones which work their way into the schools. The worst part of these diseases is that they are most infectious in the very early stages, even before full diagnosis can be made, and for that reason, the child should be kept home the moment illness is suspected. The first sign generally will be respiratory disturbance often resembling a cold.

Case rates are generally high for these diseases because parents do not report mild, undiagnosed cases and infectious children who should be at home are allowed to go to school. This laxity creates a vicious trend. The infectious disease from one homes taken to the school where children of other families become infected and carry the disease to their homes. If parents in the latter homes are equally lax, an epidemic may develop.

The health department urges parents to keep their children home whenever they are ill and indisposed, especially when they have fever, headache, or nausea.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wolfe of Garner are the proud parents of a baby girl born Monday, October 3, 1949 at the Forest City hospital. She tipped the scales at 5 pounds and 9 ounces.

"YOU ARE INVITED---"

Normally this salutation is an invitation to pleasure and recreation but this time it is of a quite different nature. We would like to call your attention to a more serious problem which requires the close cooperation of every member of the community business men as well as farmers.

The preservation of most of our vital resource is the concern of everyone. WHAT? WHY? WHERE?

In answer to the first question, we are referring to our soil. It is the richest in the world and we are losing it. We are losing it by erosion, wind and improper use. During the past few years, we have made heavy demands on it to feed ourselves and the world. With a machine we use oil and grease to maintain it in good running condition. In using our soil we must apply fertilizer, good rotations, conservation measures to maintain its present productivity.

The Hancock County Soil Conservation district has arranged a tour for Friday afternoon, October 7, 1949 to give you all an opportunity to see for yourself some of the latest methods used in conserving our greatest natural resource, the soil.

This tour will start at 1:00 p.m. on the Mrs. C. A. Arnold farm, 2 miles south and ½ mile east of Klemme, Iowa. There you will see how good land use has been incorporated in the management of farm land. Explanation of the various parts will be given.

The next stop will be at the Kenneth Olson farm where terrace construction and water control methods will be shown.

We are all dependent upon the soil for our very existence. It is to our own better interests that we encourage the conservation of the one thing that is necessary for the continuation of our present standard of living. See you all on Friday, October 7, 1949.

Another Sarajevo?

SHORTLY AFTER the end of World War I this writer stood beside a cracked piece of pavement on the main street of Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. The crack marked the place where a bomb, thrown at the Archduke Franz Ferdinand on June 28, 1914, had touched off the bloodiest war so far seen by man.

The bomb had been thrown seven years before I, then a young reconstructior worker in the Balkans, visited Sarajevo; yet in those seven years the cracked pavement had not been repaired. Reconstruction moves slow in the Balkans, thought I—at that time being a very young idealist—but it moves sure. Never again would war come to sick and weary Europe.

Well, another war did come; and today events are shaping up in these same tired but turbulent Balkans which could bring still another Sarajevo almost over night.

Should Tito be assassinated, should the Red army divisions on the Hungarian - Yugoslav border start south, should revolt flare in Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia, then war might come all over again. And war in Europe has a habit of being contagious.

Danger vs. Hope

Yet with all its dynamite-laden danger, the Balkan situation also presents one of the most optimistic developments in the cold war against Russia. For, to date, Russia has suffered serious defeats.

There are three phases to the Balkan battle, one laid in Washington, one in Yugoslavia, one in the other satellite countries. Here is how they stack up:

SITUATION 1 — Washington: Without benefit of fanfare, the state department has been doing an efficient job of boycotting trade to the little iron curtain countries. Several million dollars worth of goods ordered by Poland and Czechoslovakia are on New York docks ready to move. But they can't get clearance.

The Polish ambassador has been beating a path to state department doors, then to the commerce department, then back again. All he gets is the polite run-around. The state department says export licenses are issued by the commerce department and the commerce department says policy is fixed by the state department.

The run-around is no accident. It's deliberate and carefully planned. And it's having real repercussions behind the little iron curtain.

SITUATION 2—Behind the little iron curtain: Near economic chaos now reigns in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania This is partly a result of the U. S. trade boycott. People have money but they can't buy.

In addition, farmers are revolting at collectivization, national pride is coming to the front, and people generally don't like their Russian masters.

Tito's Spies

Also, Tito, formerly an NKVD operator trained by the Soviet, is now using NVKD methods against the Soviet, not merely in Yugoslavia, but in all the satellite countries. He has about as many underground agents in Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania as Moscow has working against him.

Should this network of undercover revolt start popping, it may start a chain reaction throughout all eastern Europe.

SITUATION 3—Yugoslavia: Tito has had 30 million dollars in gold salted away in Portugal. He now has withdrawn five million dollars to finance revolts in other satellite countries. Once disliked by the Serbs, Tito is now their hero, thanks to opposing Moscow's farm collectivization. In fact, Tito, still a staunch Communist, is stronger at home than ever, could not be kicked out of office, can only be removed by assassination.

So far, Moscow has tried the latter course—and much more frequently than has leaked to the press. Apparently Stalin, worried over what goes on in the other satellite countries, doesn't want to risk open war with their friend Yugoslavia.

Through U. S. eyes—If the Red army should cross the Yugoslav border, U S. military experts believe Tito's troops can hold out about three months.

To bolster Yugoslavia's defense, the United States has enough arms to supply four divisions stored on the British island of Malta. They could be rushed to the Dalmatian coast in a hurry.

U S. worry—Should Yugoslavia fall completely to Moscow, then Greece, according to U. S. experts, would soon go Communist. They point out that it was not until Tito cut off supplies to the Greek guerrillas that the Greek army made any real progress in cleaning up the Communists.

Point Four Data

THERE HAS BEEN much discussion, both in and out of congress about the President's Point Four program of help to backward areas throughout the world, and incidentally there has been much misunderstanding and misinformation concerning the expense involved.

The head of the United Nations food and agricultural organization, however has approached the operation of the President's program in a sagacious and common-sense manner. FAO chief is Norris E. Dodd, who is said to have turned down the secretaryship of agriculture to take the United Nations job.

Dodd is a practical dirt farmer, a career man in the department of agriculture for many years and was boomed for the secretaryship when Sen. Clinton Anderson resigned as secretary. He has just returned from a world trip investigating the world's food supply and much of his time was spent in these same backward areas where the President's Point Four program is intended to function.

According to Dodd, it takes surprisingly little money to get big results, and brains, ingenuity and "know how" will do the job better than fat handouts from diplomatic sources.

Said Dodd: "You don't start with vast expensive projects in order to better the lot of hundreds of millions of people now living near the starvation line. If we could bring half the world from the era of the sickle to the era of the scythe, we would have moved ahead a hundred years in one jump."

Started Experiments

He has started FAO experimental stations in China and in India. He cited an example in India where the major food staple, rice, is still planted, cultivated, harvested and threshed entirely by hand.

In Japan he discovered a simple hand-worked machine, brought it to India and the government there is turning out thousands of them for the peasants.

He cited corn yields in Italy raised from about 30 bushels to 120 bushels per acre with hybrid seed. Farmers everywhere, he said, were quick to grasp simple improvements all within their means without expensive mechanization.

An enthusiastic advocate of President Truman's Point Four Program, Dodd, said: "It is not money that counts, but training persons to train other people to adopt simple technical processes that require nothing more than local materials and local labor to produce. Dodd sees tremendous possibilities in the Point Four program, but only if the program is not allowed to dissipate itself in "generalities and demands of governments for vast sums of money before anything gets done."

* * *

It seems that the headlines emanating the "5 per center" congressional probe are coming from the statements and questions of the senators conducting the probe and not from any testimony or facts elicited from witnesses.

Farm Plan Issue

Agreement by President Truman and Democratic farm leaders in congress to a compromise farm price support measure as advocated by Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, means that the program sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will be a direct issue in the 1950 elections.

The secretary has already warned congress that the egg price support alone this fall will cost about 100 million dollars by the end of the year and so far this year the government under the present law has taken off the market butter, eggs, potatoes and cheese costing about 137 million dollars.

The thinking here is that with the late potato crop coming on, support prices again will soar on this crop and that with farm prices dropping, the agricultural department soon will be forced to start buying pork, turkeys and chickens to hold the price support at the parity point required by the law

Secretary Brannan maintains his plan of letting these products find their own prices on the open market, making cheaper prices, will be cheaper in the long run.

Stable Budget Urged

There are still men in congress who consider the country is going straight to the bow-wows when the budget is unbalanced and there is deficit financing.

But when an organization of business men such as the Committee of Economic Development declare that the annually balanced budget is a bad thing, that it accentuates inflation and depressions, it gives the taxpayer something to think about.

Luncheon Ideas

YOU FEEL that your head is brimming full of question instead of good ideas when comes time to think of something for luncheon?

Then tack the ideas given in today's column somewhere where they'll be sure to remind you of something guaranteed to be successful. Some of these recipes are for simple family fare while others are sheer elegant eating, suitable for guests, for a special Sunday night supper.

For a well rounded luncheon you need only a big vegetable fruit salad, chilled to icy crispness to make the main course complete. Your dessert might be cake, ice cream, or simply fruit and cookies.

Keep your pantry shelves well stocked with staples, as well as items as dried beef, deviled ham, noodles, evaporated milk, soups and condensed soups so that you can whip together these recipes without trips to the store at the last minute. In this way you'll be well prepared to meet family meal problems as well as those which arise when guests drop in.

This deviled swiss puff is truly new and different, easy to prepare and fun to eat. When made in individual casserole skillets as shown in the picture, it will be a real success at a ladies' luncheon. Any deviled ham is used in the recipe, but you might also try deviled sausage or another favorite meat spread.

The cheese mixture may be prepared, except for the baking powder, a day in advance of use, in case you are rushed for time in the preparation. Remove the mixture from the refrigerator an hour before using so that it will be soft and easy spreading. Add the baking powder just before using.

Deviled Swiss Cheese Puff
(Serves 4)

- ½ cup evaporated milk
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- ½ cup grated Swiss cheese (processed)
- ½ teaspoon onion juice
- Dash of tabasco sauce
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 2 tablespoons deviled ham
- 2 tablespoons evaporated milk
- 2 slices bread
- 2 slices tomato

Heat the ½ cup evaporated milk in top part of double boiler. Mix flour with water. Stir into milk and cook until thickened, about 5 minutes. Add the beaten egg, cheese and seasonings and continue cooking until cheese is melted and the mixture thick and creamy. Set aside to cool. Blend ham with two tablespoons of evaporated milk. Toast the slices of bread with the ham mixture, then top each with a slice of tomato. Blend baking powder into cooled cheese mixture. Spread the cheese mixture thickly on each sandwich. Place sandwiches in individual shallow casseroles or in a shallow baking pan. Place under broiler. Using moderate heat, broil until cheese is puffed and slightly browned on top. Serve at once.

Note: American cheese or pimento cheese are also good to use in the above mixture to replace Swiss cheese, if desired.

A BUDGET MEAL that is a taste-tempting dish can be turned out of dried lima beans, seasoned with onion, mace and powdered sage, the latter to point up the sausage topping. Double-rich evaporated milk poured over the beans for baking adds richness to the dish as well as keeping the beans admirably moist.

Limas Louisiana
(Serves 4)

- 1 cup dried lima beans
- 2 cups water
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon powdered sage or poultry seasoning
- ½ pound small pork sausages
- ½ cup evaporated milk
- Shredded green pepper

Wash beans, soak for several hours or overnight in four cups water. Drain, cook beans in the two cups of water until tender. Add onion, sugar and seasonings to the beans. Place the sausages in a skillet and cook until the links are browned. Use the drippings to grease the baking dish. Turn the bean mixture into the dish. Pour milk over the beans. Arrange browned sausages over the top. Shred a bit of green pepper over them and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 20 minutes.

SPOOK SWEEPERS

Ghost Tales Haunt House

WASHINGTON, D. C. — James Cypress, 64-year old custodian of the most famous haunted house in the land, should lay claim to the title of "one of the bravest men in the world." He and Carrie, his wife, who is about the same age, sweep out the spooks in what is known as the octagon house, where President James Madison and his wife, Dolly, found a roof after the British burned the White House in 1814.

James is old now, and tired. He's lived in the house for more than a quarter-century

"Golly," he said, "I don't hear any creaking doors or strange noises. Of course, that is what they talk about. There is the woman who fell over a black cat and was killed when she tumbled over the circular stairwell"

Saw Black Cats

James once saw a couple of black cats around the place and didn't mind it too much. He also recalled that once when his wife was sick he called a doctor to the loft where they live. The doctor saw some strange shadows.

Must not have been much to it, though, for the next time the Cypress family needed the doctor he came on the double.

For almost half a century now the building has been occupied by the American Institute of Architects.

Except the Cypresses' living quarters, most of the building contains offices now

It's a red brick building and isn't eight-sided at all, but six-sided The library of congress, which is supposed to know everything, doesn't know how the house got its name of octagon.

The first person who ever lived there was Col. John Taylor, a wealthy plantation owner and a friend of George Washington It is one building in the world which could, if it wishes, honestly put out a sign "George Washington Slept Here," but doesn't.

Touch of Tragedy

There was a touch of tragedy from the first. A daughter of the colonel fell in love with a Britisher, fluffed him, and he committeed suicide in the house.

After the treaty which ended the War of 1812 was signed, Washington society kicked up a fancy heel in the old building until 1821

During some uncertain times, there was an underground passage between the octagon house and the White House That now is plugged up.

During the Civil War, the building was confiscated by the government and turned into a hospital for wounded Yankee soldiers At another time, it served as a Catholic school for girls

Louisville Library Lends Copies of Famed Paintings

LOUISVILLE, Ky — Reproductions of 60 famous paintings are being loaned to Louisville families by the free public library Library-card holders may obtain one of the framed paintings and may keep it for two months. When they return it, they may obtain another if one is available.

The reproductions, including works of Van Gogh, Renoir, Picasso and Rousseau, were selected by a committee headed by Dr. Justus Bier of the University of Louisville art department.

C. R Graham, librarian, said that as far as he knows the Louisville library will be the first to lend famed paintings. Colleges have lent such pictures in the past, he said.

"The library wishes to stimulate a desire for better paintings among its patrons," he said.

"Also the library patrons will have an opportunity to become acquainted with better paintings and will be able to try out different ones in their homes before making purchases."

The largest picture in the collection is 40 inches square and the smallest 20 by 15 inches.

Czech Army Clamps Taboo On Pin-ups for Soldiers

PRAGUE. — The Czechoslovak army has outlawed the pin-up girl. No longer will the otherwise dreary barracks of the Soviet soldier be graced with pictures of the "wolf whistle induction" type.

Also, there will be no more talk or tales of fairies in the Czech schoolrooms.

The army decreed that, in place of pictures of shapely cuties wearing not much of anything, the soldiers should put up in their barracks "slogans, pictures of shock workers, and examples of our fighting tradition."

A shock worker is an eager beaver whose production is above average.

The army newspaper, Obran Lidu, announcing the decree, said. "The bathing beauty can be a model for American and British soldiers, but not for the Czech soldiers of the peoples' democratic army."

The newspaper said that one "model company" had been demoted already because the men posted pictures of scantily clad women in the barracks.

Pipe-Hanger

Man Aloft Nine Hours

NEW YORK.—Fifty-two year old Lawrence Sandusky clung dangerously to a pipe 35 feet above the ground for almost nine hours after his leg was caught between a drain pipe and the building.

He was released by police and his only injury was a cut on his left leg which was treated by an ambulance surgeon.

Sandusky told the police that he returned home about 11 at night and found he had lost his keys He decided not to awaken his wife or the neighbors and went to the roof and lowered himself on the heavy drain pipe in the rear of the building, a four-story structure

Sandusky said he had just reached the third floor, on which his apartment is located, when his leg became caught in the bracket that connects the drain pipe with the building. He shouted for help but there was no response.

Intermittently, Sandusky said, he called for help in the early morning hours, but was unable to arouse anyone.

Fake Atomic Energy Panaceas Peddled By Quack Doctors

WASHINGTON.—Widespread belief that atomic energy can work miracles in medicine has led to a rich harvest for quacks peddling panaceas, according to officials of the federal food and drug administration.

The administration's inspectors trying to protect the public from "magic cures" that are either useless or downright dangerous, have been kept busy by a boom in weirdly-named medicines and fantastic-looking gadgets that deceive the gullible by borrowing some of the wonder-words from the new vocabulary of nuclear fission.

They have seized, for example, articles branded as radio-active salts, U-235 drinking water, an atomic shin-plaster, and a device sold briskly at $50 each on the claim that it emitted "Z-rays" which would lengthen life by expanding the "hydrogen atoms" of the body.

Almost everyone has read about the results that medical science has achieved, and expects to achieve, with the radioactive isotopes produced in the atomic furnace at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

But unfortunately, officials say, too many people seem not to realize that this truly sensational new weapon against disease can be entrusted to only the most highly-qualified doctors, hospitals and research institutions Wrongly used, radioactivity is not a healer but a killer

That is why federal inspectors are genuinely relieved when they find that a quack "atomic" cure is merely worthless.

While many of the panaceas that according to the sellers, relieve pain by invisible radiation are simply fraudulent, there have been a few cases in which the food and drug administration has found to its horror that a preparation, sold without a doctor's prescription and taken without supervision, really was dangerously radioactive.

Navy's Only Ready Fleet Is Mediterranean Force

WASHINGTON.—The navy's biggest continuous operation on the high seas today is its Mediterranean force, called the sixth task fleet.

It is the only United States fleet permanently organized, fully manned and ready to fight. The rest of the navy's 682 active ships are scattered, most of them only at peacetime strength.

The Mediterranean fleet has a sharp significance—political, diplomatic and military. And it is doing things to the people of the Mediterranean and the men of the U. S. navy — making them friendlier, more understanding and more respectful toward one another.

The United States has had a strong fleet in the Mediterranean Sea since the 1942 invasion of North Africa. It has had a few ships there off and on for 150 years.

Adm. Richard L. Conolly, at the head of the U S. navy operations in that part of the world, says a strong American fleet should be kept in the Mediterranean permanently. His title is commander-in-chief, U. S. naval force, eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean.

At his headquarters in London he recently gave his views to this reporter and three other newspapermen who visited him and later sailed with the Mediterranean fleet on maneuvers.

"We are now a Mediterranean power," said Conolly. "By having our fleet there, we are demonstrating our interest in the Mediterranean countries. The Mediterranean fleet has already stiffened the determination of the Greeks and Turks to maintain their independence."

The navy's ofifcial statement of reasons for keeping naval units in the eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean says they are there: "(1)—To support the allied occupation forces and the allied military government . . . (2)—To protect U. S. interests and support U.S. policies in the areas."

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Our wallpaper is coming loose above our radiator We papered three years ago this spring. We took all the old paper off and then gave the walls a good coat of ue sizing. Could you suggest something we could use that will not loosen the paper? (We have vapor heat.)

ANSWER: As you say the paper loosened above the radiator, but evidently did not loosen anywhere else, I make the guess that the heat was in the radiator at the time of papering, and the heat dried out the glue size too quickly so that the paper did not make a good bond. If you are planning to epaper, make sure that the radiator is cold at the time you paper that part of the room.

QUESTION: Our dining-room furniture has white spots on the legs, probably caused by striking the legs with shoes. Is there some way I can touch them up? I do not want to refinish the entire piece unless I have to.

ANSWER: I suppose the pieces are made of a white wood, such as maple, and the varnish has been scuffed off. I believe you will find it more satisfactory to do a good job rather than touch up the pieces with preparations for hiding the damage. However, perhaps you would rather do it this way. If so, ask your hardware dealer for one or two of the new products made for concealing scratches and other blemishes on furniture or ask at a furniture store.

QUESTION: There is a corner crack in our bedroom wall and the ceiling has cracks We have used a preparation for fixing cracks, but after a severe winter the cracks show up again. Is there any other material besides paper that would be pretty and not crack down at the corner ? Our room is finished in calcimine Would that have to be removed if covered with other material?

ANSWER: A corner crack needs a somewhat different treatment from a crack in the straight wall. The plaster should be removed down to the lath on each side of the corner for a distance of 4 to 6 inches Then a metal corner lath is nailed in place and that part of the wall then is replastered. If you cannot get corner lath, you may be able to get metal lath in strips 8 to 12 inches wide Bend the strips at right angles to fit the corner and fasten in place. It would be advisable to have a plasterer do the job for you. The ceiling crack can be "undercut" to make it wider at the lath than at the surface. The plaster crumbs should be cleaned out and the groove wet with water. It then can be filled with patching plaster almost to the top and allowed to dry It will shrink a trifle in drying. It then should be filled to the surface and smoothed level with the surrounding plaster surface.

Hide Signs of Wealth

In every Bantu language there is a word to describe the action of a man who, owning a considerable herd of cattle, plants them out among his poorer relatives and neighbors so that he will not appear too prosperous. Everybody knows that they are his, and just how many he has, but he must avoid any appearance of ostentation. Similarly, it is not considered advisable to own too good a house or lands that are too well cultivated. Fear of exciting the envy of the chief is one of the motives that govern this attitude of mind, which always has been a powerful brake to the progress of Bantu agriculture in South Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Quandt returned home Sunday evening from their cabin at Two Harbors, Minn., where they spent several weeks. They report that bears were unusually tame and numerous this summer, and almost every day there were several around their yard. Bears even invaded the business section and a number were killed by motorists.

THE COMMUNITY

What do people really mean when they say the word "community" or speak of it as a group of people? When you think of the community do think of just the people around you or do you include the businesses and everthing that helps a small town to prosper and grow?

Then there is the question of what makes the community grow and carry on from day to day. I think the main thing around which the community is definitely centered is a common interest of the people. For example, in a small town the biggest share of the activity is centered around farming and its connections. Klemme is a good example of this type of community because it is in an agricultural section of the country. By saying this I am giving the impression there are other types of communities besides the farming community. Yes, there are such types of communities as the manufacturing, the mining, the fishing, and the dairying community, all made up principally of the same institutions, yet centered around something entirely different in nature. Every communty has churches, schools, and business houses, the number and size depending on the size of the community.

Perhaps now I shoud give you a little better picture of what I am talking about as to the size of a community. There are boundaries to a community, no laws prohibiting one to settle in it. All that is required of a person to have the right to live in a community is to keep himself clean, to be a good citizen and to carry part of the load in keeping his community a fit place in which to live. No individual has the right to tell anyone else that he must do any one thing in the community. If any problems arise as to community life there is a council formed by the representatives of the people to discuss and carry out the wishes of the people.

A good function in a community to help the people to get together and talk things over is a community center in which they can hold meetings. Nearly every community should and does have one of these gathering places to add life to the community.

When I enter a community I usually look for the pride they take in their community, with cooperation, their one object in mind is the idea of making a better community. As George Pope Morris once said, "United we stand, divided we fall," so goes the life of a community.

GRADE NEWS

The kindergarten boys and girls have brought many flowers and caterpillars to make our room more interesting. We also have more new furniture for our playhouse. Only four dental cards have been brought so for, so those four are the only ones with pictures behind the shoe.

Since first grade pupils are interested in animals, Ellen Waddingham brought three chicks to school with feed and water, and Duane Kramer brought a small turtle on Monday. We have five dental cards back already. We are hoping to have them all back before school is out.

The second grade students are having their first experiences with rythm-band instruments. Although they enjoy this very much, it is difficult for them to beat the rythm in unison.

In the third and fourth grade science classes, the children are daily obesrving a spider. They have made a home for him in a glass jar and are anxiously waiting for him to start weaving a web.

In the Junior High a new student was admitted to class last week. Her name is Mary Aarons and she comes from Ventura. The pictures on the hall bulletin board are the result of free hand drawings done in art class the past week.

HOME ECONOMICS II

Canning, canning and more canning has been the activity of the advanced home economics classes so far this year.

We are divided into groups of two. Therefore, we are learning to work together as well as to can.

Many girls have brought food from home to be canned along with the other materials needed for canning it. We have canned several things for Mrs. Andreae as she doesn't have a lot of time for canning now that school has started. Mr. Andreae thinks she is taking an awfully big chance, but we'll see

Besides canning by the conventional methods we also can a great deal the easy way--by eating it. This adds to the fun of this class.

ECONOMICS

Economics has a few of us in a very bewildered state. Those Economics terms are very confusing. It just takes some thinking, but the majority of us don't seem to be doing much of that.

We have seen two films recently. One was the on the developemnt of the aluminum industry, and the other was on the use of the different types of waxes and their uses.

In class on Thursday we learned the difference between an "undertaker" as most of us know it and the economic term.

We are planning to try a panel discussion in class soon covering some current economic problem.

Band

The band members can now go to band rehearsal without having to worry about "tryouts." There were very few changes made in chairs this six weeks, but the next one may be different, so Mr. Bulka says.

Mr. Bulka has been busy copying the music for different schools' songs the Klemme Band has to play at the basketball tournament. We surely hope we can read his script!

Wednesday was the day for the Music Mothers meeting. They came out to the old school house to hear our rehearsal. We didn't hear very many comments; were the ones we didn't hear very good? Even though audiences make us self-conscious, we like their friendship and invite them to come again.

—Beverly Beier

School News Staff

In the Senior class we elected Lillian Wille as our editor for the Shamrock News. She and the faculty advisor, Mrs. Hansen, chose Sylvia Egeland as our assistant editor. Each person in the senior class has written an article this week. Gloria Haefner was the proof reader, with Lillian, Sylvia and Beverly Beier doing the typing. The class news brings three new reporters: in the junior class, Deloris Karsjens; in the sophomore class, Bill Roths; and Margaret Boland in the freshmen class.

The September 14th issue was written by the Sophomores, the 21st by the Juniors, and the 28th by the Seniors. Future editions will be written by a mixed group of students under the leadership of our new editors.

Clink of Dime Is Death Knell of Parting Era

. . . THE PROVERBIAL NICKEL PHONE CALL

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE NICKEL'S LAST STAND

AMERICAN TELEPHONE companies are experimenting with 10-cent pay stations, which abolish the proverbial 5-cent call. Even talk is to be more expensive than ever

In some cities field tests are being made with new phone booth dime-a-call machines. We presume the tests have two purposes: (1) to see how the apparatus works; (2) to note how loudly the user squawks.

• • •

The telephone business "ain't" what it used to be and the companies are up against terrific costs. For all we know the nickel phone call is as economically unsound as the nickel bus fare, the nickel hot-dog and the nickel movie. But a bigger fight is likely, as the public has been brought up on the 5-cent phone call. It may even regard the telephone booth as the nickel's last stand.

• • •

It has seen the 5-cent piece replaced in most every field, but there is something about disassociating it from a phone booth that fills many a heart with anguish. One of the few things left in America at the old price is the nickel phone booth. It stands almost by itself as a place a man may enter without asking, "I wonder how prices have gone up in here since I was around last time."

There has always been something about the clink of a nickel in a phone booth that made sweet music, and of late it has conveyed unmistakably the soothing proof that there was still something in America not out of reach of a man in the lower brackets.

Even if you made the call and found your girl has just left for dinner with somebody else, it didn't seem exorbitant. But when it takes a dime to get the same news it will be something else again.

We can see the phone companies' point. There is not the money in conversation that there used to be. It costs twice as much to produce "number please" as it did 10 years ago. The companies say they are losing money on the transaction at nickel pay-station rates.

Nevertheless we look for a hot time at hearings before the public service commissions. Elmer Twitchell is among those who will be present with some novel pleas. "I may not fight the abolition of the nickel call if the figures show it is necessary," he said, "but I will demand that a 10-cent phone booth be made twice as roomy as a nickel one."

"I want it better ventilated too," he continued. "In a nickel phone booth you are practically in solitary confinement. If I pay a dime I may even demand a soft chair and maybe television."

• • •

("A $15,000 dream house raffled off on Sixth avenue, New York, had to be sold by the owner for $1,000 because of the costs of moving and reassembling" news item)

Want a lovely dream house?
Take a chance—you must—
Win it and, my dearies,
How the dream will bust!
Fifty cents a ticket . . .
Give your luck a try!
Who will get the building?
Some fast dollar guy!

It seems to us the dream house might have been advertised as having hot and cold indifference, a fine view of snafu, crossed-up ventilation and an acre of headaches

A British parliament member says John Bull will not be kicked around by unlettered pot bellied money magnates from the U.S. . . . This is the first indication anybody could look at Uncle Sam and sing, "He's too fat, he's too fat, he's too fat for me." . . . Ye ed hears Jolson's next pictures will be called "Jolson Hits The Jackpot," "Jolson Follows Through" or "Jolson Takes Fort Knox." . . . The driver who killed Margaret Mitchell and who is alleged to have been drunk, speeding, and on the wrong side of the road, as well as a repeated offender against traffic laws, is charged merely with involuntary manslaughter, the penalty for which is one to three years!!!

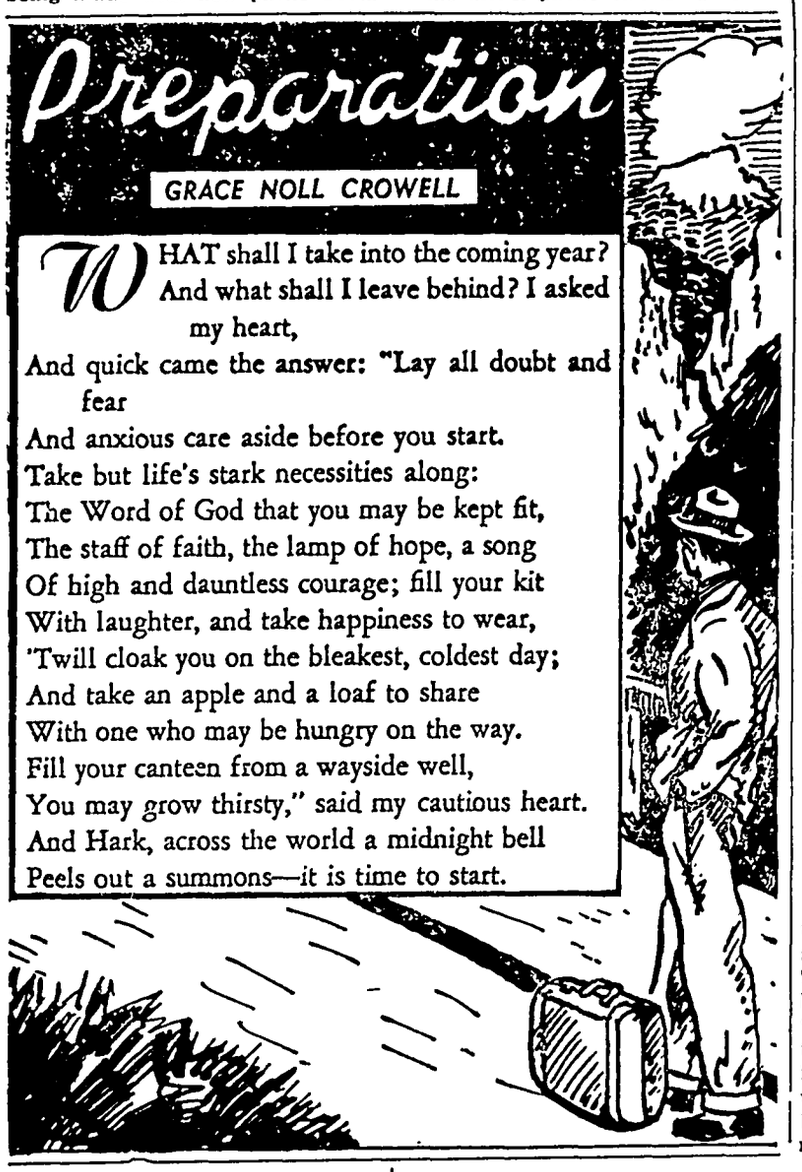
Why movie review readers go mad:

"The second Jolson film is not as sentimental nor as heart warming as its predecessor." — Kate Cameron.

"Of course the plot of the new Jolson movie is soggy with sentiment. The songs drip with nostalgia."—Jim O'Connor.



Preparation
GRACE NOLL CROWELL
WHAT shall I take into the coming year?
And what shall I leave behind? I asked my heart,
And quick came the answer: "Lay all doubt and fear
And anxious care aside before you start.
Take but life's stark necessities along:
The Word of God that you may be kept fit,
The staff of faith, the lamp of hope, a song
Of high and dauntless courage; fill your kit
With laughter, and take happiness to wear,
'Twill cloak you on the bleakest, coldest day;
And take an apple and a loaf to share
With one who may be hungry on the way.
Fill your canteen from a wayside well,
You may grow thirsty," said my cautious heart.
And Hark, across the world a midnight bell
Peels out a summons—it is time to start.

Seven-Day Religion

Lesson for October 9, 1949

EMPLOYERS don't care much for letters of recommendation signed by preachers. Not that they think preachers are dishonest. The employer is glad to know where the chap is on Sunday mornings But he would rather have a letter from somebody who sees him every Saturday night and Monday morning.

Religion Won't Keep Sweet by Itself

IT IS a temptation as old as religion, to put it on one side of a wall and life on the other. But the prophets showed, once and for all, that God has literally no use for religion which has been dissected off from life. Religion which is kept apart from life turns sour and bad. In Isaiah's time, everybody knew there was something wrong with the country.

Dr. Foreman

Isaiah's diagnosis was shocking: Religion is our principal trouble. God is tired of it. What? The pious people would exclaim. Look at the crowds in the Temple every holy day! Listen to all the prayers. count the number of tithers. If anything is wrong with our country, it can't be religion! But religion it was.

Why God Was Tired

A CATHOLIC priest would shock everybody should he call Vatican City "Hell's Half Acre" Isaiah shocked his fellow citizens by calling Jerusalem "Sodom and Gomorrah." Those cities were the worst places the Hebrews had ever heard of.

They were so bad the Lord had to destroy them by fire—not 10 good people could be found there. The prophet follows up that first shock by another. Every single expression of organized religion comes under the prophet's lash.

Sacrifices and offerings (v.11), attendance at the sanctuary, observance of the Sabbath and other holy days (v 13), church gatherings, corresponding to our rallies and conventions (v. 13), even prayers (v. 15).

Put that into modern terms: attendance at church, Bible reading, tithing, praying—if that is all, then all is no good. It may be religion, and of course it is one kind of religion; but not the kind God wants.

Indeed, Isaiah says God hates it; he is "fed up" with it (vs. 11). What was wrong? Isaiah tells them that, too, in short simple words. "Your hands are full of blood."

Oh, the people would protest, we are not killers, we don't lay a hand on anybody. Isaiah goes on to explain. seek judgment (i.e. justice), relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.

You don't kill outright, you churchgoers, he would say, but you are so indifferent to justice in your city, you take so little interest in the people at the bottom of the heap, that people die here, widows and orphans die, simply because no one cares.

What Makes a Town Worth Saving?

ALAS, nobody did care. One hundred and more years went by, and Jerusalem came close to its end. But nobody thought that disaster could strike. The belief had grown in every one's mind that the Temple of the Lord would forever insure the safety of the city in which it stood.

But a young prophet, Jeremiah, preached a sermon on the same theme as Isaiah's (Jer. 7) It is not the temple that will save you, it is not church attendance that will bring you the favor of God.

As the men of Jerusalem looked back to the great days of Moses, they thought of the sacrifices and offerings, the tabernacle and the rituals and all the pageantry and paraphernalia of a picturesque religion, as the great thing that God had given them.

But God remembered it otherwise. Jeremiah even says (with understandable exaggeration) that God had not said a word about sacrifices and offerings; the Ten Commandments, with all they implied, were the main thing.

What God looks for, back of all our church attendance and Bible reading, is "justice between a man and his neighbor." A place where that can be found is a good place

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Can a heartless person win your affect

Answer: Certainly, if he (or she) is clever enough. It is easier in some ways to win the affection of someone whom you care nothing about than of someone you are genuinely fond of, since wanting intensely to have someone like—or love—you may make you feel tense and awkward with him There are egotists who gratify their vanity by "turning on the charm" until they're sure you like them and then have no further interest in you But you're better off than they are in the long run since a person who cannot be hurt cannot be happy, either.

STAGE ☆ SCREEN ☆ RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

NOW that it's over, Robert Q. Lewis can draw a long breath and look back with pride on the terrific job that he did from August 1 to October 1. He took over for Arthur Godfrey five morning shows a week on CBS and one television show, lasting an hour, on Wednesday evenings. Godfrey's popularity made him a difficult man to fill in for, and Lewis was bound to be a target for a lot of criticism, just because he wasn't Arthur. Now they're saying that there couldn't have been a better man for the job. Lewis did his best, of course, but he wasn't worried; he's done too many outstanding shows of his own for that.

FLASH OF BRILLIANCE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

CONSIDERING the fact that the necklace was valued at $50,000 and it was not insured, Mrs. Holbrook should have been upset. The fact that she wasn't astonished even her husband, for her husband knew her for an emotional, excitable person.

"But, good lord, Bess! You might at least act concerned. I paid 50 grand for that rope. Maybe you think I'm made of money."

"That," said Mrs. Holbrook, "is the point."

"Point? What point?" Mr. Holbrook was becoming irritated.

"I mean," said Bess, "that I'm not the empty-headed, irresponsible person you think me. The diamond necklace wasn't stolen. I left it back in New York—in a safety deposit box."

"You what?"

"The jewels that were stolen were imitations. I wouldn't dream of wearing the originals without having them insured."

Mr. Holbrook's mouth fell open. "So you see," said Bess. It isn't as bad as it seems."

Rita Fenway, one of the guests, suddenly said: "But it doesn't alter the fact that there's a thief aboard. And that means we're all in danger of being robbed. And the cruise won't be over for another week."

"Of course," Mrs. Holbrook said. "And nothing could be more satisfactory. My dears, consider that we are to be on the high seas for a week. The criminal, whoever he is, will have to remain with us during that length of time. A week, my dears, will give our clever and efficient captain ample opportunity to apprehend the thief."

An hour after Mrs. Holbrook had demonstrated her hidden genius she excused herself from a group in the main lounge and unobtrusively descended to her cabin. After a moment she rang for the captain.

"Captain Talbert, my husband has undoubtedly told you about the theft and instructed you to apprehend the thief."

"Yes, ma'm. I have two of the crew making a search now."

"Instruct them to desist. It will not be necessary."

"But, Mrs. Holbrook, your husband said—"

"Never mind what my husband said. The necklace has been returned." She nodded toward a box on her dressing table.

"Returned? The imitations, you mean?"

"No. The real ones. Captain Talbert, I'm going to take you into my confidence. The story I told about the necklace being imitation was false. I've never worn false jewelry and I never shall. I merely told that story so that the thief would think his loot valueless."

CAPTAIN TALBERT'S face lighted. "And then you spoke about apprehending the criminal by searching for the imitations so that the thief would return——"

"Exactly. The imitations weren't worth keeping, and in order to dispel the possibility of having them found in his possession he decided to return them. In doing so he unintentionally returned the originals —and spared me the unpleasantness of facing my husband—alone."

Captain Talbert nodded understandingly. He knew what the word "alone" meant. He regarded Mrs. Holbrook with frank admiration. "Mrs. Holbrook, allow me to congratulate you, and please understand that you will have my fullest co-operation. After a reasonable length of time I'll announce that we have been unsuccessful in our search."

A moment later Captain Talbert went out. Left alone, Mrs. Holbrook sat down before her mirror. It had been a strain. A great strain. She sighed wearily. It was such a relief to feel that once more she could return to the role of the irresponsible spouse that her husband understood and expected.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Another Cure for Alcoholi

By Dr. James W. Barton

ALL OVER THE WORLD today determined efforts are being made by individuals and organizations to cure and prevent alcoholism. Alcoholism not only ruins the life of the alcoholic but ruins the life also of his or her family.

I have spoken before of the excellent work being done by Alcoholics Anomymous, a group made up of cured and not entirely cured alcoholics. These men and women lean on, or pray to, a higher power than themselves and ask to be given the strength to abstain from alcohol just one day at a time. The cured by this organization with branches everywhere is estimated at nearly 90 per cent.

I have also mentioned the drug benzedrine sulfate (amphetamine) which not only takes away the desire for alcohol, but gives the patient a boost physically and mentally that tides him over a weak speel or hangover.

A drug, accidentally discovered by two Danish physicians, that takes away the desire for alcohol is called antabus. In the "Journal of the American Medical Association," Drs. Erik Jacobsen and O. Martensen - Larse Denmark, report tained by antabus to December, 1948.

Cases were treate in hospitals and pay short visits to homes.

"It is important ands ocial restorat tients back into lives as soon as they may learn to lives among norm

"Antabus is che administer, but it the patient to disco thinking he can sto if he takes antabus causes very disagre —great flushing o vomiting, dizziness ness.

"These symptom that they prevent taking alcohol."

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

Consider the Farmer

IF SPORTSMEN would stop a moment to think about it, they would suddenly realize that the farmers of this nation—if they chose to take such action—virtually could end all hunting and fishing in the United States The only areas not affected by any such movement, were it ever to come, would be so infinitesimal as to be hardly worth considering.

Henry F. Davis, public relations manager for the Remington arms company, puts the case concisely and graphically in a recent Remington news letter. He writes:

The key to good hunting can be found in the pocket of the farmer.

The sooner the individual sportsman realizes that fact and starts doing something about it, the sooner he'll enjoy better hunting. The farmer is the keeper of the key to good hunting In fact he holds the key to any hunting at all.

There are some easy ways to make friends with the farmer I call them the Ten Commandments of Country Courtesy.

1 Always drive in to the farmer's yard and ask permission to hunt.

2. Hunt only in the areas he designates. Never go on ground he wishes to keep inviolate

3. Respect his fences If necessary to climb them, climb over by a post. Use gates if possible, closing them behind you Always replace lowered bars.

4 Never shoot near houses, barns or livestock.

5. Leave his fruit and other crops alone. If you want some, buy it from him.

6. Go around fields where people are working Do not walk on seeded ground. Don't walk through standing grain.

7 Shoot crows and predators that do damage to his crops and livestock

8 SHARE YOUR GAME WITH HIM

9 On your next trip, bring his wife or children some little gift or token of friendship

10. After you've become well acquainted, suggest a planting program to better game habitat, offering to finance it or help him with it, thereby showing genuine interest in his affairs.

Effect of Outboards

We imagine the outboard motor industry will be just as interested as their customers in an up-coming survey by the University of Michigan on the effect of outboard motors on fishing waters — whether they disturb the fish and interfere with the angler's success.

In fact, the Outboard Boating Club of America is sponsoring the survey, according to an announcement by the Wildlife Management Institute.

On the Record, Coaltown's Best

Coaltown vs. Citation

It is something out of the ordinary when one stable has a horse to be entered with the best of all time. Now Calumet has two. Last winter the debate rested with Citation and Man o' War. Now Warren Wright, Jimmy and Ben Jones have another starter known as Coaltown. Coaltown is the fastest horse that ever ran up to a mile and even longer. This isn't a matter of opinion. This is a matter of record.

Grantland Rice

His mile in 1.34 in Chicago recently is the fastest mile by 1/5 of a second that any thoroughbred has traveled the eight furlongs. He ran every section of the mile faster than any horse ever did before who was running the mile distance. Coaltown's 1.08 1/5 for the six furlongs is a big part of the answer, when 1.10 is considered exceptionally fast.

Ben and Jimmy Jones have always rated Citation over Coaltown. Do Ben and Jimmy Jones believe that Citation could run a mile and a quarter faster than 1.59 4/5? Or run a mile faster than 1 34? I doubt it very much.

It must be admitted that Citation had the better of the argument at the end of his three-year-old career. But there are other years beyond the 3-year-old mark. It is quite certain that Citation as a three-year-old was never as fast or sensational as Coaltown has been as a four-year-old.

This also goes for Man o' War, who never ran distances from six furlongs to a mile and a quarter in the time that Coaltown has handled. Coaltown is undoubtedly a faster horse than Citation or Man o' War up through a mile and a quarter.

It might be that he couldn't quite take care of the mile-and-a-half or the two-mile test. But he has greater speed than the two racing's greats mentioned above.

It has been over seven months since Citation ran his last race in California. His injury, a bopping of osselets, or at least a popping of the same, was pronounced slight at the time. But he has been out a long time for a horse with a minor injury.

Coaltown started with an injury and an illness. But he was sound as a three-year-old and he is even sounder as a four-year-old.

The Closest Scrap

A few days ago, we mentioned the closeness of the race for the most valuable player, the M.V.P., of the American league. At this stage of the conflict it was a casual reference, with some five or six weeks left. But it had a serious side to a number of bystanders who have definite ideas on the subject.

Those listed by various readers include Page, Henrich and Rizzuto of the Yankees; Dom DiMaggio, Williams, Stephens and Parnell of the Red Sox and George Kell of the Tigers.

In opening two successive letters, we find these two viewpoints—"You can't leave off Tommy Henrich. Remember the games he won when Joe DiMaggio was out, when the Yankees needed this uplift." "The weakest spot in the Yankee line-up is their pitching. Where would this pitching have been without Joe Page? He won the pennant for them in 1947 and if the Yankees win in 1949 it will be Page again."

"I've checked back and have found that Verne Stephens has won more games for the Red Sox than any one else," another writes. "He has been their best home-run hitter. He has driven in more runs. And a shortstop is far more valuable than an outfielder. Dom DiMaggio and Ted Williams are about on a par. Williams has driven in more runs but Dom is a lead-off man.

The odd part is that nobody se... a... to locate an M.V.P. on the Cleveland squad.

Marine Corpsman Sets Unofficial Rifle Mark

Washington, D.C.—Marine Corporal Stanley F. Sanders of Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, set an unofficial National Rifle association record recently when he fired a string of 117 consecutive bullseyes in the Maryland state .30 caliber championship rifle matches.

Sanders' feat came about in the prone rapid fire matches on the 200 yard line. Seven shooters were tied with perfect scores on the initial run, and it was necessary to continue firing in the eliminations.

The records will be posted as "unofficial" until the NRA can examine the claim for record.

Her royal highness . . .Iowa's first Dairy Industry Queen . . . Alberta Wenndt of Clarence, receives her crown at the National Dairy Cattle Congress in Waterloo, October 3, from Prof. C. A. Iverson of Iowa State College.

DAIRY QUEEN

Iowa's first Dairy Industry Queen was crowned in Waterloo Monday night when nineteen year-old Miss Alberta Wenndt, of Clarence, received the grand prize of 1000 pounds of Iowa Butter at the National Dairy Cattle Congress. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Wenndt, of Clarence.

Miss Wenndt, representing Cedar County, was honored on the stage of the Dairy Cattle Congress hippodrome before an estimated 6500 spectators. She received her crown from Prof. C. A. Iverson, head of the Dairy Industry Department, Iowa State College.

Following the presentation of the queen, her prize of 1000 lbs. of Iowa butter was sold at public auction by former governor Nels G. Kraschel. The first pound was bid in at $350 by State Brand Creameries, Mason City, Iowa. Total receipts from the 21 buyers amounted to $1408.00.

An unusually attractive, 5-foot 7-inch, blue-eyed blonde, Miss Wenndt's suntan vouches for the many hours she has spent helping her father on his farm near Clarence. Her summer activities included hay-making, oats-cutting, driving the tractor, and milking 12 cows. She is a sophomore at Iowa State Teachers College; and her prize of 1000 pounds of Iowa butter may make it possible, she hopes, for her to complete her four-year course.

More than 1000 of Iowa's young women participated in the 36 county contests, held prior to the finals in Waterloo. Each county queen was brought to the National Dairy Cattle Congress for the final competiton. Queen Alberta's reign will continue throughout the year.

WATCH EXTENTION CORDS TO AVOID FIRE DANGER

Inspect the wiring of those portable heaters you'll be using this winter and all other electrical appliances as a part of your fire-prevention campaign during National Fire Prevention Week, October 9 to 15.

Too many home accidents still occur as the result of improper wiring, use of extention cords and overheating of appliances, according to Norval Wardle, safety specialist, Iowa State College. He goes on to say that allowing electrical equipment to fall into disrepair is responsible for most of the fires charged up to electric service.

Have wiring checked and any necessary repairs and replacements made by an experienced person or a responsible electrician, Wardle emphasizes. It's worth the cost to know that wiring in the attic won't start a blaze, and that shock hazards are removed.

It's important to oil and clean the motors of electric appliances you will use this winter. That's the way to avoid fires from overheating. If your refrigerator motor isn't the "sealed-in" type be sure to oil it too.

It's in laundry room and the bathroom that many accidents occur as the result of touching fixtures with wet hands. Be sure porcelain electrical fixtures are used in the basement, bathroom and kitchen. Fixtures and appliances should be located and used beyond arm's length of the sink, the tub, the shower.

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE UTTERLY UNWORKABLE

Socialized medicine now in vogue in Britian would be "utterly unworkable" and fantastic in the Unied States.

That's the opinion of Congressman James I. Dolliver of Fort Dodge after getting a first hand look at the British system during a recent trip to Europe. And the Iowa Congressman is convinced that he doesn't want any part of it in America---and he's sure the American people want no part of it either.

Dolliver says that if he needed anything to justify his opinion that socialized medicine is not what American want "what I saw and heard in England did the job."

Costs of the British system have turned out to be double the original estimates and taxes now take about 40 percent of average person's income. Ninety-five percent of the members of the medical profession have become employees of the government in the sense that they get their pay exclusively from it. The government took over all the hospitals in England without paying for them.

Those are just few of the reasons Congressman Dolliver believes the American people want no part of a socialized medicine program, yet the Truman administration in Washington is trying desperately to "sell" the program of socialism to this nation, apparently believing that the American people want such false security more than they do freedom.

The American people won't be lulled to sleep by the Washington planners with their big schemes of "we-know-what's-best-for-you and will tell you what you shall eat, what you shall plant, what you shall wear, and what you shall have in the way of hospital service.

County Auxiliary Meeting Will Be Held In Klemme

Grosshuesch, the following men of the church went to the Barz farm with tractors and plows and did up the fall plowing: Paul Goll, Ewald Josten, Howard Baack, Ronald Barz, Elmer Meinders and Dean Rasmus.

Mr. Barz stated "The men were doing their share of church work, by helping me."

MOST SERIOUS DAMAGE WAS DONE TO NORTH IOWA CORN CROP MONDAY

Power And Telephone Lines Down All Over The State

North Iowa now knows what a hurricane is like as at 8:00 o'clock Monday morning the CAA weather observer at the Mason City municipal air port reported gusty winds up to 90 miles an hour for a few minutes. However, the wind continued to hit a 60 to 70 mile an hour velocity for most of the day and did not subside until nearly sundown.

Power and telephone lines bgan to go out of service and Klemme was without electric service all day due to Central States Electric Co. lines being down. Central Iowa Telephone Co. of Klemme had many phones out of service due to line breakages.

Many Trees Blown Down

Hundreds of trees over the area were blown done, and many of these fell across power lines. A number of trees were blown down in Klemme.

Many small buildings in the area were damaged and roofs were damaged as shingles were loosenen and blown away. The roof of the Klemme Methodist Church was damaged when the high winds loosened the slate ridge cap and tore away heavy slate shingles along the ridge. The winds also tore large patches of singles from the Reformed Church here.

Corn Fields Heaviest Loss

The damage to Iowa's corn crop is perhaps the most serious as there was so much corn with brittle stalks, coupled with corn borer damage, that there are millions of bushels of Iowa corn on the ground. This presents a serious problem for machine picking and a lot of the corn will not be harvested in the state.

Times Shop Shut Down

The Times plant shut down early in the afternoon when it was learned that electric power would be off until night, as the linotype machine and presses could not be operated. The Klemme water supply was getting low because of the lack of electric power and the operators of the local locker plant were "on needles" all day with the power off and the locker full of meat and the temperature gradually going up. However, power was turned on before the danger point was near. Other Klemme business places depending on electric power were also unable to work during the day.

SOME FARMERS FINISHED PICKING CORN LAST WEEK

A few of the early-bird farmers, and whose corn was dry enough to put in the crib, completed their annual job of picking corn last week, while others had started picking some of their crop.

Corn Borers Did Damage

The damage done by the corn borers is really showing up as many stalks were broken down, being weakened by the borers and in some fields there was a lot of corn on the ground.

Some farmers delayed starting as their corn showed too much moisture to safely crib.

Congratulations!

On Thursday of this week, October 13th, Mr. and Mrs. George Albers of Klemme will celebrate their 52nd wedding anniversary. Congratulations, to you folks!

Thanks, Awfully

A deaf old lady walked into a Main Street store, and asked for five cents' worth of castile soap.

"We don't sell a nickel's worth," said the clerk politely.

"Yes, I want the white kind," she answered pleasantly.

"You don't understand me, madam; I said a nickel wouldn't buy any castile soap in this establishment."

"Sure enough," replied the aged customer, "soap isn't what it used to be in my time; they put too much rozum in it nowadays."

"Oh, Lord!" said the distracted clerk, in a stage whisper, "will you listen to this old lunatic?" Placing his mouth to the dame's ear, he fairly screamed, "We don't sell a nickel's worth of soap here!"

"Yes," smiled the old lady, "I wish you would wrap it up securely, with a double thickness of paper; I don't want it smelling up my bag."

The clerk rushed to a box, took out a bar of soap, and almost threw it at the old woman, exclaiming, "Take it and get out, you old harridan of thunderation!"

She smiled, wrapped it herself, and carefully laid her nickel on the counter. "You're the politest and most accommodatingest young man I ever seed, and I'll call again when I need more soap."

DEBTOR

"Ah, my boy," the actor said profoundly to his fellow Thespian, "I owe a great deal to that old lady."

"Your mother?"

"Heavens, no—my landlady!"

Risky Business

"See, here," the agent at an Indian reservation said to one of the chieftains, "It's a violation of the law to have more than one wife and you have four. When you go back home you tell all of your wives except one that they can no longer regard you as their husband."

The chief pondered a moment and then replied, "Ugh, you tell 'em."

NEW FLAME

Widower had engraved on his wife's tombstone the words, "The light of my life has gone out."

A little later he married again, and one Sunday was standing with No. 2 before his first wife's grave.

Reading the above sentiment, the lady inquired in a rather huffed tone, "Is that so?"

"Yes," replied he, "but I've struck another match!"

OWNERSHIP

A young woman political worker was helping to take a preelection poll of the voters.

"May I see the gentleman of the house?" she asked of a large woman who opened the door.

"No, you can't," answered the woman.

"But I want to know the party he belongs to," pleaded the girl.

"Well, take a good look at me," she said sternly. "I'm the party!"

Could Be Done

Joe—"Well, it looks like they'll convict that guy accused of murdering his wife. He'll probably hang for it soon."

Pete—"Don't be silly. They don't hang murderers in this state."

Joe—"No? What do they do, then?"

Pete—"They kill them by elocution."

Yeah, Take It

"Sir," he began stutteringly, as he faced her father's stern gaze, "I've come to ask for your daughter's hand."

"That's all right with me, son," he replied, "just so long as you take the one that's always in my pocket."

- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon salt

Place pork in soup kettle with water, parsley, thyme and bay leaf. Bring to a boil and simmer gently for one hour. Strain out pork and herbs. Add vegetables to the broth with salt; bring to a boil and simmer for one hour. Add pork to the soup, and season to taste with more salt and pepper, if desired. Serve with grated cheese.

Clam chowder and consommé can stand a bit of tartness so it's a smart idea to float thin lemon slices on top of the soup when serving.

Grate cheese or puree some red pimientos and fold them into whipped cream for a colorful soup garnish especially attractive for the cream type soups

Soup will tempt youngsters and oldsters alike if it's sprinkled with buttered popcorn just before serving. This is an excellent idea for tomato, pea and corn soups.

MIRROR Of Your MIND ■ ■ ■ Being in Love Is Intoxication

By Lawrence Gould

Are you happiest when you're in love?

Answer: In a way, yes, but in much the same sense as you might be happier drunk than sober. For in either case your happiness is based on being able for the moment to ignore the harsh facts of life. When you're in love and the feeling is reciprocated, you believe for the time being that you can have perfect happiness without having to work for it or to adjust yourself to the moods or needs of anyone else, and, this rosy day-dream makes you feel that the world is your oyster. Realistic happiness is not as thrilling, but it's safer and more lasting.

Will a normal man prefer his parents to his wife?

Answer: No, not if he is really a man—that is, if he has grown up emotionally. Any adult who spends more time with his parents than with people of his own age shows by that fact that he is emotionally undeveloped and afraid of making social contacts on an equal basis. To retain your parents as your favorite companions is like refusing to swim without "water wings," since their real attraction for you is the feeling that they will not "let you down," whatever happens. A man whose first loyalty is not to his wife is simply not a husband.

Can early "conditioning" be undone?

Answer: Never entirely. No matter what happens to you after you grow up, you will not be the sort of person that you might have been if you had had different parents and a different kind of home life. But all of us have inherent possibilities which bad treatment and miseducation cannot wholly destroy and you can be helped to overcome the fears and inhibitions that keep you from making the most of these possibilities Few, if any, people can't be helped by psychiatric treatment to learn to enjoy a normal love life and a happy marriage.

Overcoming Sensitivity to Sun's Rays

By Dr. James W. Barton

A TEEN-AGE GIRL, fond of athletics including swimming, found that just a few minutes of sun caused irritation of the skin and the formation of hives (urticaria). Even after the hives disappeared the intense itching remained for several days. It is now known that a method of preventing the hives and itching in these cases of sun or solar urticaria has been found.

In the "Journal of Investigative Dermatology," Baltimore, Dr P L. Beal says that in solar urticaria, a brief exposure of the skin is followed in a few minutes by development of intense itching and redness at exactly the place on the skin exposed to the sun's rays. A few minutes later small patches of wheals (lumps) join together to form one large hive in the exposed skin. As this large water-filled hive enlarges, a redness appears about it in the skin that was not exposed to the sun. According to the extensity of exposure, it lasts from half an hour to several hours.

Dr. Beal presents a study made on two patients with solar urticaria. Both were women, aged 42 and 30. The sensitivity of their skin to the sun's rays was established by use of glass filters and monochromator which transmits radiant energy. It was between 2,967 and 3,347 angstrom units.

This sensitivity could be passively transferred by injecting the patient's serum (liquid part of blood) into the skin of normal persons and irradiating the spot on the skin where serum was injected with the active wave lengths.

Antihistaminic drugs (adrenalin, benadryl, peribenzadrine and others) were found to be protective against the urticarial reaction (formation of hives). By virtue of this protective action it was possible to subject these patients to gradually increasing ultraviolet exposure

Eventually the skin acquired enough tolerance to the active wave lengths and it was possible to discontinue the use of the antihistaminic substances. It is the histamine manufactured in the body itself that causes allergy in certain individuals, perhaps 10 to 20 per cent of the population.

HEALTH NOTES

When a condition exists which interferes with the proper action of the body processes, the application of heat will dilate or open up the blood vessels.

In cases of starvation, relief is obtained from animo acids, generally administered through the veins, although they give as much nourishment through the mouth.

Orthostatic or low blood pressure should be suspected if exhaustion is felt in the morning and becomes less during the day, if fainting or dim vision is produced by standing but passes away when lying down

Pain form colic or cramps may be mistaken for coronary thrombosis when it persists under the breast bone.

Smile Awhile

No Waste

During the war Mr. Bulbsnatcher was very conservation conscious. He made his wife save all the fats from her cooking He himself saved the waste paper and flattened the tin cans as per instructions, but his wife couldn't understand why he saved dead electric light bulbs.

"Why are you saving those?" she asked.

"We can make the good bulbs last longer," he explained. "by using these dead bulbs during blackouts"

No Need

"That's a waste of money!" shouted the man approached for a contribution to build a fence around the cemetery "In the first place I can't imagine anybody wanting to get in there and secondly, if those sinners already in there were to get up out of the ground the fence would melt, anyway."

Mathematics

An instructor was teaching a class an intensified course. Realizing that the boys were beginning to show the strain of constant study he decided to ease the situation with a rather pointless question.

"If a chair has four legs, is painted white and rolls on casters, how old am I?"

The surprised students sat dumbfounded. Then the most backward member of the class supplied the answer, 44

It was the instructor's turn to be amazed. "That's correct," he said, "but how did you know?"

The student supplied the second answer, "My brother is 22 and he's only half crazy"

AROUND THE HOUSE

Condiments

Keep a large shaker of both salt and pepper in the kitchen and you can add both condiments to a dish with one shaking.

Tea Flavor

A dried piece of orange rind kept in the cannister, adds a fine flavor to tea

Cole Slaw Dressing

Instead of vinegar for a cole slaw dressing, use the leftover juice from a jar of sweet pickles You'll get an unusual flavor.

Restoring Mercury

If the mercury in a thermometer separates, try to shake it together Or dip it in very cold water for a few minutes If both fail, it's usually hopeless and a new thermometer is the remedy

Coloring Margarine

To color margarine for table use, put your electric mixer to work on the job Then, without cleaning the stray margarine off the mixer paddles, use the mixer for whipping mashed potatoes.

Dumplings

If dumplings are on the same menu as gravy, don't wash the bowl in which the dumpling dough was mixed. Instead, add a little water to the dough which sticks to the bowl and use it to thicken the gravy.

Hot Water Bottle Patch

Another way to patch a leaky hot water bottle is to melt part of an old jar rubber, rub the molten rubber over the hole with a flat-bladed knife and press it down with your fingers

Test Cake Quality

The quality of a cake can be tested without cutting into the cake itself if you set aside a small portion of batter and bake it as a cupcake. When both cakes are done, a taste of the little one will reveal the quality of the large one.

Two New Uses Reported On Aluminum Foil List

Adding to the ever-growing list of uses for aluminum foil, The Aluminum association has reported two more ways that it can be used to make life easier for the housewife.

Number one: place a sheet of aluminum foil underneath the ironing board cover. Because aluminum has a high reflectivity to heat, the foil reflects enough heat back to the under surface of the material so that in effect both sides are ironed at once The Association also reports that the foil lessons the danger of scorching.

Use number two makes outdoor cooking more fun. Wrap hamburgers, frankfurters or any other meats in aluminum foil before you place them over your barbecue grill. The foil will make the meat cook more quickly while retaining the juices that are often lost in open fire cooking. And, if you have buns to place your hamburgers on, wrap them in foil and in a minute or so they'll regain their oven-freshness. For baking potatoes in the coals, wrap them in foil first. They bake more quickly and come out without a charcoal finish.

See anyone you know? No, there's no young son or daughter of yours sitting barefoot in the street, eating as if this were his first food in a long time. These children live in Germany and this meal might well be the first they've had for a long time. They're eating probably because of your donations last harvest season to the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Last year Iowa farmers contributed 393 carloads of bulk commodities for shipment to the needy overseas. This year, Iowa's goal for CROP is 450 cars, larger than last year's because the need has not lessened. The drive will open in Iowa on November 6th and will run for a week.

Since its beginning in 1947 under the sponsorship of Catholic Rural life, Church, and the Lutheran World Relief, CROP each fall has solicited bulk commodities from the agricultural states in the nation, to help feed people overseas who don't have the money to buy food Distribution is made through agencies of the churches sponsoring CROP.

SURE FIRE CHEMICAL CONTROL FOR PESTY BOXELDER BUGS

There now is a sure means of chemical control for boxelder bugs which every year invade Hancock County homes, Paul Henderson, county extension director said this week.

While boxelder bugs don't feed on anything in the house, they annoy folks by flying around lights and by crawling around the house spotting curtains with their droppings, Henderson said. Last fall nearly every home had these unwelcome visitors.

This year these bugs are back again—in even greater numbers. A few far-sighted home owners are ready for them, having caulked up all small cracks and crevices around doors and windows where the bugs enter the house. "But most of us have forgotten about boxelder bugs until now and we don't have time to close the door on them," Henderson said.

For the latter folks the chemical treatment is good news. Henderson said that chlordane used as a 5 percent spray, made with either emulsifiable concentrate or with wettable powder, will control boxelder bugs. Put it on the trunks of boxelder trees if the bugs are still concentrated there. If they have started to scatter out, put the 5 percent chlordane spray where the bugs are. Favorite resting places include the trunks of trees, sunny walls and sidewalks.

Henderson said that chlordane has a residual effect against boxelder bugs but its length depends on weather conditions. Rain seems to wash off the material completely, so you should be prepared to repeat the spraying several times.

PAINTING ON FARM PAYS IN DURABILITY, BEAUTY

The painting of farm buildings is one beauty treatment that can be justified from dollars and cents standpoint, says C. H. Van Vlack, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

Well-painted buildings are pleasing to the eye and they last longer than drab, unpainted structures that are disappearing rapidly from the Iowa farm scene. Studies have shown that unpainted buildings lasted only 37 years as compared with 53 years for those that were painted as they needed it.

Van Vlack says that the availability of labor and the dryness of farm buildings make late summer and early fall a good time to paint. He advises buying good paint with a clearly worded label that shows what is in the can.

Good paint is made up of an oil or binding liquid and pigment. The film formed by three coats of paint is only 1-200 inch thick. It needs to be tough and elastic and must have good anchorage to prevent cracking and peeling when wood expands or contracts.

Paint used on farm buildings should be high in metallic pigments in order to have durability, Van Vlack says. The most durable paints are those with such metallic pigments as iron, lead or zinc.

White outside paint may be a mixture of lead alone, or it may be white lead mixed with small amounts of other pigments. Zinc oxide added to white lead produces a hard paint that wears down slowly, but in excessive amounts it will make the paint more susceptible to cracking. For many combinations, 15 to 20 percent is the limit for zinc oxcide.

Dark paints are more durable than light ones. The iron oxide that gives the red color to barn paint is one of the most durable, Van Vlack says. Red lead, blue lead and metallic zinc are all good metalic-protective paints and rust preventers.

A common method of cheapening paints is to put in fillers or extenders, such as magnesium silicate and calcium carbonate, Van Vlack says. He cautions against adding too much extener or filler. Poor paints check or peal; they not only spoil the looks of a building, but offer little protection after a short time.

However, dark paints can carry more filler than white or tinted paints. Van Vlack says that even though the iron oxide in a red barn paint amounts to as little as 30 percent of the pigment, the paint can still be good.

SHE PAINTS

Mrs. Dessa Beard, Knoxville woman, started painting "for fun" and now finds she is pretty good at it. One of her paintings will be among a number selected to hang in an exhibit in the Des Moines art gallery. Mostly self-taught, Mrs. Beard paints "what she sees" and does not care for modernistic painting.

HAULS EVERYTHING

Jess Blasier, who in 38 years as rural mail carrier at Britt thinks he has delivered "about everything," had a new one last week; a cake baked in Sweden, sent by relatives there to the Matson sisters near Britt. The cake came by parcel post and arrived in good shape.

Mrs. Kenneth Medin returned home Sunday from Buffalo, Kentucky, where she spent a week visiting with her parents.

Mrs. Mary Waterman returned home Monday from Evanston Illinois where she had been visiting with her son-in-law and daughter, Axel Hofgren and family.

SHAMROCK GRADE NEWS

The Kindergartners have been progressing rapidly the first 6 weeks. We are now in the midst of fall projects, and soon shall begin to prepare for Hallowe'en.

Last Thursday the First graders made cardboard cats with wire whiskers. The girls made doll cradles out of oatmeal boxes. There are three reading groups now: the Colts, Kittens, and the Calves.

We had another visitor in our room this week. Lynn Huenemann's mother and little brother came to visit us on Tuesday afternoon. Dick Swalve treated the class on Wednesday, in honor of his birthday. It was the first birthday in our room this year.

The officers elected at the 3rd and 4th weekly class meeting were:
Librarian, Jeanne Barz
Door Holder, Roger Olson
Water Tender, Sandra Medin
Harlan Block. Gary Kothenbeutel, Judith Gilpin and Linda Swalve celebrated birthdays this past week.

The Fifth and Sixth grade enjoyed an educational talk by Mrs. Paul Haefner. The Sixth grade are studying the British Isles. Mrs. Haefner was kind enough to come to school and talk to us about England. I'm sure each Sixth grade student learned more in thirty minutes than in three days of reading. Thank you, Mrs. Haefner, for first hand information.

Last week the Seventh and Eighth graders were groaning over the last six weeks tests. Most of us had to take our books home every night. Our motto for this week is "To reach a port, we must sail some."

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

"Do you have your theme finished?" has been a much asked question among the Juniors this week. Every one in English III had to write an imaginative story this week about our class play. The people in the play wrote about the character they are playing, while the rest of the class wrote about the story of the play. There's been a lot of chewing on pencils, etc., trying to figure out what to write about a certain character's personality. Probably, Mrs. Hansen found out some pretty weird stories when she corrected our themes! After our first drafts were corrected we copied our themes on special theme paper according to the form that is now being used in all classes. It was a new type of test done as group subjects. We worked a lot harder than we had before, learned more, and got better final scores.

Our Reader's Digests came this week so we've begun reading them. They should be very interesting to study.

SHAMROCK EDITORIAL

The teachers are beginning to think some of the students need an explanation bureau to give them a better excuse when they come dragging in about ten minutes after school every morning. Once in a while it is to be expected, but every morning for the same people! It seems like they could try to get up a little earlier and wash the sleep out of their eyes in time to make it here by the time that the last buzzer sounds.

Of course if a bus is late that is excusable, but when all of the busses are on time and yet the people that ride these busses are late it is hard to figure out just what is going on. There is certainly no excuse for town people to be late every other morning, when others of the town folks can get here too early.

It might not be a bad idea for some of the mothers and fathers to look into this matter. Surely it is the parents' duty to see to it that the children get here on time.

BITS O' BLARNEY

Those peddlers roaming the streets last week weren't peddlers at all. It was only the Sociology class out surveying the town. OOps! Pardon me . . . I mean conducting a survey, of course. Hmmm . . . and by the way, some appetites haven't been so hearty lately ?????!

Our thanks to the Student Council for the Freshman Initiation which turned out to be such a success. At least in the opinion of he upper-classmen.

What Bliss
My first kiss!
How hard I tried
And still I missed!

And here they come . . . the report cards that is. The Emancipation Proclamation was supposed to have abolished slavery, but it's back in full swing at K. H. S. Now that the first six weeks is ending, the kids are really being "driven." Who will be the conqueror, the Studies or the Students?

Say, how did you like Mr. Patterson's beeyootiful pink shirt last week? La-dee-da . . sharp!

Flash! Miss Persons Bureau. What happened to our librarians? By the looks of the cluttered shelves they're off on a long trip to Lower Slobbovia.

Second flash! A change has been made. They weren't missing. In fact, these ambitious librarians worked far into the night, giving the shelves a complete reorganization.

BOOKKEEPING CLASS

The past week we haven't been doing very much in bookkeeping because of those students who are in Sociology having to deliver the Area Surveys. So far we have learned the bookkeeping cycle in its simplest form. Even the simplest form is difficult for some of us and we hate to think of it if it gets ny more difficult.

WORLD HISTORY

In World History we have been studying about Alexander the Great, who conquered many countries. We also have been studying about Greek culture. Some of us think that our History book is pretty dry, but with the first six weeks coming to an end, we have been studying pretty hard.

EGG PRICES SWING UP, SUPPORTS CONTINUE

With egg prices on the upswing, few Iowa eggs are expected to be processed for government buying during October, says Ralph Baker, agricultural economist at Iowa State College.

The United States Department of Agriculture has announced that it will continue to support egg prices in the Midwest through the month of Oct. The department will carry out its support program by buying dried eggs at levels which will reflect an average to producers of 35 cents a dozen for shell eggs, Baker explains.

The support program is being continued in the Midwest because of the lack of demand for low-quality eggs which may still force the average farm price of all eggs below mandatory support level of 90 percent of parity. Offerings of dried eggs for October delivery began Sept. 20th.

School Transportation

Due to a larger enrollment this school term, the Klemme Independent School purchased a new Chevrolet bus, making 4 busses in all.

Bus No. 1 is driven by Wilford Back, a new driver. His route covers the entire twenty-five mile territory north and norheast of Klemme, and accommodates twenty-nine pupils.

Bus No. 2 is driven by Graydon Back, a former driver, and covers a nineteen mile route south of town and east of highway 69. Mr. Back picks up twenty-nine pupils.

Bus No. 3 is driven by another new driver who is a senior this year, Don Finders. His route covers eighteen miles east and a little south of Klemme and accomodates twenty-nine pupils.

Bus No. 4, which is the new bus, is driven by still another new driver, Dick Kaduce, also a senior. It covers the twenty-seven mile route west of highway 69 and has thirty pupils.

The bus drivers are hoping that all motorists in and around Klemme territory will cooperate with them in observing traffic rules, especially those concerning the passing of school busses. There has been a couple instances, so far this term, where thoughtless drivers have passed parked school busses. Probably they were not intentional but they could have resulted in tragedy. Each bus is equipped with its own stop sign. The law states that no motorist is to pass school busses having this sign displayed. We hope for a safe and happy school year.

Something on the Ball—His Eyes!

By GRANTLAND RICE

HITTING A BASEBALL, like hitting a golf ball, is a combination of many details working together.

Bill Dickey was talking about Ted Williams. "If you have ever caught back of Williams," Dickey said, "you could understand why he is such a great hitter. In the first place he has a remarkable pair of eyes. He can usually tell whether the ball will pass just over the corner or an inch or two away when it is still moving towards the plate. It is really amazing how he can call these balls and strikes in advance.

Grantland Rice

"But even more remarkable," Dickey continued, "is the speed of his hands and wrists. Many hitters might wait as long as Williams does to decide whether the pitch will be a ball or a strike. But if it was to be a strike they could never get the bat into action quick enough. I recall there was many a time when I would practically feel the ball in my glove, only to hear the crack of William's bat meeting the ball, and the ball upon its way.

"Williams is a great concentrator," Dickey says "He follows the ball from the split second it leaves the pitcher's hand He never makes the mistake of taking his eye off the ball, or taking his mind off the ball. Once he decides it will be a strike his hands move with a rattler's speed."

Tall Ted came to the Red Sox in 1939. He lost three years of baseball in the naval air force, so 1949 is his eighth season. To show how consistent he is, Williams seven-year average is .354, just about what he has been hitting this season. He got away slowly this spring but has been the game's best all-around hitter to date. His lowest mark was his first year—.327. His top mark was his third year, 1941, when he reached .406.

Check back on all these statistics and you'll find the Boston hitter has done a pretty fair job of hitting a base ball.

Lou Little and Hickman

Lou Little of Columbia and Herman Hickman of Yale are without any question two of the ablest coaches football has known. But this season they are caught in the strongest, highest grid-ranking Ivy league the venerable Ivy green has known in many generations.

This is no advance alibi for Herman and Lou, for Yale and Columbia. The raw facts are that Yale and Columbia material doesn't measure up to the man-power possibilities of Cornell, Dartmouth. Pennsylvania, Brown, Princeton, Harvard, Army and maybe even Navy's young squad.

But I have a feeling that both Yale and Columbia are going to lose more than a few games to better football teams. A fine coach is a big help, but fine material is an even bigger jump towards football fame.

Now it is quite possible that Yale and Columbia will move into action with better material than one might look for. But Columbia has lost practically her entire first string, including such brilliants as Rossides and Kusserow.

No one can say yet what Lou Little has. Hickman lacked the man power, the material, that most of his rivals had last fall. Levi Jackson, Yale's captain, is a good player but in no sense a great one. He was injured in spring practice and no one can say how useful he will be. He was not up to many star eastern backs last fall. Young Spears, son of the famous Doc Spears, may be a Yale lifesaver. But one man isn't enough. Not in a conference that has Cornell, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania—plus Brown, Princeton and Harvard.

It may be that Herman Hickman and Lou Little will wave the magic wand of Merlin and overturn the football dope But the point is that football, after all, is a college game and not a matter of life and death. The game is packed with able, hard-working coaches who lack the material to compete with other coaches who are no better.

The Mile

No one can say definitely what mile runner will be the first to reach the 4 minute spot for the mile The Swedes have run within a stride or two of this mark and they may be the first to hit it.

The horse that could beat the present mark of 1.34 is the horse that holds this mark. His name is Coaltown. Given the proper track—which means lightning fast—Coaltown can beat 1.34. He may not quite reach 1.38, but he won't be far away.

God and Nations

Lesson for October 16, 1949

WHEN the Spanish fleet was about to invade England, back in Queen Elizabeth's time, nothing the English had could stop them. But when the Armada arrived, that vast fleet had been blown to bits by a storm, and the English neatly mopped up what was left. How do you account for that? The English always said God was with them. When the Nazis had overrun France in 1940, it would have been simple for them to invade England There was next to nothing to stop them But Hitler delayed from summer till fall . . and by that time the British were able to mount an invincible defence How do you account for that? Over and over again in history the unexpected, the unexpectable, the "miraculous," has happened Some call it chance; but others call it God.

God In History

BUT GOD does not always or usually operate in spectacular ways God works in history as he works in nature, out of sight, visible to the eye of faith but seldom if ever otherwise. History, from the Christian point of view, is the working-out of the purposes of God.

The pattern is not entirely clear to us, because we cannot see enough of it at once. But looking back through history, we can see signs that God has been there. This is the message of the prophets of Israel, especially of the great Isaiah.

In a troubled era, when everything seemed to be in most complete confusion, Isaiah gave out some clear and plain truths from God, and helped men then and now read the pattern of God's design.

The Life Of A Nation

ONE TRUTH is that justice is a nation's life and sin is a nation's death. God being the God of justice his purpose is to set justice in the earth. God plays no favorites among nations. Any nation that lives by God's laws, lives; the nation that defies God has signed its own death warrant. There are no peoples who can "get by" with what they please, if what they please is not the will of God. There are people now who do not believe that. They would say, Look at Russia! In Isaiah's time there were those who would say to Isaiah: You must be wrong—look at Assyria! There is a nation that does not know God, and yet grows every year stronger and stronger.

God's Ax

ISAIAH has a startling answer to that objection. (Chap. 10.) Assyria is a tool in God's hand, no more. He admits that Assyria has no standard but force, she worships only sheer Power. But there are other nations, wicked ones, which God intends to punish; one of these is the nation of Israel.

Assyria was destined to destroy Israel once and for all, and to damage Judah so severely she never would recover. All this, Isaiah says, is in God's plan.

God does not punish an evil nation with legions of angels; he punishes it with invasions and defeats in war. Assyria was an ax in the hand of God, cutting down the rotting trees of selfish and unjust nations.

Return To God!

PEOPLE in Isaiah's time were putting their trust, just as we do nowadays, in alliances, pacts, international combinations of all kinds. Isaiah warns ominously that this will not do, by itself. Not that all alliances are bad; in chapter 19 he actually pictures Assyria, Egypt and Israel as brothers-in-arms.

But he does not hold out any political scheme or combination as the best hope of a nation. Return to God! is the prophet's call. So in our time, whether it be a general MacArthur or a theologian Brunner

Many of our ablest men are warning us even now, that humanity is facing an alternative; Either go on the way of selfishness and war down to destruction, or else go back to the Source of justice, truth and love, the God in whom alone is salvation.

We looked into the matter yesterday. It was somewhat confusing. Our idea was just to get a ticket to Cos Cob. We walked up to the information booth. It was pretty crowded. A young lady wanted to know what time she could catch the "Bali Ha'i." Another wanted to know how much time there was between the express to Utica and "Strummin, On the Old Banjo."

"What time does the local to Cos Cob leave?" we asked.

"Let's Take an Old-Fashioned Walk," was all we got in response.

"Cos Cob," we repeated.

"DiMaggio just hit a homer with the bases full. Baby, 'It's Cold Outside is up next,' " came to us in loud tones.

"Listen, mister," we shouted at the information man.

"We haven't got that," he replied.

"Haven't got what?"

" 'The Wedding of Lili Marlene' " he answered. "The four winds and the seven seas on track 11 at 3:38 . . . Get your latest news from the tennis matches at window eight."

Here everything was drowned out by an argument between a station attendant and a woman toting two suitcases and a harp. She said a porter had refused to carry her bags as he had never heard her on the Hit Parade.

Both were shoved aside by a cop with a loud cry of "Aw, shut up! I wanna hear 'Room Full of Roses!' "

We finally got the information clerk's attention and repeated "Cos Cob. What time?"

"Is that by Perry Como or Tony Martin?" he asked.

"It's by Mamaroneck," we snapped.

"That's funny. Mamaroneck isn't scheduled today. Would you like to hear how the Yanks made out?"

We gave up and tottered around until we found the Cos Cob track. But the trainmen wouldn't open the door. They were all listening to "Some Enchanted Evening," no dining car, first stop Stamford, has grill car only.

FATHER AND SON

"Popper, what is that money conference in Washington all about?"

"Oh, it's some sort of huddle about British money and ours. Shouldn't you be out playing ball?"

"Is there a dollar shortage in Europe, popper?"

"There is a dollar shortage everywhere, and even you kids had better begin realizing it."

• • •

"How can the British have a dollar shortage? They use pounds, not dollars."

"They have to have a reserve of dollars for convertibility in world trade."

"But how did they get short of dollars in the reserve, popper?"

"Our dollar is worth so much more that is was in greater demand, I guess, or something. Here's your bat."

"But who demands American dollars?"

"Who doesn't!"

"Is there an American dollar shortage?"

"If you had to fill a gas tank, pay the house bills, go to a musical, order a steak dinner or two or hire a plumber these days you would not ask such a foolish question, my son."

"Why is nothing said about an American shortage of dollars?"

"Because Americans think if they have five dollars that will buy only what one buck would once buy they are away out ahead of the game. I hear the Jones boy whistling for you."

"Why must England and Canada and America have different money? Why can't we all get together on one type of money?"

"It would throw too many bookkeepers, accountants, jugglers and mathematical wizzards, out of steady employment, my son."

The Great Secret

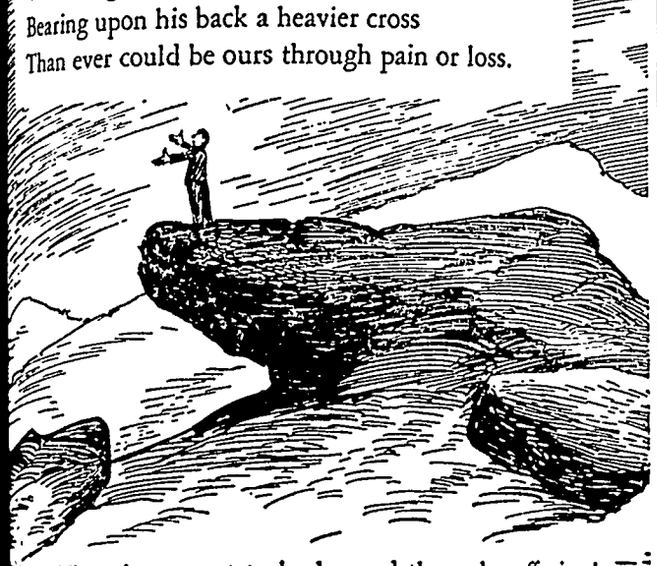
THERE is a power only those can know
Whose feet have climbed to some far Calvary
Where all the winding roads of suffering go,
With the gentle Christ companioning them, and he
Bearing upon his back a heavier cross
Than ever could be ours through pain or loss.



There is a secret to be learned through suffering!
His sympathy, his patient, gentle grace.
And pain borne bravely never fails to bring
The high white look of Christ to any face.
On any cross of sorrow and despair
We learn the secret God's own Son learned there.

Up In The Air

An author got into an elevator and continued his conversation with a friend about a story he had just written

"So I got my knife and killed her," he said. "Of course I was careful to wipe off all fingerprints with a handkerchief."

Just then the elevator stopped and the two men got off and left the wide-eyed passengers wondering what to do about the situation.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

THE EXPERT

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3 Minute Fiction

NO ONE had much faith in the new sheriff. The night preceding the day of his arrival the ranchers of the Roaring River Valley held a meeting in the Paradise Saloon. Mark Raoul, largest cattle owner in the vicinity, was the spokesman.

"No use in expectin' results from this young deputy they're sending up from the county seat. He's a westerner with eastern ideas an' a college education. Probably got a head full of new fangled notions on how to run down a bunch of Arizona cattle rustlers. Thing for us to do is organize a vigilante group on our own, and wipe them there cattle thieves off the face of the map."

"How we gonna do that," Rex Rupert wanted to know, "when we ain't got a notion where the rustlers is takin' our cattle?"

"We got as good a notion," Mark shot at him, "as any smart young deputy sheriff what aint dry behind the ears yet."

Vic Stuart, redheaded, freckled, blue-eyed and friendly, arrived the next morning and announced himself to be the new deputy assigned to the Roaring River Valley cattle rustling business. Rex Rupert, self-appointed committee of welcome, looked the youth over and decided the ranchers had been smart in postponing their vigilante organization. But Rex betrayed none of the confidence he felt when he explained the circumstances.

Vic listened and smiled and his blue eyes crinkled at the corners. "Natural," he said, "for Raoul to feel that way. Fact is I have got some new fangled ideas. It takes brains to beat a bunch of outlaws these days, whether they're stealing cattle or operating a racket."

Rex's thoughts were rather glum as he rode back to the ranch.

About midday of the next day Vic Stuart rode in just as Rex finished his lunch.

"How many armed men can you provide me?" the youth asked shortly.

Rex stared. "You ain't found the rustlers' roost?"

"That was easy. Thing to do now is scare up enough men to take care of the rustlers, who are at the present moment engaged in branding your stolen cattle."

Vic Stuart led them to a section of country familiar to them all; the hopes that Rex had entertained began to ebb. Then suddenly they burst out anew as Vic entered a narrow canyon, the existence of which was a surprise to everyone. A moment later he pointed down into a hidden valley where stood a couple of rough shacks and an astonishingly large herd of cattle.

REX asked no question, but directed his men into a fan-shaped line, then ordered them to move down the slope. The rustlers were taken by surprise. They had no idea as to the size of the attacking force, and after a desultory attempt to fight off the invaders, the main body broke and fled.

The big surprise of the affair occurred when Vic Stuart rode up with the masked leader of the rustlers and, standing before Rex and his riders, tore off the leader's mask, revealing the snarling features of Mark Raoul.

"Matter of brains," Vic grinned. "Funny thing it didn't occur to any of you hombres who've lived in this country all your lives that even a bunch of rustlers couldn't camp where there wasn't water. Only water hereabouts is the Roaring River. That was the theory I went on. I got myself a forked hazel stick and used it to locate water and to indicate the direction of the source. Forked hazel sticks never fail to indicate the presence of water if held properly in the hands of an expert." His blue eyes crinkled. "I reckon I'm an expert."

TOWN COUNCIL WILL CALL SPECIAL ELECTION ON FIRE TRUCK GARAGE

Petitions are being circulated around town asking that the Town Council call a special election at which time the following question will be voted upon:

"Shall the following public improvement be adopted: Shall the Town of Klemme, Iowa erect a fire station at a cost of not to exceed $3,500 and issue general obligation bonds for the payment of the same."

The Times has, in an earlier edition, called the attention of residents of Klemme for the need of a place to house two fire trucks: for our present fire truck and also space for the truck which will be purchased by the farmers in Liberty and Ell townships which is to be housed in Klemme.

This is a "good deal" and one that the property owners of Klemme cannot afford to pass up. We urge that the property owners support this request for a small building to house the two fire trucks by voting one hundred per cent.

The cost for each taxpayer is very small, and the benefits are great. It will give us the very best of fire protection by having this modern equipment at our disposal.

When the time comes, vote "YES".

Study Group Met At Home Of Mrs. Dwight Hummel

The Study Group of the Methodist W.S.C.S. met at the home of Mrs. Dwight Hummel with Leona Lau assisting hostess.

The day's offering of $10.00 was sent to the American Bible Society for Bibles for Japan.

A lovely lunch was served by the hostesses to the 28 adults and 9 children present.

WORTHIE K. USHER SPOKE TO LARGE CROWD HERE SUNDAY MORNING

Worthie Keus Usher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Worthie Usher of Rowan and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blank of Klemme, was the guest speaker at the Klemme Evangelical and Reformed Church Sunday morning. He spoke to a very large audience, and gave a very interesting sermon.

Mr. Usher will enter a theological school next spring. Mr and Mrs. Usher are both teaching in the Ocheydan high school this year. Mr. Usher was confirmed in the local church by the late Rev. Grosshuesch. It was while working with Rev. Grosshuesch that Usher became interested and decided to make ministry his life work.

THE VALUE OF A 4-H LEADER

Before a 4-H club can make much progress, they must have a good leader. To successfully lead a club, one must help boys and girls organize, elect officers, appoint committees, plan programs, select projects, make exhibits and plan educational tours, achievement shows and other events.

A leader who will make his club progressive, will attend all club activities. He will help young members become acquainted with club work and assist them in starting and keeping accurate records. When leaders can encourage club members to finish all projects started, compete with record books, they will be helping them lay a firm foundation for future achievements and successes in their adult careers.

Leaders must have the cooperation of parents in supporting 4-H work, because it trains youth to have a greater interest in the home and on the farm and get a better start in life.

A leader must set an example of loyalty to the group as well as an inspiration in his personal life although all work done by leaders is voluntary, they have the satisfaction of knowing they have helped young lives develop into energetic young men and women.

4-H Membership Drive Is Now On In County

CIVIC CLUB ENTERTAINS SOFTBALL TEAM AT A DINNER MONDAY EVE

The Klemme Civic Club will entertain the members of the Klemme soft ball team at a fried chicken dinned next Monday night at 6:30 o'clock at the community Hall dining room. The Auxiliary ladies will serve the dinner.

Get Your Tickets Now

An effort will be made to get tickets to all Klemme business people and their employees. If you have not been called on you can get your ticket from Ernest Gerardi, Allan Barz or Asa Arnold. The tickets are $1.00 each, but the dollar will be refunded when you present it at the dinner. In other words, the dinner is FREE if you attend, but will cost you one dollar if you don't attend. Get your ticket before Monday so that the committee will know how many to prepare for.

BUT AFTER THE ACCIDENT

It will be nothing new for residents of Klemme and community to hear of some farmer whose leg or arm or hand was gobbled into a mechanical corn picker this fall. Despite repeated safety warnings, these accidents continue. But then what happens?

Oh, yes, the neighbors come in to finish picking the corn crop; some friend does chores for a few weeks. No one says much about the hospital and doctor bills. Folks wonder what the unlucky man will do now, but they don't get very excited. After all, he's just another cripple and he'll be lucky if he can earn some kind of a living.

But it needn't be so terrible. Since the early '20's Iowa has made provision for aiding the injured worker so that he may use his remaining talents to continue as an earning member of the community. For example, in the 20 months ending August 30, 1949, a monthly average of 555 men and women were placed in productive work through agencies under state control. They were also provided artificial limbs and necessary tools to do the job for which they were trained.

These agencies, Iowa Commission for the Blind, Iowa State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, Iowa Employment Security commission and Veterans Employment service, have an admirable rehabilitation and placement record.

These agencies work with those who have been disabled by birth, disease, war injury or accident. Job finding for handicapped workers who have had special work-training is one of their important functions. Yet they must also find interested prospective employers who will recognize handicapped persons can do special job well. That's one of the reasons why President Truman and Governor Wm. Beardsley have appealed to employers during "National Employ the Physically Handicapped" week, October 2 to 8.

Has Fraternity Office

Ivan Blumer of Klemme, a student at Iowa State Teachers College, has been elected secretary-treasurer of Beta Beta Beta, national honorary biological science fraternity. The announcement was made by Dr. Dorothy Miller, faculty sponsor of the organization.

Correction

We are sorry that we missed two names on the list of men who plowed at the Raymond Barz farm. Gerald Barz and August Josten were also present with tractors and plows to help the men with the work.

4-H ENROLLMENT MONTH IS OCTOBER

Paul Henderson, county extension director is urging all boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 years to enroll at once. See your local 4-H club leaders or contact the county extension office for details and enrollment cards.

Visit with one or more of the present members for information on the 4-H program. There were over 460 members in 1949 in Hancock County, our goal for 1950.

There is a great deal to be gained by becoming a 4-H member. Any boy or girl will be well repaid in the future years if he or she will stick by the 4-H program from the time they enroll until they reach 21 years of age. There are a number of awards made available each year for outstanding 4-H members. Why not enroll and be eligible for these awards, trips, etc.

FARM BUREAU OPENS BIG MEMBERSHIP DRIVE WITH DINNER AT KLEMME HALL

Hancock County Farm Bureau opened its 1950 membership drive at a kick-off dinner Monday evening, October 17th in the Klemme Community Hall. The drive, a pre-season affair aimed especially at the signing of continuous memberships in the organization, is the first step by which the Hancock County Farm organization will reach its 1950 goal of 1450 members.

Approximately 70 volunteer organization workers at the kick-off meeting heard Wayne Tyler, State Organization Director, the chief speaker, outline issues in which Farm Bureau has been active during the past years, and then discussed the value of an independent farm organization to farm owners and operators.

The pre-season drive for new members will be followed later in the fall by a direct mail reminder too old members to renew their affiliation with the organization, and workers hope to have all 1950 membership work completed by January.

Most other counties in the state are also holding new member or continuous membership month. State-wide quota for Iowa Farm Bureau Federation has been set at 130,000 members. However, indications from the counties point to probably state total of 135,000 for next year. This figure would represent an all-time record membership for Farm Bureau in Iowa.

County Farm Bureau organization and Maintenance Chairman, Edwin Thieman assisted fieldman Paul G. Shurts. Dinner was served by the Klemme Band Mothers Club.

Cool Weather Provides Excellent Opportunity For Baking, Desserts

THOSE COOL, much longed for days are here again, and many homemakers are happy to see they've arrived if only for the simple reason that they may bake all those glamorous desserts that have to be shelved during hot weather.

If the oven's been on for baking meat, potatoes and vegetables, there's no simpler way of solving the dessert problem than popping in dessert to be baked, too. Or, if it's only a pastry shell to be baked, it helps to have the oven on for something else, so heat is not wasted.

THE CHOCOLATE CRUNCH topping for this cake is easily prepared, and the cake may be baked along with any dinner prepared in a moderate oven.

Snow Cake with Chocolate Crunch
(Makes 2 8-inch layers)

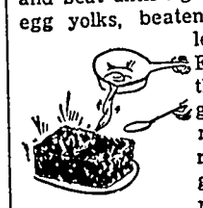
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1¾ cup sifted cake flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup milk
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Add orange rind to shortening and work until creamy. Add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, beaten until light and lemon - colored.



Fold in some of the sifted dry ingredients, then milk. Alternate remaining dry ingredients with milk, adding and beating well after each addition. Fold in vanilla extract and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour batter into two greased eight-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderately hot (375°) oven for 25-30 minutes. While cake is still warm, spread chocolate crunch between layers and over top.

Chocolate Crunch

- 1 6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate bits
- 1 cup oven-popped rice cereal

Melt chocolate bits in top part of double boiler. Add cereal and stir until well-coated with the chocolate. Spread on cake.

Molasses Chiffon Pie
(Makes 1 8-inch pie)

- 1 8-inch pie shell, baked
- ½ cup pure dark molasses
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons ground chocolate
- 3 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon plain gelatin
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Place molasses, milk sugar, chocolate, spices and slightly beaten egg yolks in top part of double boiler and cook for 15 minutes. Add gelatin which has been soaked in ¼ cup cold water for five minutes. When gelatin is dissolved, remove from range and chill until as thick as jelly. Fold the jellied mixture carefully into stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into the baked pie shell and chill until firm. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

A simple to make, fluffy cake has interesting flavor from the orange rind used in the cake mixture and the novel chocolate—cereal topping used in place of frosting. Here's a truly easy cake that will make a hit with family or guests.

If you've always thought of molasses as a pudding, cake or cookie ingredient, you'll be interested in knowing that it can also make a glamorous pie. This one uses a gelatin base, eggs and milk, as well as nourishing, iron-rich molasses. For that glamorous look, spoon velvety mounds of sweetened whipped cream around the edge.

Baked Plum Pudding
(Serves 6—8)

- 1 No. 2½ size can plums
- ½ cup shortening
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup dried bread crumbs
- 1¼ cups sifted flour
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt

Drain plums, reserving liquid for sauce. Press plums through fine sieve to give 1 cup plum pulp. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat until smooth. Add plum pulp and bread crumbs. Let stand for 10 minutes. Measure and sift flour with soda, baking powder and salt. Add to plum mixture and stir until well blended. Pour into a greased eight-inch square pan and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve with hot sauce:

- ¼ cup sugar
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup plum juice (drained from plums)
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ⅛ teaspoon salt

Combine sugar and cornstarch. Bring plum juice to a boil and add slowly the sugar-cornstarch mixture, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until thick and clean. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients. Serve over plum pudding. Top with hard sauce or whipped cream, if desired.

---

Toasted bread cubes for soup need not be made in the oven unless you're using it for something. Toast the bread in the skillet with a bit of butter.

Grated Swiss cheese may be used to replace American cheese in many dishes if you prefer the flavor. Use with eggs, chicken and asparagus especially.

Make soured milk in a hurry at home if you need it for a recipe by adding lemon juice to fresh or evaporated milk. Let stand for 5 minutes.

LYNN SAYS:
Know these Food Facts Before you Start Cooking

Shrimp should be simmered slowly so they do not lose their tenderness. The fresh shrimp may be cooked in water to which has been added a few sprigs of parsley, lemon slices, salt, pepper, celery leaves and bay leaf, if more flavor is desired.

Oysters are gentle things and should be cooked only until their edges curl slightly. Then they're done; otherwise, they get tough.

Is it easy to influence a child's feelings?

Answer: Almost dangerously easy—both for him and for you. A child's attitude toward almost any thing or person depends on the feelings he associates with it (or him), and the earlier these associations are formed the more lasting the attitude will be The tone in which your child hears you speak a person's name may influence him to love or to fear that person ever after. But you'll seldom influence a child to like something by saying that it is "good for him"—he likes things that he associates with "fun" or pleasure.

It was learned beginning that not only saved by group treat- also that the members were greatly encour- that so many others e odd ideas and be- dly as themselves. New England Medical n. William B. Terhune, Yale University, and James R. Dickerson, New Canaan, Conn., two outstanding psychiatrists, state that the group method of treatment has been so successful in veterans' hospitals and in private practice, that it is now in general use everywhere. The group provides the patient with emotional satisfactions that he was denied in childhood and has not found in his daily life, outside his family. Through group discussions he comes to realize that he is not so different from others.

Where the patient is treated privately, he leans upon the psychiatrist for help and guidance, in group treatment he depends on the other members of the group who in turn, look to him for help. They all help and are helped, which raises their morale.

This group treatment has shown its value not only as a time saver and relatively inexpensive method of treatment, but has, in itself, values not found in individual treatment. The patient is regarded as a social being and in the group learns to adapt himself to others.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Fisherman's Luck

When Cal Johnson, noted outdoor sports writer and angling authority, landed his 67½ pound world's record muskellunge recently, little did he suspect that he had received a rich legacy from the abode of Father Neptune. To Johnson, the mammoth's 'lunge was just another record as it reposed upon the beach of Lac Court O' Reilles, near Hayward, Wis., the morning of July 24, but only a few weeks passed when he realized that the record fish was a treasure thrust upon him from the deep. Here's what has transpired:

Major national magazines are clamoring for the story, a 1950 eight cylinder car has been won in a fishing contest conducted by a leading outdoor magazine, medals, trophies and cash have been won in other fishing contests, along with oodles of merchandise, more money is rolling in from testimonials and indorsements from tackle makers and other manufacturers, the South Bend Bait company, upon whose plug — a Pike-Oreno — the record fish was taken, has agreed to publicize the fish in their 1950 International advertising campaign, major sports shows will exhibit the big fish in special featured displays, radio and television will come in for its share, speaking engagements, exhibits in taverns, fairs, civic buildings, sportsmen's clubs and others are booking the 'lunge for special attractions for a tidy fee, post card concerns and book publishers are squeezing in for a percentage deal.

Where it will wind up is a matter of conjecture. As long as the record holds, which should be a long time, Johnson will be able to capitalize as more offers and more ideas are constantly rolling in, including ad testimonials.

So go out and catch yourself a world's record muskie and retire. It may take 30 years to catch it, as it did Johnson, but you can't deny it is worth the effort.

All 'Round Champ

Ben Hardesty, again winner of the "National Professional All-Accuracy Championship" poses with his winning Shakespeare Wonderod after making nearly a clean sweep of events at the recent tournament of the National Association of Angling and casting clubs. In every event with one exception Ben used Shakespeare stock model reels and rods. The one exception was in the distance bait event where he used an experimental model of a new, low-priced Shakespeare reel to tie the longest cast made in the event!

Each year hunters in the United States spend approximately three million dollars for an assortment of tooters and squawkers to call animals and birds within gun range.

Hold That Line!

Yes, anglers, hold that line awhile yet. Don't put the old rod and reel away just because autumn is at hand.

Instead, if you follow the finny denizens with the proper equipment and technique you'll find fall fishing may be the best of the season.

The fish are in the shallows during the warmer parts of the day, and even when they're deeper they'll take hold of a trolled lure more times than you may have imagined.

Use "go-deeper" plugs for this fishing, and if trying for bass in the late hours of the evening, try the shallows with bass bugs or a "jitterbug."

Great Sport

For a session of the utmost fishing enjoyment, with delicious eating the reward for a heavy creel, no panfish sport surpasses that which can be had fishing for bluegills with a light fly rod—once the bluegills are located.

However, despite the greediness of smaller bluegills, which make them easy victims of the fly rod, the larger brethren are much more cautious and catching the limit of the heavyweight requires study.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 7; 12:2; 25-26; 30.1-17.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 27.

Trust God

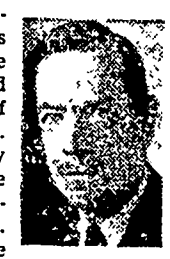
Lesson for October 23, 1949

SHOOTING WARS and cold wars were going on. A great whirlpool of international intrigue was roaring around and around, and Judah was in the midst of everything. The star of the once-great empire of Egypt was setting, and the star of the new and powerful nation of Assyria was rising. Judah was only one of 20 or more little countries between those giants. Some of the little nations were trying to take advantage of the disturbed situation by getting up little empires of their own All of them were scheming and scrambling for a place in the sun. Some were betting on Assyria, some on Egypt; no one knew just what to expect, but every one was afraid.



Dr. Foreman

Cowardly King, Bold Prophet

INTO ISAIAH'S little country of Judah an invading army was marching, and the hearts of king and people trembled "like leaves in the wind" Little Judah was being invaded by a combination of two ambitious powers, Syria and Israel, either one larger and stronger than Judah Isaiah had to go out and try to calm the mind of the King It was of no use; it was clear that King Ahaz did not believe the prophet. But Isaiah was right nevertheless.

The foreign army that looked so big would not win the war. The alliance that looked so frightening did not last. It could not last, because God was against it. Military men and others too find such things hard to believe.

Is not God "on the side of the largest battalions"? Is not "Git thar fustest with the mostest men" the one and only recipe for victory? Nevertheless, the prophet was right. In fact, whenever a prophet raised a banner inscribed, Trust in God, it was not likely to be at a time when things were going smoothly in the world. That banner most often appeared in times of trouble, of darkness and dismay, of wars and invasions.

Leagues Don't Always Last

The situation had a different angle, later on. The Syria-Israel invasion collapsed, just as Isaiah said it would But still the little nations jockeyed and maneuvered. It looked like a death-grapple between Assyria and Egypt, and every nation wanted to be on the winning side So it was a great time of treaty-makings, of pacts and agreements and alliances.

Isaiah changed the form of his message to suit the changing times, but the core of it was still the same. To King Ahaz he had said Don't be afraid of hostile alliances; trust in God. To King Hezekiah and others he said, in effect: Don't put all your hope in alliances; trust in God Egypt will fail you, any alliance you form will melt away in time.

But God will not melt away. You can depend on him. Now in our time the situation is strikingly like what it was in Isaiah's day. People today are tempted to put their trust in what is big and imposing. Big nations, big armaments, big armies, big alliances.

Men once put their trust in the League of Nations, and it died (of cowardice and dishonesty, among other things). Millions put their trust in the Axis, and for awhile it looked as if the Axis powers would overspread the earth. But the Axis vanished under the blows of the Allies.

Are All Alliances Bad?

THIS does not mean that no alliance is good, or that no treaty can be relied on, or that the United Nations (for instance) is bound to collapse. What Isaiah is driving at is this: God has a Purpose to work out in this world, and the name of it is Justice, Righteousness, Peace, Love.

Any nation or combination of nations, any pact or agreement or program, that goes against God's purpose is going against the grain of things and is bound to fall. Pure "power politics" always looks impressive; but the question is: What is the power going to be used for?

If it is really for the benefit of mankind, God will bless it; but if it is selfish and unjust and against the peace of the world, it will fail, because the God of Justice has set his face against it.

Oil-Cloth Stuck to Table

QUESTION: Could you tell me what will remove oil-cloth that has stuck in spots all over my highly-polished birchwood dining table? The table pad was left on the table all summer and the heat made the pad stick to the table; also, a typewriter standing on the table added to the damage. This fine table is just ruined unless it can be cleaned up.

ANSWER: A wood finisher would have no trouble in cleaning up the mess and if necessary, polishing the table. If you cannot get anyone to come, try very careful and gentle scraping with a dull knife to take off all the sticking pieces that you can in this way. Then go over the remaining, stubborn pieces with very fine steel wool moistened with turpentine Do not expect perfect results. Some dulling of the finish may be inevitable. I do not generally advise applying wax to a dining table, for wax shows the marks of hot dishes; but in your case it may be well to put on a very thin coat of paste wax, let it dry, and then polish well Or you would use a good furniture polish, using it according to directions on the label of the container.

Plans for A Workbench

QUESTION: I am interested in obtaining plans or a blueprint to assist me in making a sturdy work bench for my own use. Is this available?

ANSWER: There are two good books that give detailed information and plans for making a work bench by Julian Starr, Jr., published by Whittlesey House, New York. One is "50 Things to Make for the Home"; the other is "Make it Yourself." There is a great deal of other helpful information in these books.

SHELBY, RESELECT CLINTON TOP OATS

Yield Best Straw Stiffest Of Varieties Tested In Grain Trials

Reselect Clinton shares top honors this year in yield and stiffness of straw with the new Shelby oat in standard community grain trials conducted by the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station.

Shelby is the highest yielding variety tested to date in Iowa. Its test weight is good and it has some tolerance to race 45 of crown rust. This year and last Shelby outyielded reselect Clinton by 2 bushels per acre on a state average basis. For the 5 years 1945 through 1949 Shelby outyielded Clinton an average of 4 bushels an acre in tests at Ames and Kanawha. Shelby had a slightly better lodging score than Clinton this year.

Shelby For Seed Only

Reselect Clinton will be relied on to carry the biggest production load next year, however, says Ed Dyas, extension agronomist at Iowa State College. Shelby seed will not be available for general seeding next spring. It is being offered for increase purposes in all counties this fall. There is a good supply of reselect Clinton available in all counties.

While Shelby has done a little better than reselect Clinton, it has not been far ahead. Dyas says that reselect Clinton is the best bet for most areas in Iowa. Iit is a high-yielder, stiff-strawed and hasn't been troubled too buch by diseases.

Place For Others

Other oat varieties, however, may be more desirable than Clinton in some localities and on some soils. Ranking right behind reselect Clinton in yield in the community grain trials are Zephyr from Minnesota—a taller, later variety than Clinton; Benton, about as early and taller; Findo from Minnesota, shorter and earlier than Clinton, Colo, a later and taller oat; Cherokee, earlier and shorter than Clinton and Marion, Iowa 105 and Tama.

Iowa 105 and Tama are kept in the trials to check relative performance of old varieties. As an average in all sections of Iowa these two old varieties yielded 12 bushels per acre less than Clinton.

Dyas says that varities which are late and tall fit in on low fertility soils. Early and short varities are good on high fertility soils and for use as a nurse crop for a legume seeding since they won't crowd out the seeding as much as the taller varieties. Seed of Sephyr is not readily available in Iowa, and it is undesirable from the standpoint of its heavy awns.

CATTLE BUYS BEST IN FALL USUALLY

That's Generally True Even For Cattle To Be Fed Out In Summer

On the average even the man who wants cattle primarily to graze or feed on grass the following summer can do better by fall buying than by waiting until spring, according to Rex Beresford, extension beef cattle specialist at Iowa State College.

However, feed and facilities should be available to winter the cattle at a reasonable cost. Wintering with no gain is an expensive operation under most condtions, Beresford says.

Buy Calves In Spring

Sometimes big cattle intended for grazing may be wintered cheaply enough on stalk fields or other low grade roughage to show a net saving as compared with spring prices, even though no gain is obtained. But with calves or yearlings, it may be cheaper to wait until spring to buy, unless the cattle can be fed and cared for well enough to gain from ½ to 1 pound per head daily.

Beresford cites an example of cattle bought in November, 1945, for use at the Iowa State College Pasture Improvement Farm near Albia. Native beef calves weighing 420 pounds were purchased at $14 per hundredweight. They were wintered under not too satisfactory conditions to gain 26 pounds per head. When feed costs, death loss and labor were added to first cost, these cattle stood at $21 per hundredweight May 1st.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

BY BOB HULLIHAN

The man was definitely an asset to his neighborhood. He always took pride in the appearance of his property so it was natural that when October came he was the first to rake up the fallen leaves.

It went against all his instincts to burn anything in his own clean yard so he raked all the leaves into the gutter of the quiet street that bordered his property. He set fire to them one morning, standing by to see that none of the neighborhood children played too close to the flames.

He needn't have worried. The five or six kids who gathered were much more fascinated by the dense smoke cloud that crawled out over the street. They began to dash through it one by one, whooping at some great game of their own.

Then came the unexpected car. It approached the smoke and slowed. The driver seemed perplexed. He saw a group of children standing safely on the curb. He saw the good householder quietly tending his fire. It was a peaceful but wholly misleading scene. The driver shifted and drove into the smoke.

The six-year-old boy who was running full tilt through that smoke cloud crashed into the grill of the moving car. The blinded driver felt the impact. He didn't really see the boy until he was carried out of the smoke and laid on the lawn of the good housekeeper, the man who took such pride in the appearance of his property.

Except for a few details, this accident actually happened in an Iowa town. A child died because one man let his responsibility to others and at his own property line and because another assumed too much when he saw too little.

Liberty No. 4 School 100 Percent Again On Dental Cards

We are happy to report that the Liberty No. 4 school with Mrs. Asa Legge as teacher has all its dental cards returned as of October 10th. This is especially fine achievement for this school as they have been 100 percent for three consecutive years. We are happy to see emphasis being put on the dental program early in the school year.

Harriet Oxley, R. N.
Hancock County Nurse

Baptisms In Liberty Church

At the morning worship service at the Liberty Methodist Church last Sunday morning the pastor the Rev. E. Morris Egeland baptized two infants; David Glenn Lange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lange and Virginia Madeline Abele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Abele.

KINDERGARTEN

Halloween will soon be here and the boys and girls are ready to start making things. They have many plans of what they are going to do. We finished our fall booklets and had a lot of fun making them. We enjoy gathering leaves for our booklets. Clarice Ann Arnold celebrated her fifth birthday on Friday and treated the class to candy bars. A few mothers have been in to see us. We hope that more of them will feel welcome to come.

—Miss Christ

FIRST GRADE NEWS

We are beginning to think about Halloween decorations for our room. We made jack o'lanterns and posted them on black and orange paper. Melva Johnson was absent Monday because of illness. We have eleven dental cards back with all necessary work done.

Patricia Ulrich brought some pine cones Tuesday for the other boys and girls to see. Billy Heginger had a birthday Tuesday and treated everyone in the afternoon. We are proud to report that we have learned to read the names of six colors now.

Miss Tulp

SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADE NEWS

The last few weeks in Arithmetic we have been trying to learn formulas for areas and perimeters.

Last week was report card week. As usual some were satisfied and some were not. We hope all will improve.

Last week Dick Dulmes was absent from school for a couple of days due to sickness.

Last week JoAnn Burgess conducted the eighth grade class meeting and Graydon Barz conducted the seventh grade class meeting. We discussed our Halloween party which will be held at the school house October 27.

Last week the seventh and eighth grades defeated the ninth grade boys in a softball game with a score of 18-7. Of course the boys were quite proud to think that they won over the ninth grade.

Our motto for this week is: "The best things in life are not rationed--friendship, loyalty, and love do not require coupons."

NO HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Senior class is busily preparing a school newspaper of their own this week, so there will be no high school news in the "Klemme Timse". The menus and the grade school news will be published in the "Times" in the future, however. Everyone is invited ot take the school newspaper, which will be sold for a very small subscription fee.

—Delores Thiemann

PIE FROM THE SOUTH

Many a sweet treat featuring that southern nut, the pecan, originated with southern cooks but has become popular generally. One of these is pecan pie, which may well appear on dinner tables the country over this fall and early winter when pecans will be in good supply on markets.

Here is a pecan pie recipe from food specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Ingredients: 1cup pecan kernals; 3 eggs; ½ cups sugar; 1 cup dark corn sirup; one-eighth teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon vanilla; ¼ cup melted table fat. Place the pecans in the bottom of an unbaked pie crust. Add the filling and bake slowly in a moderate oven (350 F.) for 50 to 60 minutes. The nuts will rise to the top of the pie filling and form a custard layer.

Work Cirlce Meets Thursday

The Work Circle will meet at the Klemme Methodist Church Thursday of this week and there will be a quilt on the frame to stitch.

Hostesses are Mrs. W. F. Pavey and Mrs. Roy Arnold.

FLIGHT

At Dunlap recently, Rev. W. L. Hawn officiated at the baptism of his small grandson, Walter Eugene. The baby had been flown from San Diego while eight days old so that his grandpop might christen him. By the time he was 18 days old, the infant had completed a 3,000 mile trip by air, from San Diego to Dunlap and return.

Dairymen Can Expect Profits To Continue

Prospective feeding margins from milking dairy cows look as good or better than the long-time average, according to Francis Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

Some seasonal increase in dairy product prices is ahead. But Kutish says that the income position of the dairyman is not materially different than it has been the past few months.

A good supply of hay on most farms will keep feed costs lower than a year ago.

The position of the dairyman, compared with the position of the meat animal producer, is likely to continue much as it has been recently for some time in the future, Kutish says.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts held their meeting in the bank basement Monday night with 11 members present.

We were taught how to fold and use the flag.

We studied the Scout Laws as we have not learned all of them.

After Daisy Schaefer served treats, we played games and then closed the meeting with singing.

STRUCK

When Ernest Mitchell, Marathon farmer, made a turn while plowing a field recently, he found his four-year old daughter lying in the field with a deep gash clear across her head. She had come into the field without his knowledge. Eleven stitches closed the wound. The child has recovered.

AROUND IOWA

FOUND RING

Three years ago Kenneth McQueen of Marcus lost his class ring. Last week a friend found it on the school house lawn, still as good as new.

COMBINE

Melvin farmer Ernest Bloemandaal, lost his arm recently when his arm became tangled in a combine. He was taken to a Sibley hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate just below the shoulder.

FALL

At Sioux Center, 17 year old Willard Korver had a narrow escape recently when he fell 35 feet into a silo. He lit on his feet and escaped with only a few bruises.

PRODUCER

A New Hampshire Red Hen belonging to Mr. and Mrs. John Worrell of near Mt. Vernon laid a whopper of an egg last week. It measured nine inches around one way and seven and three-fourths the short way. Inside was a smaller, perfect egg.

SALESLADY

When the Iowa Falls VFW staged a poppy drive recently, the leading saleslady was auxiliary member Mrs. Ella Jones, who sold 656 poppies and collected $87.71. Mrs. Jones is 89 years old.

SAME OWNERS

Near Clayton Center, the same family has owned the Auer farm for more than 100 years. Oscar and Rose Auer, present owners, are grandchildren of Frank Auer who bought the place in 1840. A stone smokehouse, now over one century old, is still standing where it was built by the grandfather.

VICTIM

13-year-old Samuel Olsen of Exira was strangled in an unusual accident at his home recently. Apparently he looped his belt around a water pipe in the basement, stuck his head in the loop and started to slide down the pipe. The belt became caught, choking him to death.

GETS AROUND

"Brownie," a French cocker spaniel, has been getting round a little. The dog was flown by air from Paris to Chicago by way of New York, and then shipped by train to Remsen. There she joined her former master, Harry Johnson, who first owned the dog in Paris while on duty there and recently sent for her.

MUSHROOMS

Elmer and Earl Schumacher of Denver, in Bremer County, like mushrooms. To make it possible to enjoy them the year around, they have a "mushroom garden" in the basement of their father's machine shop. Mushrooms are planted periodically, resulting in a steady crop of the delicacies.

TOUCH TAG

Ray Wiekamp of Sheldon played a game of "touch tag" with a heavy truck tire last week. Driving near Rushmore, Minn. he saw the spare tire on a heavy truck just ahead of him come off, bounding on the pavement. He swerved but the tire struck the hood of his car, glanced off the cab and then into a ditch Wiekamp is looking for the owner.

LONG TRIP

Two Minnesota youths stopped in Jewell, Iowa, recently, on the last lap of a 5800 mile summer bicycle trip. Average about 100 miles a day, they had traveled to Denver, Salt Lake, across the desert to California and back through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. One new tire was purchased. Cost of the trip was about $300 apiece. The bicycles had gear-shifts, enabling them to pedal over the mountains.

TROUBLES

Having troubles? Then consider the Glenn Loux family of Clarion. Mrs. Loux came down with polio and was taken to Des Moines. Then Mr. Loux came down with polio. Next, daughter Lois tripped and rolled down the basement stairs and as she climbed back up, 3-year old brother Benny also tumbled down the stairs. All's well that ends well, however. The parents are now out of the hospital, having only mild cases and the children were unhurt.

BUSY

Since her graduation last spring, Red Oak senior Mary West has been kept busy singing at the weddings of her class-mates. Ten so far.

MATCHES

Three year old Melvin Obbink, of Hawarden, tried his hand at playing with matches last week. He burned down the chicken house.

OPERATION

Elizabeth Clare, 15 year old Humbolt girl, swallowed a common pin recenty. The pin lodged in her appendix, physicians think, and will be removed by surgery.

KEROSENE FIRE

A kerosene lamp exploded in the home of Milo Rattenborg near Wiota recently, resulting in a fire which destroyed all the furnishings of the room. The home itself was saved.

SHORT VISIT

Mrs. Serna Ulstad, originally of Norway, came to the states in 1876 for a short visit. Last week she observed her 90th birthday at Traer, Iowa; her "visit" so far has lasted 73 years.

STRONG JUG

When a big limb fell on the Pete Wilson automobile at Onawa, the impact drove the spout of a glass jub through the metal at the rear of the car. The jug was unbroken.

BRACELET BACK

Wilfred Quinn of Clearfied now has his identificaton bracelet, which he lost 2½ years ago at a separation center. It was found there by a Dubugue veteran and traced to Quinn's present address through Washington.

UMP HURT

Baseball fans might be interested in knowing that an umpire at Cascade received a broken shoulder recently. A foul tip caught Owen Howard on the shoulder, resulting in a fracture.

LONG TIME

At Osceola. Artie Allen began his 52nd year as a southern Iowa real estate dealer, the last 21 years of which have been spent at Osceola Now 72, he is as active as ever and sold 1,898 acres so far this year.

TRAVELER

An overnight guest in Guthrie Center recently was Raymond Gordon, 42, year old Arizona man, who is traveling on horseback from Minnesota to his home town, Benson, Arizona. Journey's end will be about September 15th.

DOUBLE EVENT

At Red Oak, Ed Horns, 41, became a father and grandfather on the same day recently. His wife presented him a six-pound daughter at 4:48 a. m. and a daughter, Mrs. Jerry Hurdleson of Boone, presented him with a new grandson at 11:40 a. m. Mrs. Horns is doing as well as can be expected.

LOON

Melvin Purvis of Grundy Center thought he had hooked a whopper while fishing in Minnesota. When the "fish" finally broke water, after dragging out 100 yards of line, it turned out to be an indignant loon, neatly hooked between the wings.

SCRATCHED

William Britton, former Dallas Center man, won a corn-on-the-cob eating contest at Spencercille, Ohio, recently. The Iowan was undisputed champ, although there was one blemish on his record; the former champion had lost several teeth just prior to the match and was unable to compete.

SORGHUM

Two Tama County residents have a combined total of 100 years of sorghum making. Elmer Reinig is in his 50th season of sorghum making, his father having 25 years ahead of him and Willis Hinegardner is also in his 50th year as a sorghum maker.

SKUNK

When Boone police picked up a skunk along the highway, sent it in for rabies tests, they almost put the police car out of commission. To decontaminate it they used a concentrated deodorant which only made matters worse; then added strong perfume which drowned out the skunk odor. The Boone police are now driving one of the most fragrant cars in the county.

The 4-Leaf Clover Stands For Luck,

but . . .

It's more than luck that accounts for the success of boys and girls wearing the 4-H clover. They are "doers" and they learn by doing. These 4-H club members are learning to be more skilled farmers and homemakers through their 4-H club projects—their 4-H club meetings, parties and special activities teach leadership qualities and develop their personality . . . through their achievement shows, fairs and other events they meet new and lasting friends. Yes, the whole 4-H program is aimed at developing better citizens, better leaders and capable young men and women.

SO to take the luck and chance out of your development and of your children's development the answer is the 4-H clover. Get an enrollment card from your county extension office today.

SWIM SCHOOL FOR SAFETY

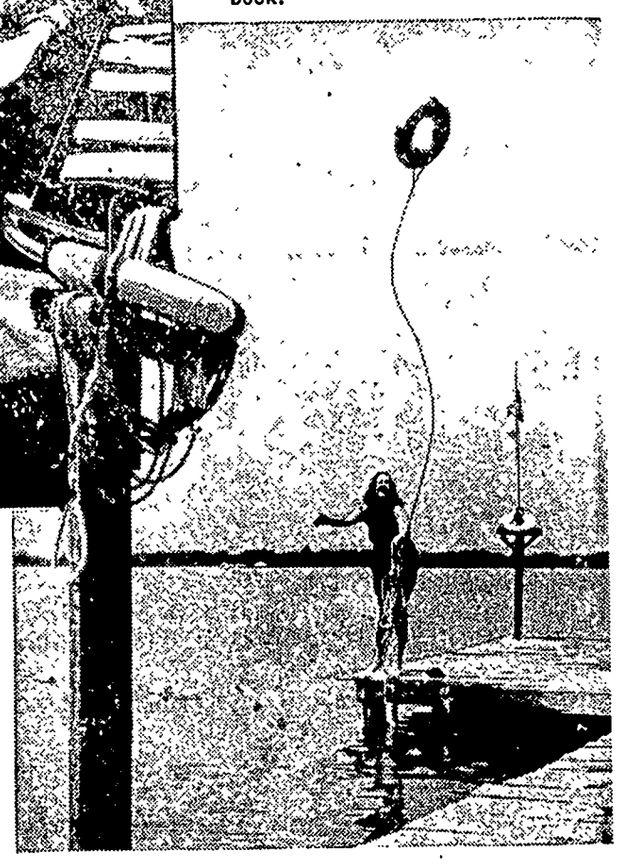
During the past summer, 38 aquatic schools with a record enrollment of more than 3,000 were conducted under the Red Cross program of instruction for swimming safety. Above, Barbara Mooney (left) and Jean Morrow, both of Pennsylvania, demonstrate the proper position for a two-person carry for an ill or injured person, with the carry in process in the background. The technique in the photo at right demonstrates the chin pull as director Joe Cooper, of Canton, Ohio, shows the approved method of "leveling off" the body of a person being towed to safety.

First aid students (photo at left) demonstrate application of a half-ring traction splint while the supposed victim, Lorena Franz, Cincinnati, Ohio, looks on. First-aiders practicing are Ann Hallisy, Cleveland, and Gale Mahoney, Columbus, Ohio. The "victim" checks their technique with help of an illustrated Red Cross first aid book.



Attending the summer session of the swimming-safety school at LaGrange, Ind., Mary Margaret Barnett demonstrates how to toss a ring buoy (at right) to effect a rescue. A faculty member of the school, she teaches swimming during the winter months.

With the help of an eager student who doesn't mind staying half-under (above) Red Cross safety services director Donald Northey of Cleveland demonstrates one step in a paddle-board rescue. This is just one phase of the all-around instruction in swimming safety offered annually by the Red Cross aquatic schools in an effort to make water safety as widespread as possible.

No One Can Label Rocky a Punk

By GRANTLAND RICE

THERE ARE SEVERAL things you can say about Rocky Graziano after his Fusari party.

One is that having a 12-pound advantage, he was running behind before the tenth round.

But the main point is that Graziano, ring rusty, wilder than a timber wolf, apparently badly beaten, came back to win against long odds.

Grantland Rice

It must be admitted that Charley Fusari, physically, looks less like a fighter than Punch and Judy. He is a pale carbon copy of complete futility. But he can box—he can move around—he can take a punch. Fusari is dead game but he is not a champion.

Graziano threw enough punches to knock out Dempsey, Tunney, Jeffries, Johnson and Louis. But 99 per cent of them merely cut the balmy September air. Some of them missed by two feet. Some by only a foot.

But, after all, Graziano hadn't had a fight, a real fight since Tony Zale nailed him back in the early summer of 1948. In the meanwhile, Rocky had suffered any number of cerebral hemorrhages or explosions of the conning tower.

Considering all this, Rocky didn't do a bad job. His victory down the stretch, as cheap as it was in spots, can't be ignored. It was a good fighting job. When you have been badly outpointed in seven of nine rounds with only one round to go—and still move in swinging with all you have—no one can label you a punk.

There is much disagreement about the margin Fusari had after the 9th round. No one can question the fact that Fusari was far in front as the final round arrived. Fusari must have nailed Rocky with 150 right-hand punches. Fusari also might just as well have used a feather duster.

Rocky Graziano's victory is worth at least $200,000 to the I. B. C., which Jim Norris deserves, but doesn't need. Only don't let Rocky wander in the same inclosure with Ray Robinson. Or any good middleweight. Rocky is still dangerous—but he isn't the Rocky of old. But, as Dizzy Dean once said—"Whoinel is?"

The Calumet Clean-up

It is a September custom to begin making the annual award to Calumet in the way of racing honors.

First, Calumet has the horse of the year in Coaltown—maybe the horse of many years.

Second, Calumet has the top three-year-old of 1949 in Ponder, the unknown two weeks before the Derby.

Third, Calumet has now passed the $950,000 total earning mark for 1949 and the year has more than three months of racing left, including autumn and early winter. This means well over a million dollars will drop into the Calumet coffers.

There is one hornet in the honey, however. Citation hasn't run since last December and is still a pretty fair chunk of cash in back of Stymie, the Hirsch Jacobs' family steed.

Citation, at this time last fall, was supposed to move far beyond the million mark. But the popped osselet proved to be more damaging than an exploding bomb. The horse, rated beyond all rivals since Man o' War, possibly better than Man o' War, has been as idle as a "painted ship upon a painted ocean" for the last eight months.

Just about this time last year the two best two-year-olds were Young Peter and Mr Busher. Mr. Busher was practically wrecked in a Chicago race and then Young Peter had to step aside and leave the field open to Ponder, Capot, etc.

I happened to be at the track the afternoon Maxie Hirsch sent a two-year-old known as Middleground against a good field. Middleground ran away from the same and practically disappeared. He did the same thing at Saratoga. Then it was discovered he wasn't the soundest colt in the world so he won't run again until 1950.

The King Ranch horse is probably the fastest two-year-old alive today. But that doesn't mean he will be the fastest seven or eight months from now. Serious contention may come from Christopher T. Chenery's Hill Prince, which set a new record for six and a half furlongs in the Cowdin Stakes.

This doesn't mean Middleground or Hill Prince will win the Derby or the triple crown next year. Under the direction of a trainer such as Max Hirsch it would be a wonderful thing to see Middleground in top shape to run.

To Keep Fruit Cake

Fruit cake can be kept indefinitely if you wrap it in a damp towel The towel can be dampened with plain water, but it's better with wine.

Banish Fish Odor

frying pan, sprinkle salt in the pan, add hot water, and let it stand awhile before washing it.

Transferring Flour

When you transfer new flour from original sacks to its permanent container, do it through the sifter and save the trouble of sifting small quantities when used.

Whipping Light Cream

When light cream refuses to be whipped, toss the white of an egg into it and beat some more. It'll get stiff in short order.

Whitening Pot

The inside of an enameled pot can be whitened by putting a half cup of laundry bleach in it, filling it the rest of the way with water and letting it stand for 24 hours.

EVERY DAME, SICKLY AND UNSOUND . . .
Of Pinkham's, a Snifter Was Quite a Lifter
. . . SANG GLORY OF LYDIA'S COMPOUND

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A book by Jean Burton on Lydia Pinkham brings back memories of a day when the prim face of that lady stared from billboard, magazine and newspaper. That was away back when Old Mr. Munyon, Father Duffy, Bigelow & Healy's Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, Cascarets, Alcott's Kidney Plasters, Payne's Celery Compound and Sloane's Liniment were apt to be in every medicine chest.

Mother Sill's Seasickness Pills, Swamproot, Frog-in-Your-Throat and Glover's Hair Restorer were in every drug store, too. It was the era when they were pioneer advertisers. Back when the "Bear" in the "Bear In Mind" slogan made an old-time cereal famous, when the Winchester calendars were a must in thousands of homes and when the folks went for stick licorice, Old Battleaxe cut plug, snake oil, bay rum, Sweet Caporal cigarettes, snuff and flaxseed poultices. It was the period when mom gave the kids pumpkin seeds for "worms," tied an old sock around their necks for sore throat and put an "onion bag" on their chests for croup.

The age of medical specialists hadn't set in. Doctors were general practice boys who did everything for $2, win, lose or draw. But $2 could be an extravagance in those days if the patient was still conscious, and the folks depended a lot on herbs, potions, oils and patent medicines. As a child we got rubbed with so many things before the doctor was called that we were liniment-logged when he got there.

• • •

Lydia Pinkham was for the womenfolks. But we remember it in the advertisements and on the labels. It seemed the only medicine nobody rubbed or dosed us with. We often wondered about Lydia. There were songs about her. One ran:

Feeling low and wanna feel giddia?
Lady, take a slug of Lydia!

Lydia Pinkham, the new book recalls, was a Lynn, Mass., gal, beautiful and with a perfect figure in the hour-glass mode. She was one of the pioneers in the equal-rights-and-votes-for-women campaign. She was a student of medicine and for years gave her compound free. It was not until her husband went broke that she decided to sell it.

Her four children peddled it from door to door first, and it didn't bring home the bacon until one son put a $60 ad on the first page of a Boston paper. From that time Lydia Pinkham's Remedy became one of the greatest newspaper advertisers in history. And what a believer in advertising Lydia was!

Out of $3,800,000 gross for years she poured $3,000,000 back into advertising.

Jean Burton gives the recipe for the compound, telling how the various herbs and powders were "percolated in fine spirits," giving an 18 per cent alcoholic content to the "remedy." A few shots of the compound and any woman felt better.

• • •

They were all familiar up around New England in our boyhood We can still in fancy catch the aroma of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, Florida Water, Witch Hazel (still going strong from a base at Essex, Conn.), Porto Rico Bay Rum, Burgoment, Payne's Celery Compound and Sloane's Liniment, "good for man or beast."

ODE FOR SEPTEMBER

September time is here anew—
I'll take a bowl of oyster stew;
Again I'll ask and ask, "How do
The crackers always seem so few?"

• • •

It has been a perfect summer for oysters, the oystermen report. It seems that they thrive in a season when there are few storms and little rough water. Still, we are firm believers in environment, and we think a summer like this has cost the oysters considerable character. We prefer an oyster with a rugged upbringing and with a suggestion of defiance in its nature. These 1949 bivalves may be such sissies it will seem cruel to squirt lemon on 'em.

• • •

A Japanese industrialist has been arrested for picking pockets. He explained that collections had been slow and that he had to meet a payroll. A lot of American businessmen, knowing how it is, think he may just be a little ahead of his time.

This Day Belongs to God

THIS is the day the Lord hath made . . ."
His workmanship: the dawn, the light, the shade
The wind, the rain, the starshine and the dew,
He loans its hours, for me to live them through Joyfully and gladly without lack;
And then at nightfall, bids me bring them back
And lay them at His feet that He may see
I have lived worthily.

God grant I be deserving of this day.
A child's heart proves its gladness in its play;
The little wild birds, as they sing and fly,
And I, who am so blest, why should not I
Go singing, light of heart, no matter what
The hours may hold for me? My grief forgot,
And suffering and loss that I have had—
Today I shall be glad.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

HUMPHREY BOGART is still clinging to the battered felt hat which has become his symbol of good luck. He first wore it in "Treasure of Sierra Madre," and hasn't been without it in a picture since. It will next be seen in Columbia's "Tokyo Joe." And by the way, don't leap from your seats when you see a 24 by 18 feet cricket filling the screen in that picture. Just an ordinary cricket, it was magnified 26,184 times to fill the screen, to herald "menace" scenes between Bogart and Hayakawa.

HUMPHREY BOGART

Eleanor Parker, who lost some five pounds worrying about Bogart in "Chain Lightning," and another four as a convict in Warners' "Locked In," then headed for a ranch to sleep for weeks and weeks, she said.

---

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" added the words "doodler" and "pixilated" to every-day vocabularies. In "Return of October" Terry Moore called Glenn Ford a "schnookle," and it caught on. Now Columbia has done it again. In "Miss Grant Takes Richmond," Lucille Ball coins the word "doofer"—a stenographic symbol that will "doofer" symbols she can't remember.

---

Barbara Stanwyck has made it a policy not to make screen tests with other actors, but broke her rule for the first time in 10 years to test opposite Lyle Bettger. He got the contract; they're teamed in Paramount's "The Lie."

---

Montgomery Clift, of "Red River" and "The Heiress," is the No. 1 Star of Tomorrow, according to Motion Picture Herald's annual poll of theatre operators. Kirk Douglas came in second, Betty Garrett third.

The Fiction Corner ★ ON PROPOSING ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

VIDA knew all the tricks. You see, she read a lot. Books on every conceivable subject.

Unfortunately Vida's facial beauty was next to nil. When, at the age of 18, she came to a full realization of this, and an understanding of its possible consequences, she was at first unhappy. But being a sensible person, sensible enough to look at the thing squarely, she sought for other means to achieve her end. The end was a man: love, romance.

The other means presented themselves in the form of books, learning how to put yourself across when you weren't particularly attractive; resorting to devices and technique that good looking girls didn't have to employ.

The results were exceedingly gratifying. Even now, at the age of 22, the man of her dreams was practically within her grasp. Give her another month, two at the most, and he would speak the words that would make her happiness and triumph complete.

The man's name was Glen Lamphier. He was one of those fine, good looking, upstanding specimens of young manhood. Intelligent, gracious, and with a promising career ahead of him. The type who appealed by exerting only a minimum of effort. Vida had aimed high when selecting him as the object of her acquired charms, but the thought of failure had never once entered her head.

She had aroused his interest by heeding the dictates of her fiction heroines. And Glen had seen the light. He had come to realize that behind the plain features of this girl were quality, intelligence, breeding.

In a word, Vida had been successful in her enterprise—up to a point. Unhappily, it appeared now as if that point might prove a stumbling block, an unsurmountable obstacle.

Coming into the living room one evening she found him waiting for her, comfortably ensconced before the fireplace, a volume of Oscar Wilde open in his lap. The fact that her entrance did not distract his attention, piqued her no end. She hesitated a moment before making known her presence, and in that moment the feeling of being piqued gave way to torment. Suddenly she realized that something had happened, that she was losing her hold, that Glen's interest was on the wane. Always before, he had awaited her coming with eager anticipation glowing in his eyes.

The thought made Vida unhappy.

A WEEK LATER, sitting before the living room fire, Vida abandoned seeking an answer to her problem and, for lack of something better to do, picked up the copy of Oscar Wilde and opened it. Her eye chanced to fall on a paragraph, which had been lightly checked with a pencil. She read through it with a rapidly increasing pulse. "—I really don't see anything romantic in proposing. It is very romantic to be tic about a definite proposal . . . . the excitement is all over. The very essence of romance is uncertainty."

Vida stood up, and there was a wild look in her eyes. Glen had read that paragraph. He had checked it with his pencil. He had remembered that her faith in books, in the printed word was profound . . .

She made her way to the book case behind the fireplace. Her eyes scanned the volumes contained therein. She removed a copy of O'Brien's short stories, leafed it through, found the passage she sought, and underscored it heavily.

Glen called an hour later. If he was annoyed at the long interval in the living room before Vida's appearance, he did not betray that fact. Instead, he seemed deeply interested in reading a paragraph from a volume of O'Brien's short stories, which he found lying upon the table. He read it through twice before Vida's voice disturbed him.

He was glad she had come. He welcomed her eagerly. He had something to say, something that could not wait. He said it incoherently, babblingly, but plain enough for Vida to understand and nod her head in acquiescence . . .

CROP SUNDAY IS SET FOR NOVEMBER 6TH

November 6th is the date which has been set for CROP Sunday in Iowa, and it is also the date on which many churches will hold their Harvest Home Sunday observances.

Hancock County Farm Bureau President, Erwin Kohl, this week called attention to the fact that the Farm Bureau has always cooperated in sponsoring Harvest Home Sunday, and that the date this year has been moved ahead to fit in with the drive for the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

Churches of all denominations are being asked to participate in the project by holding special services on November 6th, which marks the opening of the drive to collect food and clothing in Iowa for distribution overseas.

ATOMIC MOVIE MAKER

The mysterious atom—smallest particle of an element--will be discussed in the natural-color film, "God of the Atom," to be shown in the Klemme-Liberty Methodist Churches, on Thursday, October 27 at 8 p m.

Approved by the American Scientific Affiliation and commended by the Atomic Energy Commission, "God of Atom" includes actual photographs of the Nagasaki and Bikini explosion, as well as scientific apparatus used in atomic research. Narration is by preacher Irwin A. Moon, famous for his "Sermons from Science" demonstrations during World War II.

Larry Johnston, a young physicist who aided in atomic development at Los Alamos and photographed all three wartime bombs as they exploded, appears in the film with an eyewitness account of his experiences. "Man needs the kind of help which, in my experience, only God can give," says the scientist, adding "For me, this is no academic statement, but an experimental truth."

The film is one of a series including "Voice of the Deep" and "God of Creation," produced by Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. It will be shown by a Moody film representative, Rev. Philip LaBue.

County Health Council Held Annual Meeting

SOFT BALL TEAM EATS CHICKEN AS GUESTS OF THE CIVIC CLUB

There was a big crowd of business men out for the chicken dinner at the Community Hall Monday night which was given in honor of the Klemme Soft Ball team and their manager, Orville Stokesbary.

The dinner was prepared and served by the Auxiliary ladies and there was food in quantity as well as quality and everybody had all the chicken and trimmings they could eat.

After dinner group singing was enjoyed and Ernie Gerardi played his accordion and soon had everybody singing . . or else! Alan Barz, Pete Kilgore, Bob Hartzell and Richard Ulrich provided some special singing that "brought down the house." More music and singing was enjoyed when Gerardi, accompanied by Ulrich on his guitar put on some speciality numbers that were a big hit.

Held Meeting

Orville Stokesbary introduced the ball players and put the boys on the spot when he aired some of the "boners" they pulled during the past year, but it was all in fun and everybody enjoyed his razzing.

President Asa Arnold took over and presented business for the Club to act upon. It was decided to get Christmas decorations up by Thanksgiving, to have free Christmas movies, Santa Claus and treats for the kids as in past years.

Final arrangements and other business will be taken up at the November meeting.

MISS OXLEY GIVES REPORT ON NURSE WORK FOR PAST YEAR

The Hancock County Public Health Council held its Third Annual meeting on Wednesday, October 19th at Hull's Cafe. Seventy people enjoyed a 7:00 o'clock dinner. Rev. Gibson gave the invocation. Mr. Erwin Buck, Chairman of the Council group, was toastmaster for the evening. Mr. Roy McMillin, Garner, gave the welcome to out-of-town guests. Mrs. Bossenbroek of Woden provided the music for the evening, singing two selections.

Out-of-county guests introduced at the meeting were Miss Elizabeth Wyss, R. N., Advisory Nurse from Fort Dodge; Miss Alice Moore R. N., Wright county Nurse; Mrs. Alta Karschner, R. N., Worth County Nurse; Miss Hermia Scheveland R. N., Belmond School Nurse; Miss Ida Rorem, Mason City, Director of the Lutheran Welfare Society; Mr. Frederick Kingdon, Supervisor of Special Education in this area, and Mrs. Frank Dawson, Clear Lake School Nurse.

Miss Harriet Oxley R. N., County Nurse, reviewed the work of the Nursing Service the past year. She reflected that any progress in meeting county health needs is the result of combined effort on the part of the Public Health Council. The Council is an advisory group for the Nursing Service. It is made up of representatives of all the groups in the county interested in health.

Home and office visits for the year total 1024. Communicable disease visits 6; Venereal 4; Tuberculosis 112; Maternity 68; Infant and Preschool 284; School 345; Sick Persons 99; and Crippled Children 67.

In the past year 54 persons were x-rayed in the annual tuberculosis case-finding program, and the county home and high school people were x-rayed. Three Motherhood classes were taught. Two hundred and seventeen children were seen in preschool meetings and plans made for examination by the family doctor. School service continues to be a large part of the program. Dental Health Day was a great success last year. The first grade children received dental fluoride treatments financed by the State.

Current activities include the fluoride program for the third graders, a homemaking dental program in Britt, Nutrition Survey in grade schools and a Family Relations program in Kanawha.

Mr. Allan Frankle, Director of the Child Guidance Center in Des Moines, gave the address of the evening. He discussed mental hygiene and child guidance, stressing the need for prevention. Much of our money spent to support mental hospitals could well be used to prevent mental illness. He pointed out that the mature adult is capable of working, cooperating and loving. He encouraged investigating to learn what the divorce rate is, the amount of alcoholism, retarded children, poorly adjusted children in a given area to know how to meet the needs and plan the program.

Saving Potatoes

The waste incurred when potatoes are peeled can be minimized by boiling the potatoes in their skins, and then peeling them while holding them under a stream of cold water.

Lunch-Packing Tomatoes

If tomatoes are to be carried in a lunch basket or to be served at picnics, don't keep them in the refrigerator. Once a tomato is chilled, it turns soft and mushy when it returns to room temperature.

Ham Slices in Corn
(Serves 6)

1 cup chopped celery
1 chopped onion
1 shredded green pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup canned corn kernels
1 cup bread crumbs

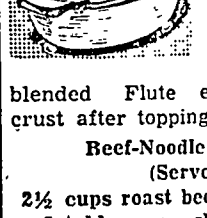
Add egg, corn and bread crumbs Season with salt. pepper and sugar Place ham slices in a square baking dish or casserole and spread corn mixture on top of them. Make a sauce by using butter in which vegetables were cooked by blending in flour, then adding milk, stirring constantly, and cook until thickened. Pour sauce over ham and corn and bake in a slow (325°) oven for 35 to 40 minutes.



Don't forget to serve cranberry sauce with pork as well as with chicken and turkey. A few seedless raisins added to the sauce make it an excellent side dish with the meat.

Salted walnut halves put together with cream cheese to which a bit of anchovy paste is added, are a neat trick to serve with tomato juice as a first course.

Paper thin slices of ham make an excellent snack if you spread them with cream cheese seasoned with onion juice. Serve with thin buttered slices of rye bread

MIRROR Of Your MIND

All Men Aren't Merely 'Wolves'

By Lawrence Gould

Are men capable of true love?

Answer: Of course! The question would scarcely be worth answering but for the fact that there seem still to be a number of embittered women who insist that men are interested only in sex. The unconscious basis of this idea in most cases is the feeling that physical love is incompatible with tenderness and understanding, where the truth is, neither can attain its full development without the other. The man who is secure in his knowledge of his wife's affection will feel a love in which physical and spiritual elements are harmoniously blended.

Does the stammerer become a child again?

Answer: Yes, says Dr Leopold Stein of the Tavistock (Psychiatric) Clinic, London. Speech, he tells us, begins in the baby—and in primitive man—with clicking sounds, grunts, and groans, followed by rhythmic babbling which is gradually slowed down and formed into words. The stammerer, under the influence of fear, anxiety, or conflict "regresses" (or goes back) to the sort of noises he made as a baby. Such a return to an infantile or childish way of meeting situations which we find too much for us as adults is typical of neurotic symptons.

Does criticizing others "sharpen your wits"?

Answer: Not if what you mean by criticizing is fault-finding. The one object you can have in ferreting out weaknesses and faults in others is to draw attention away from your own, or to excuse yourself as better—or at least, "no worse"—than they are. But "criticize" should mean "judge" or "appraise," and trying to form a fair and understanding estimate of others is not only first rate mental exercise but essential to success in living and working with them. The one "catch" is that you must first understand how your own mind works.

Enlarged Tonsils Can Spoil the Voice

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS HARD to understand why parents with at least as much brains as the rest of us continue to let their youngsters go about with enlarged tonsils and adenoids, which takes all the musical tone out of their voices.

We speak of such children as talking through their noses, when as a matter of fact the nose is blocked by adenoids and enlarged tonsils so that they cannot use the sounding board of the voice—the sinuses.

You can produce this flat note in your own voice by closing nostrils with thumb and finger when you speak.

If the nose is well ventilated, the sinuses will be ventilated also and the full round voice will be produced. An X-ray expert states that he examined the X-ray plates showing the sinuses in the head of the world's greatest tenor of modern times, Caruso, and they were unusually large and perfectly clear. This, of course, accounted for the great volume and resonance of his magnificent voice.

Family physicians have advised many parents to have the tonsils of their children removed, even when there is only slight enlargement and no infection, because of the possibility of severe tonsillitis, then rheumatic fever followed by heart disease. Tonsils should remain in the throat until the age of puberty unless infected or so greatly enlarged as to interfere with breathing.

In "Modern Medicine of Canada," George R. Gordon, Birmingham, Alabama, suggests that in the following two conditions the tonsils should always be removed. 1. Interference with proper breathing, swallowing or speaking. 2 Definite evidence of old or chronic infection of the tonsils, particularly repeated attack of tonsillitis.

Tonsils should be removed between attacks if possible. Too often tonsils are removed because they might be causing infection when an examination by a throat specialist would show tonsils to be free of infection. Tonsils are useful filters if normal, but dangerous if infected, aside from affecting the voice.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: I have a dining-room set with a lacquer finish The top of the table is scratched. Could I just finish the top, or do I have to do the whole thing over?

ANSWER: If the finish is scratched all over, I believe you would get more satisfaction by doing a good job of refinishing the top in the right way, rather than varnishing over the scratches. You can take off the scratched lacquer with a small, portable electric sander, which can be either bought or rented in the larger cities.

QUESTION: I get the hot afternoon sun in my living-room and dinette Is the old saying true—namely that the sun will fade and ruin your furniture? I like the sunlight in the rooms and don't like to pull the shades down. Have you any suggestions on this problem

ANSWER: If the fabrics are not sun-fast, they probably will fade to some extent. Slip covers would help to protect the furniture in the summertime. Some varnishes become checked if left exposed to direct sunlight. A hot sun also may cause a delicate or very old fabric to disintegrate.

PLAN RESEARCH FARM PURCHASE

Since the drive for funds last June, farmers have been busy and unable to complete plans to purchase a farm for research purposes, according to Art Sollie, farmer at Callender, chairman of the temporary board of directors of the Clarion-Webster Soil Area Experimental association.

Sollie called a meeting of the other members of the board on Sep. 20, at which time they made plans for a meeting of those interested in research. This meeting is to be held in Fort Dodge Nov. 9th. The association has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state and have had their articles of incorporation approved by the directors of the counties which will be served by the research activities. A temporary working arrangement has been made with the Iowa experimental station, Iowa State College, to carry on the activities when the farm is purchased and work has started.

There is a great deal of interest on the part of farmers and technicians working with farmers for more detailed information in this area according to Sollie.

Considerable money has already been raised, and while the farm has not been purchased 2 or 3 possible sites have been selected, and one of them will be purchased very soon.

Lovebirds are really parrots.

SUGGEST HOGS FOR SAVING DOWN CORN

Beef Cattle And Sheep Also Can Be Used To Pick Up Fallen Ears

A lot of Iowa's bumper corn crop is on the ground in the fields. It's on the ground because of dropped ears and broken stalks caused by wind and corn borer damage. Farmers have a problem of saving this down corn.

Hogs, beef cattle, and sheep can utilize down corn to advantage but dairy cows should be kept out of the fields, say animal husbandmen at Iowa State College.

C. C. Culbertson of the college says that hogs offer the best means of feeding the corn. However, good fences are required.

Use Big Cattle

Beef cattle offer the next best way of feeding the corn. Bigger cattle work best for this purpose. They should be kept in the dry lot until they are on full feed before being turned into the cornfield. At night they should be put on pasture or if pasture isn't available, they can be brought into the lot and given hay.

Sheep, too, can be used to glean down corn. Here again it is necessary to get them on full feed first, and give them hay or pasture at night, Culbertson says.

But Not Dairy Cows

Dairy cows, on the other hand, won't utilize the corn efficiently. Joe Hineman, extension dairyman, says that the large amounts of corn in the field will limit the consumption of good quality roughage. Then cows will not get a balanced ration at the barn. This will create a deficiency of proper nutrients, resulting in a drop in milk production.

After the supply of corn drops off, cows will have to do considerable walking in order to find feed. Consequently the cow will use up valuable energy through exercise that should go into producing milk.

Hinman also points out that stalks are likely to cause injury to udders from which mastitis may develop.

Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist, says the cornfields sprayed with DDT should not be pastured by dairy cows. Residues of the chemical may find their way into the milk. Animals that are to be sold for meat should also be kept off sprayed fields at least 30 days before shipping time.

READY-FOR-THE-HOLIDAYS—

FREEZER FRESH POULTRY

The right wrapping keeps poultry freezer-fresh for the holidays ahead. Use laminated wraps of cellophane, aluminum foil or glassine, moisture-proof cellophane, pliofilm, or polythylene bags.

It's not too soon to start thinking about that Thanksgiving bird, or even the one for the festive Christmas meal. Right now's a good time to freeze poultry in preparation for those busy meals. And what a time-saver it will be to have the main feature of a holiday meal all ready to pop in the oven.

Mildred Nelson, foods and nutrition specialist at Iowa State College, says that to be sure poultry will be full of fresh flavor, follow these suggestions: Plunge the bird into water of 125 to 135 degrees F. immediately after killing. Do not use a hard scald of 175 to 185 degrees F. Too-hot water may cause "freezer-burn" in which the meat becomes dry and has an off-flavor.

Dress the bird as you would for immediate cooking. Then chill it in your refrigerator for not more than 24 hours. You may also cool it in ice water for 2 to 3 hours.

The next step is to cut the oil sack from above the tail. Remove the head, feet and sharp projections on the wings. For roasters, leave the bird whole Poultry for frying or fricassee should be cut up and ready for cooking. Split broilers along the backbone and cut in two along one side of the breast bone. Then you're ready for wrapping.

Wrap Well

Always use moisture-proof wrapping papers or pliofilm or polyethylene bags. Moisture-proof cellophane may be used if it is protected with parchment, locker paper or stockinette. Be sure to use a double-thickness wrap if 40-pound locker paper is used.

The drug-store or single wrap is one of the best ways to keep the packages airtight and prevent freezer-burn. Use this type wrap for all materials except locker paper. It is suitable for roasters, broilers and fryers as well as for other types of meat. Place the poultry in the center of the wrapping paper. Bring two edges of the paper together above the meat. Fold edges down in about 1-inch folds until the paper is against the bird. Mold the wrap firmly against the meat. Then fold in the ends of the paper the same way and pull these ends under the package. Tie the package with twine, tape it with freezer tape or cover it with stockinette.

Wrap all the giblets, except livers, together in a separate package from the bird. Use the livers right away or freeze them in a separate package and eat within 3 months.

The wrapped giblets may be placed in the body cavity of a roaster of broiler.

For fryers or for fricassee, place the meaty pieces in the curved portion of the back. In that way you'll have a compact package. Place a piece of moisture-proof wrapping paper between each piece of meat. The package will be flatter if the ends of the legs are in the center of the package. Place the wrapped giblets with the other pieces of chicken. Put the wrapped package into a waxed carton, glass jar, plastic bag, tin can or some other type of container.

Freeze Quickly

Freeze the birds quickly and store at zero degrees or lower for best keeping. Miss Nelson points out. For good flavor, don't plan to keep the frozen birds more than 12 months.

WATCH HOGS NOW FOR INDICATIONS OF FLU

Hog raisers who are on their toes when this fall's warm, mild weather comes to an end can prevent flu from developing, according to Dr. K. W. Stouder, extension veterinarian at Iowa State College.

Hogs that are not protected from abrupt changes in the weather are likely to catch flu. Too, these warm days are often followed by cold nights which may bring on the flu if hogs are allowed to sleep outside.

A well-bedded shed that is clean and has plenty of ventilation is the best shelter for hogs at this time of year. Stouder says that it is a good idea to see that the hogs are inside the shed when they bed down. Especially, a farmer should keep an eye on hogs out in cornfields and try to get them to sleep inside.

While hog flu is seldom fatal, the rapid loss of flesh that goes with the disease makes it an economic problem. Besides the set-back suffered in fat hogs, gilts that are being kept for brood sows may be affected. Small, weak litters often result when gilts have been sick with flu.

Whenever there's any doubt about the diagnosis, Stouder recommends that a veterinarian be called, since there's a chance that the farmer may confuse hog flue with cholera.

Hogs that have blu should be provided with a comfortable house that is free from drafts and should be put on a light, slightly laxative diet. Stouder suggests adding oilmeal to a light slop.

An internal antiseptic such as guicol compound may be given in the drinking water. Hogs that are too sick to eat or drink may be treated individually Effective flu vaccines have not yet been developed and placed on the market, Stouder says.

He advises keeping an eye on the hogs from now on, especially those running in the cornfields. He thinks that prompt and proper attention is the best way to keep hogs healthy whenever there's a chance of flu.

REST CATTLE AS AID FOR SHIPPING FEVER

Plenty of rest aids in averting shipping fever in newly arrived feeder cattle, says Dr. K. W. Stouder, extension veterinarian at Iowa State College.

An ample supply of water is another important item for cattle that are to throw off the effects of a long trip, without sickness or losses. Dr. Stouder recommends a small, well-bedded lot that offers protection from chilly winds and fall rains. That gives the cattle a chance to get over their wildness and allows the feeder to watch the cattle closely and take prompt action in case sickness does occur.

The veterinarian says to keep an eye out for signs of sickness, especially in calves. Records show that average death losses are between 1 and 1½ percent on calves, about 1 percent on yearlings, and a little below 1 percent with older cattle. Shipping fever and pneumonia are the main causes of loss through sickness in shipped calves and yearlings.

Stouder says that the best way to prevent shipping fever is by treatment with bacterin 10 days to 2 weeks before the cattle are shipped to the feedlot. The bacterin produces immunity by actually causing a mild form of disease. Bacterin will add to the seriousness of the attack if given when the animal is already sick.

When signs of shipping fever show up, the safest bet is to call a veterinarian, Stouder says. Treatment is with serum and usually a combination of sulfa drugs, depending on the seriousness of the attack.

Livestock men may be able to lessen the danger of shipping fever outbreak by giving the cattle common baking soda mixed in the drinking water. A 100-pound keg of baking soda dumped in the stock tank is believed to cut down the chances that the disease will get started.

Other preventative measures include good shelter, plenty of sunshine, a start on medium-grade roughage or some legume hay in limited quantities, and a slow, gradual start on grain after cattle arrive in the feedlot.

BURNING STALKS FOR BORERS BAD

Wastes Plant Food And Does Poor Job Of Control, Gunderson Says

Burning cornstalks isn't the answer to Iowa farmer's corn borer problem, according to Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

His case against burning is this. It costs too much; it does not kill enough borers; organic matter and fertilizer are destroyed; and the practice promotes erosion.

50 Percent Kill

On the basis of 1939 figures for labor and equipment, raking and burning cost about $1 per acre, according ot Gunderson. This figure would be higher now. He thinks that dollar would return more if used to pay for spray next year.

Only 50 percent of the borers present are killed by ordinary raking and burning methods, according to Gunderson. Many are missed with the rake. In fields where borer counts now are around 500 per 100 stalks, a 1-percent survival might be enough to produce a large population of borers next year. One moth that emerges next spring can lay 400 to 600 eggs.

Lose Nitrogen

Even if burning stalks were a means of controlling corn borers, it would be a losing proposition from a soil management standpoint. Organic matter and nitrogen are lost by burning. Nitrogen escapes as a gas. Calcium, phosphorus and potash are not lost but are concentrated at points of burning and are not available to many crop plants.

Nitrogen lost by burning is probably equal to the cost of spraying, according to Gunderson. In addition, there is the unmeasurable loss of organic matter which holds soil together.

Key to Protein Synthesis May Be Held by Yeast Cell

The flexible digestion of the yeast cell may hold the key to protein synthesis, one of nature's most vital and most tightly locked secrets, Professor James B. Sumner of the New York State college of agriculture, Cornell university, 1946 Nobel prize winner in chemistry, declared in a report to the Central Pennsylvania section of the American Chemical society.

Explaining that enzymes are the protein chemicals which control digestion, respiration, muscular action, and in fact all living processes of plants and animals, Dr. Sumner said:

"Life can be defined as an orderly functioning of hundreds of enzymes, and disease can be described as a disorder, lack, or inhibition of enzymes. . . . Enzymes sometimes act as poisons, or toxins. Thus, snake venom is nothing more than a concentrated solution of enzymes. When the venom is injected into an animal's tissues, the enzymes at once begin to digest the proteins, carbohydrates, and lipids and thus cause a disintegration which is disastrous."

The ability of living things to adjust themselves to new and strange conditions depends largely upon a process known as adaptation, in which new enzymes are created, according to Dr. Sumner. Yeast, for example, ordinarily cannot digest a type of sugar called galactose, he points out, but if yeast is allowed to stand in a culture containing galactose the tiny organism rises to the occasion and synthesizes an enzyme capable of fermenting the unfamiliar sugar.

Cancer-Causing Chemicals Discussed by Researchers

Advances in the battle to understand cancer causes and improve treatment were described by Dr. Francis Earl Ray, associate professor of chemistry in the University of Cincinnati college of liberal arts in a discussion of chemicals known to cause cancer before the scientific section of the American Pharmaceutical society of Cincinnati, recently.

"Almost a century ago an observer remarked on the common occurence of cancer among chimney sweeps in Europe," Dr. Ray said.

"He raised the question whether it was not caused by the constant contact with soot. This idea was dismissed with ridicule but was later recalled when cancer became common in workers in the coal tar industry.

"At first, experiments with animals gave negative results because the experiments were not continued long enough. But with persistence it was possible to cause skin cancer by painting animals with a solution of coal tar.

"A long search resulted in the isolation of a pure chemical benzpyrene, that caused cancer not only of the skin but in other places where it was implanted. Other related hydrocarbons also were found to cause cancer."

Economy in Oil Heating

To obtain the utmost economy and efficiency from oil burner installations, buy good fuel oil of the proper grade. High efficiencies and low fuel costs can be obtained only with a clean grade fuel oil suitable for use in the burner. Do not change your oil supplier without having your burner readjusted for efficient operation with the "new" oil. Keep the burner in good running condition. Most burners need a thorough inspection, cleaning, and oiling at least once a year. Monthly inspection and adjustment during the heating season will tend to eliminate emergency trouble and keep oil consumption low. A good, reliable service man or heating contractor is usually the best source of information on how to keep heating expenses down.

Going To Catch A Plane?

Travel time between airports and downtown business centers is often equal to or even longer than the time spent in the air on trips between many cities, a study by the American Road Builders' association shows. The study was conducted by Walter R. Macatee, manager of the ARBA airport division. It covered 59 airports in major cities. Commenting on the results of the survey, Macatee stated: "It comes as a surprise to many people to learn that ground travel before and after an air trip is generally slow and time-consuming. Our survey indicates, however, that this is unfortunately true. Indeed, one of the most important problems in improving air travel is that of cutting down the ground travel time between cities and the airports."

Plane Does 900 M.P.H.

A British robot rocket plane has reached a level flight speed of over 900 miles an hour. The flight was made at a height of 30,000 to 40,000 feet, and the plane flew nearly 1.4 times the speed of sound. That is the equivalent of 1,034 miles an hour in warmer air near the ground. This is the fastest level speed ever reached in Britain, though John Derry has flown with a De Havilland 108, faster than sound in a dive, and in the United States a piloted rocket plane has also exceeded the speed of sound.

KINDERGARTEN NEWS

The Kindergarten is busy with there Halloween things. They have made pumpkins, witches, cats, and owls.

Our playhouse is finished at last, with the wonderful help of the homemaking girls and Mrs. Andreae. We completed it last week. The girls especially like it and have already started to make themselves little housewives. The boys are busy with their blocks and by now can build many things.

We hope you will come in and see what we have accomplished.

FIRST GRADE NEWS

The first grade boys and girls have been busy with Halloween coming up. We have been drawing pictures and making posters for our room.

Wednesday afternoon we went to see the Junior class play in the gym. We enjoyed it very much.

We have had a good attendance record so far this year and we are hoping we can keep up our good record.

SECOND GRADE NEWS

The end of the six weeks period saw Joanne Jacobs leave the presidency of our "Good Citizen's Club." Jane Renner is our new president.

We also find that our four pupils have had perfect spelling papers during this period. They are Donald Anderson, Jo-Anne Jacobs, Roxanne Baack and Paige Patterson.

On Thursday Paige's grandmother visited our room. Joe Finnegan gave treats on Friday in observance of his 8th birthday.

THIRD AND FOURTH GRADES

The third and fourth grades have been busy making halloween pictures for art class. Ye have decided that if we play carefully, we won't have anymore accidents. Our dental race is gradually getting started. The score at the time is the airplanes--ten and the ships--eight.

FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADE NEWS

The fifth and sixth grade painted large pictures with temper paint. They then voted the 10 best painting. The following people have their pictures up: Kay Burk, Berleen Bridges, Margaret Haefner, Carol Bridges, Dennis Haefner, Gracka Gerardi, Barbara Thompson, Douglas Jones, Eva Thiemann and Shirley Barz.

Our room looks like a Halloween party with the goblins and ghosts hanging around. The pumpkins, bats, and witches line the blackboard while the jack-o-lanterns decorate the windows.

Each week the fifth and sixth grade students make a safety poster for the hall bulletin board. This week Douglas Jones, Dennis Haefner, and Roger Bachman made the poster showing six careless ways of starting fire in a house.

We have eleven dental cards returned and the children have made boats where their name goes when dental cards are returned.

JUNIOR HIGH NEWS

The past week we have been studying story telling in English. The seventh grade has been telling their stories to the class.

The eighth grade has been studying percentages in arithmetic. The seventh grade has been studying decimals which they have workbooks to work in.

Last Tuesday the seventh and eighth grade boys defeated the sophomore boys in a softball game with a score of 13-2. We've been quite proud of the boys this year because they've won every game that they have played and also won over the ninth and tenth grades.

Last Thursday we had physcial training in the gym for the first time this year. Mr. Juhl is trying to get us in shape for the games he has scheduled for us this year.

Our motto for this week is "Life's greatest adventure is in doing one's level best."

Study Use Of Vaccines In Finishing Of Lambs

Now that it is fairy well established that overeating disease in sheep can be prevented with the use of newly-developed vaccines, Iowa State College animal husbandmen are wondering if it can be used to good advantage to finish lambs at 100 pounds.

Now lambs often are over 100 pounds when finished. Such weights mean dockage. Possibly by the use of the overeating vaccine they can be pushed to finish at 100 pounds.

C. C. Culbertson, college animal husbandman, says a feeding experiment will be made with vaccinated lambs receiving high percentages of corn. Different lots of vaccinated lambs will receive 50, 68 and 80 percent corn, and will be given a smaller amount of hay.

Results will be given at the annual Lamb Feeder's Day, which is to be held sometime in Jan.

TRAPPING SEASON ANNOUNCED

The state Conservation Commission has announced a seven day open trapping season on beaver this year in 33 counties. Dates set for the beaver season, the first held in Iowa in 75 years, are noon December 1 to midnight, December 7, with the following counties open to trapping; Lyon, Osceola, Dickinson, Emmet, Kossuth, Souix, O'Brien, Clay, Palo Alto, Plymouh, Cherokee, Buena Vista, Pocahontas, Humboldt, Woodbury, Ida, Sac Calhoun, Webster, Monona, Crawford, Carroll, Greene, Boone, Harrison, Pottawattamie, Mills, Fremont, Allagakee, Clayton, Delaware, Dubuque and Jackson.

Because of numerous complaints of beaver damage from farmers and land owners, the 53rd General Assembly this year passed a law authorizing the Commission to open a trapping season on this fur-bearer. The 33 counties where trapping will be permitted this year are those where the most serious damage has occured and where a survey by conservation officers and game biologsts shows a surplus to exist. Beaver causing damage in other counties not to trapping may be taken under special permit issued by the Commission.

A 20 day trapping season has been set for mink and muskrat in every county of the state, beginning at noon December 1 and ending at midnight December 20. Populations have recovered sufficiently to warrant the re-opening of 30 southern and southwestern counties closed to mink and muskrat trapping in 1948. One exception to the 20-day season is Big Wall Lake in Wright County where, because of muskrat research studies being carried on in that area the season will be open only seven days, December 1-7

A 60-day open season on other protected fur - bearers, including badger, raccoon, skunk opossum and spotted skunk, has been set from noon, November 10 to midnight, January 10.

There is continous open season on weasel, red fox, gray fox, ground hog, wolf and coyote. There is no open season on otter.

The United States built the first submarine ever to be employed in war in 1776.

A TEA'S THE THING

There's nothing quite so simple and yet so pleasing as a tea or coffee for your friends. Lovely flowers or sprigs of greenery on the table or tray add charm to your prettiest dishes which are neatly arranged for easy service. Dainty sandwiches or cookies plus a beverage are easy to fix and are all you'll need to serve.

Whether it's "tea for two" or tea for a hundred, what could be more friendly and pleasant than a tea or coffee for your guests?

It's the perfect way to entertain a small group of friends. It's also the perfect way to entertain on more formal occasions when there will be many guests or when you're honoring a special friend, says Jewel Graham, foods and nutrition specialist at Iowa State College.

A tea for a few friends does not need to be elaborate or a lot of work. A simply decorated table and easy-to-fix foods will leave you plenty of time to enjoy your guests. Cookies or sandwiches are all that's needed. If you have a "specialty" such as cinnamon toast or hot buttered rolls, your guests will enjoy those. Steaming coffee or tea is always appropriate on chilly days. Hot summer weather calls for an iced beverage.

Serve From Tray

It is often most convenient to serve from a large tray on a small, sturdy table. Bring out your prettiest tea cups, saucers and plates to go with a dainty tray or tea cloth, Miss Graham suggests. If the tableware is heavier, a rough-textured cloth will be attractive. Choose gay, warm colors that go well together to add a cherry note on a winter day. Cool greens and blues are pleasant in warmer weather.

If you use a tea table you'll have room for a bowl of flowers or a simple but attractive centerpiece of candles. Even a single flower will be a pretty addition to a tray if you use it in place of a tea table.

Easy Service

Your tea will run smoothly if all the plates, cups, silver and food are placed to make service as easy as possible. Miss Graham says that the pouring pot and cream pitcher should go at the right of the hostess if she is right-handed. Turn the handles to the right, also. Tea plates, cups and saucers, teaspoons and napkins go on the left side of the tray.

Although there are many ways to serve tea, Miss Graham offers these suggestions: You as the hostess may sit at the tea table or tray and pour. Ask your guests if they wish cream, lemon or sugar, or let them help themselves. When serving, put the spoon on the saucer, place the cup and saucer and a napkin on the tea plate. Let your guests help themselves to other foods on the table or tray.

There will be times when a more formal tea is in order. Although the food and table settings may be more elaborate, keep it a friendly affair, Miss Graham suggests.

Finest Linen

Use your finest linen or lace tablecloth, as the dining table will be the center of interest. You'll want a lovely centerpiece for these semi-formal teas or coffees, too; or if the table is near a wall, you might arrange a bouquet or candles at the edge of the table nearest the wall.

It's a wise hostess who pleases all her guests by giving them a choice of coffee or tea. Serve coffee at one end and tea at the other end of the table.

TWO AVERY SUNBEAMS HONORED

Two members of the Avery Sunbeams were highly honored at our September meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Arnold. Betty Ann Kramer was chosen by the county to go to the International Livestock Show at Chicago because of her state fair blue ribbon long time record book. Harriet Ostendorf was presented with the book "I Dare You," for her excellent leadership work in the county.

This year's officers gave talks on the duties of their office. The purpose was to start the girls thinking about the election next month.

The Avery Sunbeams really know how to bake cookies now. There were demonstrations on three different types. Lois Lowenberg showed us the roll cookies, Kay Jacobs made some drop chocolate chip cookies, and JoAnn Burgess demonstrated on refrigerator cookies. They all showed us some new Methods and the rest of the 4-H ers especially, enjoyed it because they were passed out for everyone to taste.

FALL PLOWING GARDENS IS SPRING TIME-SAVER

Fertilizing and plowing gardens in the fall has several advantages. It saves time in the spring, and the soil dries out sooner making it possible to plant 2 weeks earlier. If a heavy top dressing of rotted manure is put on before fall plowing, the manure will decompose before spring planting.

Ed Cott, extension horticulturist at Iowa State College, says that annual applications of rotted manure do wonders in correcting some of the difficulties many gardeners have. A common complaint is that garden soils pack following a hard rain. Then small seeds such as lettuce, radishes and carrots often fail to get through the ground sufficiently to make a good stand if it rains after they are planted. Increased humus in the soil also will improve its water-holding capacity and reduces packing.

Cott says many farm families find it profitable to set aside two or three loads of manure for the garden each year. These folks work about a year ahead in their fertilizer plans. During the winter they make a compact pile of two or three loads of manure, then leave it stand through the summer to go through the composting process. Besides providing well-rotted manure, this practice helps destroy weed seeds which are often in freshmanure.

FALL IS USUALLY BEST TIME TO SPREAD LIME

Fall is a good time to spread lime because it then has plenty of time to dissolve in the soil to prepare it for legume seeding, says H. R. Meldrum, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

According to Meldrum, quarries have been operating at capacity for some time, so that they have abundant supplies on hand. Also, truck operators are ready and waiting.

Conditions for spreading lime generally are better in the fall than they are in winter and spring. Also, fall spreading offers a greater selection of fields to spread it on. Lime may be spread immediately after soybeans are harvested and after corn is off, whether put in the silo or crib. It may be spread ahead of winter wheat or in pasture renovation.

The ideal way to apply lime is on fall plowing, Meldrum says. As a general rule, do not plow under lime unless it will be plowed again before legumes are seeded Lime does its best work in the top layer of the soil. Thus, plowing it under puts it down where it does the legume little good, but a second plowing will return the limed part to the surface where it will benefit the legume seeding.

ASK THE FARMER FIRST!

More hunters than ever before are taking to the fields this year in pursuit of wild game. It is well to point out that some 97 per cent of all land in Iowa is privately owned, and unless the hunter is hunting on his own land it is necessary to secure permission of the owner first.

Farmers as a group want to know who is hunting on their land. They want to know that the hunter will be careful about shooting near livestock, that the gates will be closed, and that property will be protected against damage One careless act on the port of a hunter may close a farm permanently to all

Many "No Hunting" signs have been posted. Most of the posted properties are open to hunters in whom the landowner has confidence. It is, therefore, the responsibility of the individual sportsman to make himself welcome.

Hunters cannot be urged too strongly too contact the owner of the property on which they expect to hunt and secure his permission. The importance of farmer - sportman relationship cannot be over-stressed.

If every hunter conducts himself as a true sportsman at all times, the "No Hunting" signs will soon go the way of the dodo.

CORN YIELD RUNS BELOW ESTIMATES

The soybean harvest has been completed in Hancock County and corn husking is in full swing.

Farmers are trying to take advantage of the good weather to harvest the corn and pick up that which has fallen off of the stalks to prevent further deterioration. The loss is tremendous and corn yields generally are far below government estimates. Fields that yielded 80 to 100 bushels last year are yielding 40 and 50 this year and with a high percentage that will not be picked up the yield will be very disappointing. The crop is dryer than usual and tests are running as low as 17.5 percent moisture.

The potato and beet harvest is nearing completion and fall plowing is rapidly being completed. More corn stalks will be cut or disced and then plowed under this fall than usual in an effort to control the corn borer moth in fields in 1950.

Avery Sunbeams Met

The October meeting of the Avery Sunbeams was held at the home of Maxine Stille. Mary Ann Blumer called the meeting to order. Officers were elected and installed as follows: President, Lois Helps; Vice-Prsident, Lois Lowenberg; Sec.-Treas. Harriet Ostendorg; Historian, Mary Ann Blumer.

Kay Jacobs and Eunice Helps recited "Dreaming" and the "Four Leaf Clover Song." There were fourteen enrollment cards signed and we hope to find more members this month.

We are sorry to lose Mrs. Roy Arnold as leader. Mrs. Harlow Helps and Mrs. Joe Burgess are our new leaders.

The next meeting will be at Kay Jacob's home on Saturday, November 12, 1:30.

WIRING ON MANY FARMS OBSOLETE

Modern Day Equipment Often Calls For Larger And Shorter Wires

Certain danger signals indicate that much farmstead wiring is out of date and point to real trouble if the wiring isn't changed to handle modern-day electrical loads, according to Harold Beaty, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

He says that much of the wiring on Iowa farms was put in when electricity was used mostly for lights, electric pump motor and a few pieces of household equipment. Now, farmers use heat lamps or brooders for pigs, large motors to elevate grain, to operate pressure water systems and have many other pieces of electrical equipment. The old wiring won't carry the present load

Many Iowa farms now use 500 to 1,000 kilowatt-hours per month, and a few farms are using as much as 2,000 per month.

Warning Signals

Observe your lights and the operation of electrical equipment to determine whether or not your wiring is out of date, Beaty suggests. Here are some of the warning signals: Lights dim when the refrigerator or pump motor turns on. The fluorescent light in the kitchen may go completely out. Radio volume decreases when the electric water heater or iron is turned on. The cream separator motor seems to lack the speed it once had. The electric range is slower in heating at chore time Electric motors stall and get not.

If you are losing time and patience because any of these troubles, chances are good that your farmstead wiring is inadequate, according to Beaty. For the electrical equipment you are using, the wires from the transformer to the equipment are too long, too small, or both.

Pays To Rewire

It pays to rewire if you notice these warning signals, Beaty says. In addition to the low voltage which causes dim lights, loss of power and loss of time in waiting for electrical elements to heat, electricity furnished by inadequate wiring costs more money. Studies on two Iowa farms indicate that extra costs of from 8 to 10 percent can be charged to too long and too small farmstead wiring. Shortening wires by moving the transformer closer to the meter pole on one farm cut the electricity loss as much as $1.25 per month.

Beaty points out that you pay for the energy lost in all wires on your side of the transformer. Even though you do not pay directly for the energy lost in heating the wires between the transformer and meter, you make up for it in the inefficiencies of your lighting, heating and power equipment.

Officers Named

At the recent quarterly meeting of the membership of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Garner the following were elected as officers: President, Carl Hoeft; Secretary, George Doble; Treasurer, Orville Woiwood; financial secretary, Alfred Jurgemeyer; finance committee, Gayle Tice, Fred Weiss and Alfred Jurgemeyer; deacons, William Janssen; trustee, W. A. Hoeft.

NEXT TWO MONTHS ARE MICE'S MOVING SEASON

You'll have less trouble with mice this winter if you keep them out of the house the next couple of months entomologist at Iowa State College.

When it gets colder outside, mice move into houses. They enter through cracks in foundations, around windows and also through open doors.

Gunderson says to caulk around windows and tops of foundations, and not to leave outside doors stand open more than necessary. Also, clear away the grass and weeds close to the house. If using straw to bank the foundation, scatter sulfur in the straw to repel mice and rats.

If mice once get inside the house, Gunderson says that trapping is the best method of getting rid of them. He recommends using at least six traps even if you have only one mouse. Bait with cheese, bacon, flour, cotton, apple, or bread. Tie the bait firmly on the trigger and set traps close to the wall on stairs, in the basement or the wall on stairs, in the basement and in the pantry.

Poison can be used to kill mice in farm outbuildings. Oats, wheat or birdseed poisoned with strychnine can be used where pets can't reach it. Gunderson says not to use poison in the house because mice die behind walls and in other inaccessible places, causing a bad odor.

IT PAYS TO SPRAY FOR FIRST BROOD CORN BORER

According to a check of yields in three Hancock County cornfields made by Paul Henderson, county extension director, with the assistance of Merle Yanacek, and Paul Shurts, an average of 7 bushels per acre were saved by one spraying of DDT.

Harold Quintus, Garner, had a field that showed the following results: untreated yield, 64.17 bushels per acre and the sprayed yield was 71.08 per acre. In the John Waddingham, Klemme, field the untreated yield was 59.56 bushels and the sprayed yield was 66.42 bushels. In the Jack Ostercamp field, Britt, the untreated yield was 77.98 bushels and the sprayed yield was 85.43 bushels.

All three of these farmers agreed that they sprayed a few days too late to get the maximum control. The Quintus field was sprayed on June 26, the Waddingham, June 30, and the Ostercamp field on June 28th. All yields were corrected for moisture and were figured on the basis of shelled corn.

Excessive Clinkering

Complaints about excessive clinkering by homeowners who use hand-fired coal are frequently due to the burning of garbage in the furnace or boiler, the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau explains. Excessive clinkering may also be due to extreme stirring of the fuel bed which causes ashes to be mixed with burning fuel, improper operation of drafts, excessive shaking of the grates, or forcing of the fire to bring up the heat fast.

The greatest worry of most women traveling alone is the bugbear of a flat tire on a lonely road. In this series of photos, Carol Lane, Shell Oil Company's much-traveled expert shows a few tricks that will enable a woman to change a tire alone—maintaining poise and calm from start to finish. The first thing to do at the first hint of trouble is to pull off to the side of the road.

weekly Picture story

DON'T STOP, MEN

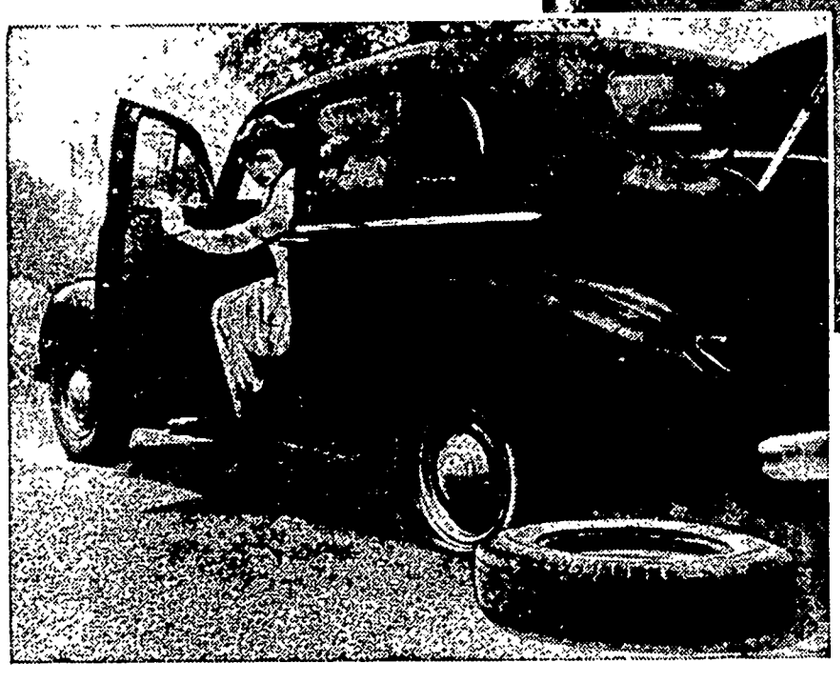
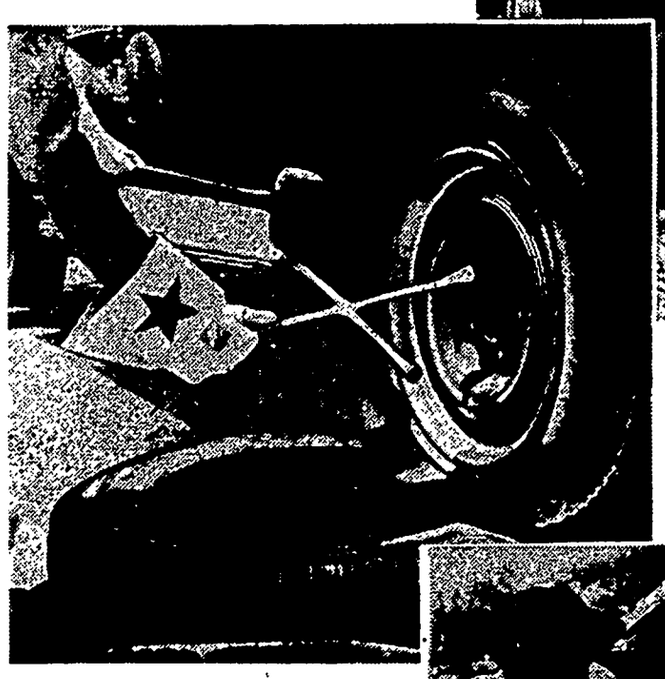
Naturally, that old, feminine trick of looking helpless is okay, provided someone is coming along—but if no one stops, milady might just as well get at the job. The wise woman motorist carries a pair of canvas gauntlets and an old shower curtain for just such emergencies. The shower curtain is invaluable for protecting clothes against grease and dirt.

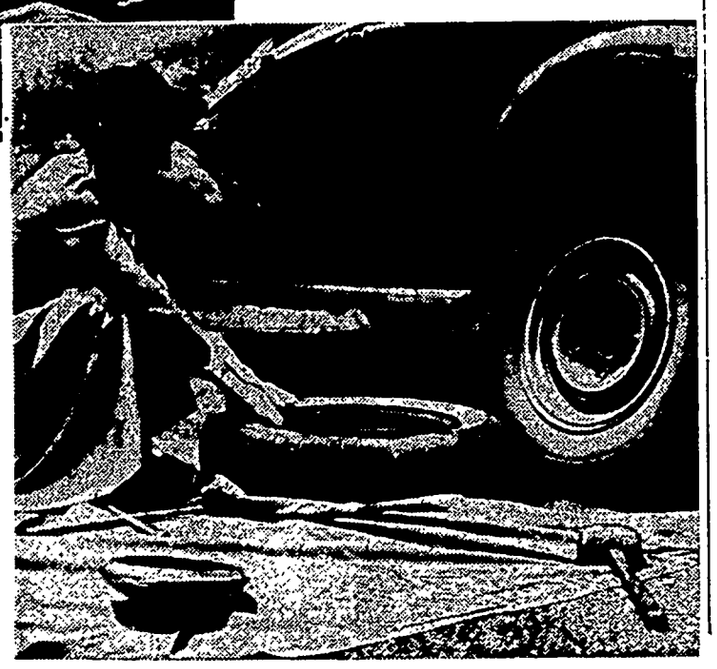


Get the tire wall of the spare tire as close to the flat tire as possible, then gently ease the flat up and on the spare. If the backing up is done gently, the flat will not be damaged—and this trick will make the tire changing much easier.

With the rear end of the car raised considerably by easing up on the spare, only a few pumps of the jack-handle are needed. This trick is fine with any jack and is especially effective with one that must be placed under the axle of the car.



A rubber mallet is a useful tool for starting stubborn lugs. Note that the flat is still riding the spare for extra stabiliy.



When all lugs have been removed, an extra pump or two on the jack-handle will free both tires and the flat can be rolled to the trunk compartment or the rear seat section. With the flat off, tilt up the spare. A few minor adjustments with the jack-handle and use of rubber mallet to jockey the spare into place will keep physical exertion down to a minimum.

Fewer Pedestrians Figure In 1948 Traffic Deaths

CHICAGO.—Fewer pedestrians walked themselves to death during 1948 than the year before

There were 9,850 pedestrian traffic deaths last year, according to the 1949 edition of "Accident Facts," statistical yearbook of the National Safety Council. This was 6 per cent below the 1947 total of 10,450.

The yearbook points out that last year was the first since motor vehicle deaths have been tabulated by type of accident that pedestrian deaths were fewer than deaths from two-vehicle collisions.

Foes Again Fear Fordham, Pitt

By GRANTLAND RICE

SOME YEARS ago football had three big teams marching under winning banners. They were Pittsburgh, coached by late Jock Sutherland, Fordham, directed by Jimmy Crowley, and New York university, handled by Chick Meehan.

They formed a rugged triumvirate, directed by three fine coaches, willing to play anybody, and usually successful.

Grantland Rice

Then they all decided to give big-time football the Arctic air. They turned their coaches loose to graze in foreign pastures or to make up some other occupation. All of the schools went downhill at a dizzy clip.

Now in the case of two of these universities there has been a turn to the past. Old ghosts are back again. Pittsburgh grew extremely weary of playing a schedule no one could face. Pitt apparently wanted to break into the Big Ten.

At any rate, the Panther decided to be a wolf in Panther clothing. Pittsburgh had a lucky break in being able to get Captain Tom Hamilton from Navy. Tom was both a good coach and a fine athletic director at the academy. He was given the job of rebuilding Pittsburgh, with the aid of Walter Milligan, the Panther coach.

Pitt began improving last fall. This season the Panther schedule includes William and Mary, Northwestern, Indiana, Minnesota, Ohio State, Pennsylvania and Penn State. This is a big-time schedule, and Hamilton is trying to field a big-time team, good enough to hold its own. Starting in 1950 Pitt will play Notre Dame for four consecutive years.

The same change of mind has struck the Fordham Ram Fordham doesn't meet all comers, east and west, north and south as Fordham and Pitt once did. Years ago, Pittsburgh was even too hardy for Notre Dame, who left the Panther alone for a while.

But Fordham is moving out again. This season the improved Rams meet Yale, Army, Boston College, Syracuse, Georgetown, Rutgers and N.Y.U.

This is a good schedule—possibly a trifle more than the Ram can digest at this spot in his return to old-fashioned years—when Fordham picked the best in the country.

The Tribe of Murphy

Many years ago, probably the greatest of all trainers and coaches combined worked at Yale and Pennsylvania.

His time goes back more than 40 years. His name was Mike Murphy. There is no one living today—whether he be a Yaleman or a Pennsylvania man, a football player or a track man—who worked under Mike Murphy who won't tell you that here was the all-time tops.

Mike was something more than a star trainer and a fine coach. He was an inspiration to all who knew him.

His grandson, Bill Murphy, is now one of the coming stars at Dartmouth. Young Bill may be one of the best men on Tuss McLaughry's Green squad—that won't be so green.

A few days ago I met another Mike Murphy, the son of Thorne Murphy and grandson of old Mike.

Young Mike is now in a western prep school but he, also, will be heard from before too long. He is a good-looking, well built kid who is a promising football player and a first-rate track man. His father played at Yale well over 20 years ago. His uncle is George Murphy, the famous motion picture star.

Young Mike wasn't quite sure what his destination would be later on but he gave me the impression that he was looking at Yale and Dartmouth The chances are he'll head for Dartmouth as Yale isn't getting its share of young star football players the way old Eli once did.

Ranking Ray Robinson

It has been the general opinion of those who follow the ring game closely that Ray Robinson has been the world's best all-around fighter for some years. Certainly since Joe Louis moved over the hill quite a while back.

If you start comparing Robinson with Stanley Ketchel you immediately wade into the middle of a verbal typhoon. The old Ketchel rooters, those who saw him fight, won't tolerate any comparison with anyone. Ketchel died at the age of 24, just when he was on his way up.

Harry Greb was wrecking heavyweights before he began to lose his eyesight. Any middleweight good enough to trim Gene Tunney and Tommy Gibbons, one after the other, had to be good. Later on Tunney got his revenge. For all of that Greb was a great fighter.

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a man who married for his second wife one of the haughtiest women in the world. She had two daughters of her own who were a pair of fine meanies. She had a stepdaughter of unparalleled goodness and beauty. She was called Cinderella. Her stepsisters kept her at the meanest work. They made her sleep in an old abandoned thirty-room showplace which nobody wanted while they had things easy in a $25,000 four-room ranch house, with no garage.

The king gave a great ball to which he invited everybody of prominence, including the two sourpuss sisters. They got themselves up like Mrs. Astor's pet ponies and paraded before Cinderella, who, after they flounced off, said, "I wish I could go to a great ball." Instantly her fairy godmother appeared.

"These great balls are not what they used to be," she said. "Before you get in you will have to take chances on a couple of automobiles and maybe a dream house. And there will be be-bop music. Still, if you wish to go . . ."

"Oh, I do," said Cinderella. "Fetch me a pumpkin, then," said the fairy godmother. Pumpkins were pretty high, as the government had underwritten them, or something, but she got one.

"Get me a mousetrap, a rat and six lizards," said the fairy godmother.

"I wanna go to a ball, not an animal show," warned Cinderella.

The fairy godmother had a wand, a book on economics by Sir Stafford Cripps and several speeches by government experts, so she was able to convert the pumpkin, mice, etc., into a coach with white horses, a coachman and six attendants. Whisk! And Cinderella was off to the ball before anybody could arrive to demand that she pay luxury taxes on the whole business.

She was the most ravishing dish at the ball. The king's son went for her in a big way at once, much to Cinderella's discomfiture. She was a smart cookie. (This could get serious. A prince would have loads of money, and she knew what that meant these days. He would have to spend all his days figuring out how he stood and all his nights checking to see if there had been anything new from Sir Stafford Cripps.)

Suddenly the great clock struck.

"Twelve," said Cinderella.

"Eleven," said the prince.

"Ten," said the king.

"My goodness, one can't figure anything these days," said Cinderella, taking it on the lam (She had to take a taxi. The coachman, the big rat, had struck for more money and all the lizards had walked out in sympathy.)

Well, to make a long story worse, she was not through with the prince and the problems of having everything. She had left a glass slipper.

• • •

The prince searched the whole land until he found that the slipper fitted Cinderella, and was he glad when he discovered she was really a working girl and hadn't a thin dime! It meant less bookkeeping.

He proposed and Cinderella accepted, saying, "I suppose I could have done worse. Look at all those girls who win givaway programs!"

So she married the prince, who got back to the palace just in time to find the pound had been devalued again and he wasn't worth very much which meant, after all, a life of comparative tranquillity.

CHRISTLIKE

THIS is a Christlike thing: to bear a grief
Unspoken and unshared, yet go one's way
Not feverishly seeking for relief,
But day by day
Doing the tasks at hand to cheer and bless,
That others may find greater happiness.

This is a Christlike thing: through wearing pain
To keep quite still, that watching, none may see
The weariness, the harrowing stress and strain,
The agony,
But wearing always something of Christ's grace
And infinite patience written on one's face.

For the Master bore His agony alone,
And bore it well,
And the greatest grief a heart has ever known,
He did not tell.

Choose The Best!

Lesson for October 30, 1949

IT HURT Isaiah's patriotism, and his religion too, to see how fast his country was going down hill. Most of the troubles Isaiah saw are with us today. Wealthy women spending more and more on themselves; leaders who are irresponsible, self-seeking and incompetent; poverty unprevented and uncared-for; drunkenness high and low. Isaiah, and other prophets as well, saw in the sin and drunkenness of the times the sign and symbol of national decay. To the careless, the selfish and the wild, to those who were "leaders" but were leading in the wrong direction, Isaiah kept saying, in many different ways, Choose the best!

The Prophets' Successors

THERE WAS A TIME when the church put most of her preaching emphasis on individual religion: Get right with God! was the cry. The church of today has not by any means given up her emphasis on personal religion, but we are learning from the prophets what social righteousness means. The church in our time is the logical and actual successor to the prophet's work.

The church is doing more than ever to awaken the conscience of society, in fact the church itself has a duty to be the conscience of society. One of the problems about which our nation needs to be waked up is one that Isaiah and Jeremiah faced, only we have it in a more desperate form.

We call it alcoholism; they called it by an uglier, more suitable word: drunkenness. Even in those days drinking was a problem; it cut down the national health, wealth and wisdom. Nowadays it is worse because of two factors. One is the higher percentage of alcohol in beverages such as whiskey, unknown in those days. The other factor is advertising.

Where Drunkards Start

AGAINST ALL THIS the church must keep saying and persuading people, Choose the Best! But it does comapartively little good to say this to the confirmed alcoholic. It makes more sense to say it to young people For the sad feature of alcoholism is that it begins in the high schools.

The Yale School of Alcohol Studies has collected evidence indicating that two-thirds of all alcoholics begin drinking habits in the early high school years.

A recent Gallup poll shows the greatest percentage of drinkers to be in the age group 21 to 39. Today, it is estimated, there are four million alcohol addicts or excessive drinkers who are in more or less constant trouble with their families and employers.

Drunkenness costs industry in America no less than one billion dollars a year, and has a lot to do with the break-up of homes and with crime generally.

Allied Youth

SOMETHING is being done to stop this, which you should know about. There is a movement known as Allied Youth, a national educational organization working in high schools all over the country. Its work is positive, not negative. It is not trying to pass laws or to bring back prohibition. What it does try to do—and it is succeeding remarkably well in many places—is to give young people a way of life that will enable them to meet social pressure for drinking without loss of "face." Every Allied Youth post in a school has three aims: 1. To meet the social and recreational needs of young people.

Every New Year's Eve, for instance, when millions of Americans are getting sickly drunk, more than 6,000 young people gather in Detroit for the biggest dry party in America, sponsored by Allied Youth.

2. To establish within the school a fellowship of young people who do not think it is necessary to drink to be smart. Such a group can change the attitude of an entire school.

3. To build a solid foundation of education for total abstinence. Essentially, Allied Youth is saying to young people everywhere, "Choose the Best!"

JEANNE CRAIN and her husband, Paul Brinkman, (handsomer than many movie stars,) visited New York to help promote "Pinky," her new picture, a 20th Century-Fox production. Michael, aged eight months, and Paul, two, stayed home. Darryl Zanuck did a daring thing in making "Pinky," the story of a colored girl who passed for white; equally daring was his choice of Miss Crain for the sort of role usually reserved for actresses like Bette Davis. But Jeanne Crain's talent has been obvious ever since she and June Haver made their debuts in "Back Home in Indiana"; as usual, Zanuck knew exactly what he was doing.

The cast of "Pinky" is star-studded. Ethel Barrymore, Ethel Waters and William Lundigan share honors with Miss Crain, and Elia Kazan, one of the best directors of stage and screen, directed this one.

Johnny Weismuller weighed 199 pounds when he reported for his new "Jungle Jim" picture, thereby saving some $38,000. Weighing 238 when the deal was signed, he said he'd pay $1000 for every pound he didn't lose by starting time.

Lauren Bacall made no money by losing the five pounds she gained after Stephen Humphrey Bogart was born, but at 118 she looked better when she went to work in "Young Man with a Horn," with Kirk Douglas and Doris Day.

Nancy Olson, who stepped from undergraduate status at UCLA into the leads of two top pictures, will be Bing Crosby's romantic interest in Paramount's "Mr. Music." In her first film, "Canadian Pacific," she appeared with Randolph Scott; she recently completed a featured role in "Sunset Boulevard," with William Holden and Gloria Swanson.

3-Minute Fiction

SHERIFF Sol Rock cautiously approached the cabin and knocked three times. A bolt slid back into its socket. The door swung open and a voice came out into the night. "That you, Sol?"

Sol sighed in relief.

"Hello, Baldy," he said, stepping inside. "What luck?"

"None." Sol heard Baldy fishing for a match, and he said. "Wait a minute, Baldy I got a scheme I want to work out."

"They've seen me," Sol went on. "Joe and Slim. They've been trailing me all day. I just kept far enough to avoid trouble."

"Avoid trouble? You?" Baldy's voice sounded incredulous. And Sol chuckled. "Listen, Baldy, we've been chasing these two bad men for more than a week now. I'm sick of it. And now that we've found them, I don't aim to let 'em get away."

"So that's why you ran away from them?" sarcastically.

"Don't be a fool. I wanted 'em to follow me. They'll be along any time now. I made sure they saw me ride down in here by silhouetting myself against the skyline 15 minutes ago. Now here's the point: They don't know about you, yet. They think there's only me to contend with. And unless I miss my guess, they aim to get me out of the way tonight."

"Unless I stop 'em," said Baldy.

"Right. Now get this; I'm leaving you here alone, see? Cover the windows and then light up. They'll think it's me inside here, all unsuspecting."

"Fine," said Baldy. "But what's wrong with me being on the outside and you on the inside?"

Sol laughed shortly "A lot, you little squirt. Now pipe down and obey orders. I'm going."

Instantly he grew tense. Every muscle and nerve and fibre became alert. He half crouched, half stood in his hiding place. And as he watched the cabin a dim figure took shape and became a man. Another appeared beside the first.

They lingered only a moment, then began stealthily to approach the door. Sol stepped silently from his hiding place. At the very instant that one of the figures crouched to thrust his weight against the door, he spoke out of the darkness.

"Reach toward the sky, boys! Drop those guns, and turn around. The jig's up. We got the drop on you!"

SOL QUICKENED his footsteps. In the darkness he stumbled, regained his feet and came on. At the moment he went down an orange lance of flame streamed out of the blackness near the cabin. It was followed by another.

But before the two bandits could shoot again, the two six-guns in Sol's hands thundered.

Answering shots came from the cabin. Sol felt a searing pain in his left shoulder. His senses began to reel. And suddenly he realized that the renegades had accomplished what he had been unable to do because of his stumble. They had fired at the flash from his guns —high—hoping for a kill.

This was Sol's last thought.

When Sol returned to consciousness he found himself lying on a bunk in the cabin. Baldy, grinning broadly, was standing over him.

"What the hell did you blow out that light for?" Sol wanted to know. "It spoiled my aim, made me stumble and nearly got me killed.

"Thought it would," Baldy grinned. "Wanted it to. You didn't think I was going to be fool enough to open the door and stand in the light so those birds could take pot shots at me?"

"Well what happened, anyway?"

For answer Baldy pointed across the room. Sol looked and saw two men lying there, both bound securely.

"Wing 'em?" Sol asked.

"Winged nothing. I whacked 'em over the head from the doorway while they were shooting at you. By the way, you almost hit me with your own wild shooting."

"Wish I had," Sol grinned. "Say, squirt, you ain't so dumb as you look!"

"And I ain't so much of a squirt, either," Baldy replied indignantly. "Fact is I blew out that light just so's I could show you what a big feller I was."

BOOKLET NOW READY ON INSECT CONTROL

Just in time to help you sore rayons and cottons safe from silver-fish, to avoid weevels and get rid of box elder bugs, a new bulletin entitled "Controlling Household Pests" is available.

It has been prepared for the homemakers by Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College entomologist, and may be ordered free of charge from the college bulletin office or your county extension director.

The booklet pictures over 30 insect pests which often invade Iowa homes, causing annoyance and carrying disease. Some of them attack foods, other clothing and furnishings and even the structure of the home itself. A section is included on pests which may infest houseplants, and there is another on rodent control.

Gunderson discusses newest methods, equipment and insecticides for home use. He says most control procedures can be carried out easily by the homemaker, and lists easy-to-follow directions for eradicating each pest.

Prices Vary On Picking Up Corn In Iowa Fields

Corn borer damage, plus high winds has damaged the Iowa corn crop considerably and Iowa fields have from 5 to 50 bushels of corn on the ground which can't be picked by mechanical pickers and the only way to salvage it is by hand labor.

Prices vary throughout the state for the amount paid for picking up corn from 10 cents up to 30 cents per bushel, according to reports. Some farmers hire labor by the hour and the price seems to range from 75 cents to $1.00 per hour for picking up corn.

Around Spencer 10 cents per bushel is paid for picking up; around Waterloo farmers pay as much as 30 cents; while at Boone one farmer hired 100 girls to pick up corn at 25 cents per bushel. Around Fort Dodge the price seems to be 20 cents per bushel or 75 cents per hour, and around Algona it is 70 cents per hour. Other places the price is 12 cents per bushel.

ASK NORTHERN NATURAL GAS PIPE EXPANSION

Washington, — Authority to double the proposed expansion of its pipeline system is sought by the Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, Nebraska, from the power commission.

The company originally had asked permission to build about 327 miles of 24-inch pipeline in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. The project, including 16,000 horsepower installations in compressor units and a dehydration plant was to cost $27,800,000.

The amended application seeks to expand the system north of Kansas by 130,000,000 cubic feet a day, to a total of 600,000,000 cubic feet. The estimated cost is $51,840,000.

Plans to build an additional 270 miles of pipeline are included in the application. The company also plans an additional 19,200 horsepower, and to use 26-inch pipe inpower installation, and to use 26-inch pipe instead of the 24-inch pipe originally proposed.

The proposed pipeline construction includes:

43½ miles from Palmyra, Nebr., northeast into Pottawattamie county, 66 miles from Oakland, north into Boone county, 31. 2 miles from Ogden, north into Hancock county, 39½ miles from Ventura, north into Dakota county, Minn., and 41 miles from Ventura to Freeborn, Minnesota.

LIMITED TRAPPING OPEN NOON, NOVEMBER 10

The 1949 trapping season on raccoon, skunk, opossum, civet cat and badger only opens at noon November 10 and continues until midnight January 10th. There is a continuous open season on red or gray fox, weasel, ground hog, wolf and coyote, and a continuous closed season on otter.

The most important fur-bearers, muskrat and mink, do not open until noon December 1 and remain open only 20 days, except that Big Wall Lake, Wright County, will be open to trapping only from December 1st through December 7th.

The beaver season will be open in 33 counties for the first time in 75 years, beginning noon December 1 and closing at midnight December 7. Counties in which there is an open beaver season include: Lyon, Osceola, Dickinson, Emmet, Kossuth, Palo Alto, Sioux, O'Brien, Clay, Plymouth, Cherokee, Buena Vista, Posahotas, Humbolt, Woodbury, Ida, Sac, Calhoun, Webster, Monona, Crawford, Carroll, Greene, Boone, Harrison, Pottawattamie, Mills, Fremont, Allamakee, Clayton, Delaware, Dubuque and Jackson.

In the closed beaver territory these fur-bearers may be taken where damage is being caused only under special permit of the Conservation Commission.

Funeral Thursday For Garner Pioneer

Funeral services for Belle C. Love, 86, were held Thursday at 2 p. m. at Garner in the United Presbyterian Church with the Rev. J. Dallas Gibson in charge. Interment was in the Concord township cemetery.

Miss Love died at her home in Garner Monday following a long illness. She is survived by one brother, John, of Garner, and several nephews and nieces. She has been a resident of the Garner community for the past 65 years and was active in civic affairs. She was a member of the Eastern Star.

ANNUAL CROP DRIVE BEGINS NEXT WEEK

Next week Iowans will begin donating food for hungry people overseas as the third annual Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP)) drive for commodities gets underway.

Sponsoring the drive are your church, whether it is Catholic or Protestant, your Farm Bureau, and civic leaders. Its parent agencies are Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service, and Lutheran World Relief, making CROP the first and largest interchurch relief program in history.

CROP, in addition to being sponsored by churches, has the endorsement and support of many civic and farm organizations, and the ocoperation of the Iowa State Department of Public Instruction, the Iowa State Education Association, the Iowa Extension Service and many other groups.

It has also been commended by Secretary of Agriculture, Charles W. Brannan and Trygvie Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations.

Last year residents of the Tall Corn state gave enough food to make the largest donation of any state in the country, 393 carloads. This year they boosted their goal to 450 carloads.

The need for food is still great as is evidenced by a report made by the Rev. Ralph Loomis, CROP district supervisor from Missouri, now touring Germany studying conditions.

"I have seen the poorhouse of Germany. It is the province of Schleswig, lying north of Hamburg and immediately south of Denmark. The Schleswig's normal population of 1.5 million are added 1.3 million refugees from the Russian zone. They are still coming out of that area at the rate of 1,000 a day, the young men to avoid the labor camps of Russian uranium mines and the tank factories of Siberia. All of these people have to be fed if they hope to live in a democracy," he reported.

Ersel Walley, president of the American Soybean association, just returned from a 3 months survey of Europe, wrote in a letter to John D. Metzler, national CROP chairman:

"In my opinion the CROP organization is doing a wonderful job in Europe and I know of no other means whereby with so little hardship on the American people so much is being accomplished."

And in a letter from M. L. Wilson, director of extension work for the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

"Hunger and the need for relief still exist in many parts of the world. The war and its economic disturbance have left many rural people abroad without adequate breeding livestock and production facilities. CROP is a means whereby farm people in our country can give direct help to farm people in other countries."

To most Iowans, giving food in the CROP campaign is a familiar routine. And what's more important, they know why they give.

There are a number of reasons why people give food to the hungry. Principally of course, it is to help persons of war bludgeoned countries stay alive while they rebuild their life.

Others include political, economic and social factors. But the significance of these is of little importance when compared to the real reason for giving to CROP.

Perhaps the reason for giving was best explained recently by a CROP worker as he drove a new member of the organization to a crop meeting. "The reason is obvious," he said. "People give food during the CROP drive because they're Christian."

FARM BUREAU OFFICERS NOMINATED FOR 1950

The Hancock County Farm Bureau Nominating Committe which consists of V. A. Cook, Chairman; C. A. Bird, Carl Woiwood, Walter Kahl and John Eenhuis have completed the list of nominee s for the 1950 officers of the Hancock County Farm Bureau. Each nominee has agreed to serve if elected at the County Annual meeting which will be held at the Duncan Hall on Thursday, November 10th, according to Paul G. Shurts, County Fieldman.

The nominees for the several county officers are as follows:

For President, Gilbert Guenther, Erin Twp., Henry Swanson, Orthel Twp.; For Vice-President, Franklin Bredlow, of Liberty T wp., Edwin Thieman, Ell Twp.; for Treasurer, Richard Brown, Bingham Twp., Jerry Fox, Orthel Twp.; for Secretary, Lowell Maley, Concord Twp., Kenneth Olsen, Ellington Twp.; for Voting Delegate, Gilbert Guenthus, Erin Twp., Henry Swanson, Orthel Twp.; for Alternate Voting Delegate, Frank Bredlow, Liberty Twp., Edwin Thieman, Ell Twp.

The nominating committe has recommended that the elected president also serve as county voting delegate and the elected president serve as county alternate voting delegate, and have placed their names as candidates for these offices accordingly.

Entertained Young People

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wille entertained a group of young people at their home Saturday evening. For entertainment cards were played and the high scores were won by Carol Brager and Mrs. Wm. Reinhart, while low scores were made by Mrs. Wesley Patterson and Bill Reinhart.

Mr. and Mrs. Wille served a delicious lunch after the games. All had a fine time.

Hunted Deer In Wisconsin

ECONOMISTS DON'T AGREE ON OUTLOOK

What Occurs With Business In 1950 Governs Farm Produce Demand

Uncertainty sprinkled with varying degrees of optimism characterizes the farm outlook picture for 1950, says Francis Kutish, Iowa State College extension economist.

Here's why. By far the most important factor in the farm outlook picture is what happens to business. The catch to that is .hat business forecasters don't agree among themselves on what 1950 holds in store.

BAE, Purdue Disagree

For example, the S. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics looks for a strong consumer demand for food and other farm products for the near future. But it feels that the story will be different in 1950. According to the BAE, total demand is likely to be somewhat less in 1950 than in 1940. The reason: Spendable income--both total and per person, will decrease somewhat from this year. What is more, the BAE believes that the share of the weekly pay check going for food will shrink.

On the other hand, Purdue University economist are some optimistic about 1950. They say that the postwar recession in general business appears near its low. By late 1949 or early 1950 business is expected to improve. At that time the Purue economists look for general prices to level off or fluctuate around this point during most of next year.

SUI Optimistic

The Purdue economists conclude that farm income will be a little lower because of a narrower profit spread and probably a little weaker demand for meat animals.

The State University of Iowa economists are a little more cautious than the Purdue economists—but they still are on the optimistic side. They say: "It would be rash to forecast that the recession is over in agriculture, but it does seem reasonable to conclude that barring a drastic overhauling of our farm legislation, the worst is past."

CROP THROUGH THE CHURCHES

Food donated by the people of Hancock County during last year's drive of the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) reaches a group of hungry orphans in France. This was part of the 2,393 carloads given through CROP for overseas relief through the churches.

CROP is the nationwide, interchurch and farm organization program through which bulk commodities, such as corn, wheat and beans are contributed for the needy in Europe, Asia and the Middle East, who have no other source of help. Although the war is long past, orphans such as these continue to be dependent upon the churches of the world for all their needs. In Europe alone 3,000,000 children have lost their parents. Without the help of CROP many more of them would already be dead.

Hancock County has accepted a goal of $14,000 for the campaign which will be held the week of November 6th. Sponsors of CROP are Catholic Rural Life Conference, Church World Service and Lutheran World Relief.

Hilary Greiman, Hancock Co. CROP Chairman, believes that Hancock Countians will again this year demonstrate that they are Christian People in the fullest meaning of the name and rally to the cause in the Name of Him who said "Feed My Lambs, Feed My Sheep." When the solicitor calls during the week of November 6th, greet him with a smile, and say "I have been waiting for you. I have my contribution ready. I want to give of my surplus to a brother or sister less fortunate than I."

WISE SPORTSMEN OBEY LAW ABOUT PHEASANTS

Square shooting will be as important as sharp shooting when the 1949 pheasant season opens at noon, November 11th.

R. B. Moorman, the wildlife specialist at Iowa State College says that the hunter who shoots a hen pheasant cuts next year's sport by anywhere from three to six birds. By shooting cocks only, breeding stock can be maintained and there'll be plenty of birds for good hunting next year.

Hunters who ask the farmer's permission before going on a farm are making another wise move, in Moorman's opinion. The farmer may be able to direct them to areas where pheasants are and he can also point out fields that have been pretty well hunted out. Too, it gives the farmer a chance to see who is huntng on his land.

The short hunting day is another feature that gives the pheasant a chance to provide sport. The birds have a chance to feed in the forenoon, and with the close of the hunting day at 4:30 p. m. they have a chance to get back to roosting areas. Getting to roosts before dark gives the pheasants a chance to escape hawks, owls and predatory animals, Moorman points out.

Sixty-eight counties will have a 25-day season, 11 counties will have a short, 1-week season, and the remainder will have no open season on Iowa's chief game bird.

Daily bag is two cocks, while the possession limit on pheasants after the first day is four cocks, Moorman reminds hunters.

BARZ RELATIVES WERE ENTERTAINED AT A DINNER FRIDAY EVE

Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Voetberg of Garner, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Barz and daughter, Maxine, entertained the following relatives at a dinner at the community Hall dining room Friday evening, October 28th; at 7:00 o'clock:

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barz of Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl and family of Meservey; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Barz and Darlene of Ventura; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Greiman and family of Ventura.

The following from Klemme and vicinity were present: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz; Mrs. Lena Schroeder; Mrs. Clara Barz; Mrs. Esther Barz and Eward; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barz and children; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Barz and daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Barz and family; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Hagen; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Barz; and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund K. Josten and daughter.

After the dinner the evening was spent in playing 500. Door prizes were given and were won by Fred Barz and Edmund Josten for the men; Mrs. Walter Rosendahl and Mrs. Allen Barz won the ladies' prizes. Graydon Barz and Roslie Rosendahl won the prizes for children.

All had a very good time and enjoyed the well prepared meal.

KILL NO HENS

The pheasant population in Iowa and the Middle West generally has definitely increased over that of last year.

Biologists of the State Conservation Commission are convinced that even with present day hunting pressure, the future of pheasant hunting in this state is not jeopardized as long as cocks only are killed during the hunting season and that the upward trend can continue.

Pheasants are polygamous, and one cock normally has a harem of two or more hens. Experiments have shown that in the wild a ratio of one cock to as many as 10 hens is sufficient to guarantee egg fertility.

When sex ratios are nearly even, as they are at the present time, an excess of cocks exists and these may and should be harvested.

If hunters do not shoot hens, reproduction next year will be the same as if the cocks were not harvested. Every Iowa hunter who is interested in the future of the pheasant hunting sport will assist in the perpetuation of pheasant hunting by observing the "Kill No Hens" law.

FARMERS TO RECEIVE STORAGE PAYMENT FOR CORN HELD NOW

A. E. Rasmussen, Chairman of the Hancock County PMA committee, said he has been advised by the state PMA offices that producers will receive a storage payment for corn under loan or purchase agreement that must be held on farms after November 1, the end of the 60 day grace period after maturity loans that the terms of the corn sealing program require farmers to hold the grain if necessary without cost to CCC.

Mr. Rasmussen explained that it is certain, that acceptance of the great volume of corn that farmers want to deliver cannot be completed by November 1; therefore, CCC will pay a storage fee of 1-20 cents per bushel but not to exceed 10 cents per bushel for every day farmers must hold this corn from Novmber 1 through final day of delivery.

The plan, said Mr. Rasmussen, will be a test of producer-USDA cooperation in handling the excessive volume of corn in an orderly way that will keep the price support program effective in stabilizing the price of corn.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

'Chuck Shooting

Woodchuck shooting can provide fine sport for the future as well as for the present, according to Henry P. Davis, public relations division, Remington arms company.

"That sounds like having your cake and eating it, too," says Davis, "and that's just about what it is. For every time you rid a farm or pasture of some of these pests, you have placed the landowner under obligations to you. He'll remember this.

"Woodchuck shooting is fine fun for man and youngster. When it becomes a matter of father-son participation, it can contribute far more than appears on the surface in the creation of better understanding between a youngster and his dad.

"Half the fun in woodchuck shooting is in the stalking. A campaign of strategy must be mapped out and carefully pursued, for the 'whistle-pig' is an exceedingly wary animal and since he changed his habitat from woods to open sections, he must depend upon his alertness as his greatest defense against enemies and predators.

"While special 'varmint' rifles and cartridges have been developed especially for woodchuck hunting, a good stalker can have a lot of successful sport with an ordinary .22 caliber rifle. High speed, hollow point bullets make the best ammunition, for Mr. Chuck can pack a lot of lead. It often takes a clean head or spine shot with a hollow point .22 bullet to make a clean kill."

Davis' comments on woodchuck shooting are important to devotees of the sport, inasmuch as there are only a few weeks left in which to go afield after these animals. When it gets cold, Mr. Chuck dens up and won't be moving around outside anymore until spring.

"Be Seeing You"

Bobwhite Traits

The bobwhite, America's most popular upland game bird, is a more versatile fellow than most of his admirers realize. Experienced hunters, however, have a store of anecdotes that reveal just how gifted our native quail are in their battle for survival.

Aside from the "explosion" when they flush from cover—a noise that sends many a hunter into such a fever of excitement that he seldom gets a bead on a bird—"Bob" has many other characteristics just as effective to keep him out of a shot pattern.

One extraordinary faculty of quail is their ability to "disappear when observed during the first few weeks of their lives. Parent birds have a remarkable ability to absorb the little birds into and among their feathers. As many as 20 chicks have been seen to vanish among the ruffled feathers of two brooding parents.

Parent quail not only try to decoy the intruder away from the young with the old "broken-wing" act, but the male bird goes even further. The alarmed chirp of his chicks will bring Mr. Bob back to try and fight the molester. He'll even battle humans, showing all the ferocity and characteristics of an old setting hen.

Extreme danger, such as hardship brought on by winter, also causes the quail to show a fine disregard for humans. Under such impetus they will often come right into barnlots and barns.

No Favorites

The toll taken by forest fires does not consist altogether of timber damage and destruction. Wildlife, too, is often depleted by forest fires. And now and then human life is lost, as in the case of the Montana forest fire which killed 13 persons.

The hunter and angler can't possibly exercise too much caution when in dry fields and forests. The least he can do is attempt always to be alert to fire hazards and to refrain from creating them.

PEAK CLIMBER

Californian Holds Record

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—A retired, real estate man is the first person ever to climb the 67 highest peaks in the United States.

He is John D. Graham, an athletic 53, who claimed the record after scaling North Palisade peak in California, and Grizzly peak in Colorado in a one-week expedition.

His goal for 15 years, Graham said in an interview, has been to conquer every U. S. mountain higher than 14,000 feet. He listed 67 such pinnacles. The World Almanac lists only 62.

He has clambered up all 14,000 footers in Colorado, California and Washington, Graham said, the only states in which the giants are located.

First Ascent in 1935

He tackled his first mountain during a Colorado vacation in 1935. It was small, but the experience was a challenge.

"It gave me an unusual feeling to be able to see such great distances and such inspiring scenery," he said.

Originally from New York city, Graham had a chance to hike to his heart's content when he moved to Colorado. He said that while he lived in Colorado Springs and Denver before World War II he became the eighth person to climb all 52 of the 14,000 foot peaks in that state.

"Mountain climbing finally gets to be a competition and a challenge," he said. "It's the same feeling of accomplishment you notice after a good score in golf. You match your skill, strength and endurance against the mountain, which can really throw out the obstacles."

North Palisade Toughest

His toughest ascent, Graham said, was his last—North Palisade, a 14,254 footer near Big Pine, Calif. He made it in July, before winter snow and ice had fully melted.

Approaching with his party from the north, he crossed the Palisade glacier, the most southerly active glacier in North America. They crossed the Bergschrund, a crevasse in the snow field at the head of the glacier, on an ice bridge. Using ropes and ice axes most of the way, it took them 10 hours to reach the summit.

The descent on the south side was slower. It was getting dark. Graham paused on a narrow cliffside ledge to fasten a rope. A second later he heard a roar and an avalanche of rock and snow tore down the mountain directly in front of him. A huge boulder whizzed by his head. The pause had saved his life.

Russians Claim It Was They Who Invented Tank

MOSCOW.—The Russians were at it again—claiming discoveries made by other countries. This time Pravda, official publication of the Soviet government, claimed the Russians invented the military tank a year and a half before the fighting machine appeared in Britain.

Not only that, was the claim, but Russians now have created tanks that have no equal anywhere in the world.

The articles were published as the Soviet Union celebrated "tank day." As a further observance of the day, all papers published large portraits of Prime Minister Stalin and the text of an order of the day by Alexander M. Vasilevsky, armed forces minister. This order demanded new successes in the development of armored and mechanized armies.

The article in Pravda, the Communist party's organ, was written by Semyon Ilyich Bogdanov, marshal of armed forces. It said:

"The facts show that the first tank designs appeared in Russia considerably earlier than people started to work on these questions abroad, and the first models of Russian built tanks were constructed a year and a half earlier than similar machines appeared in Britain."

He said the date the first tank was made in Russia was May, 1915.

Ballroom Hula Requires No Grass Skirt Routine

CHICAGO, ILL.—In the first place, a ballroom hula doesn't require a grass skirt, yet, to be a big boy on a ballroom floor these days, one has to know how to do the hula. The Chicago national dancing master's association is authority for the statement.

Despite its name, the association is composed of hundreds of dancing instructors from all over the United States and Canada.

All of them are practicing what they call the "ballroom hula" so they can teach it to their customers. They don't say you have to wear a grass skirt to do it, but even in a nice, conservative suit, undulating hips are going to look odd if they are undulated by, say, a businessman who has eaten not wisely, but too well—and whose contours show it.

Howard Turner, of Tulsa, Okla., says jitterbugging must still be contended with, only they are calling it "swing" again.

Ballroom devotees might as well be on the lookout for the "shuffleboard shuffle," the dancing maestros say, but none had the courage to explain just what it is.

Variety Gives Lunch Boxes Interest

AKERS who put together boxes daily are apt to t as much of a rut about them as the school children or husbands who eat them. Yet, since lunch is such an important meal of the day, rules for variety must be observed consistently.

WHEN THE LUNCH BOX consists of two sandwiches, it often makes for variety to make one of meat, fish or cheese, and the other one a vegetable combination.

The crispness as well as a good choice of flavors will make the latter interesting sandwich material. Try some of these ideas:

Mix grated carrots and cabbage, in amounts desired with mayonnaise. Top with two slices of crisp bacon.

Slice cucumbers thin, dust with salt, then cover with thinly sliced radishes. Spread with mayonnaise.

Grated cabbage and carrots mixed with chopped celery, mayonnaise and enough chili sauce for flavoring gives a crisp, colorful sandwich.

Lettuce, watercress or young, tender spinach leaves, or other greens, topped with thinly sliced tomatoes and mayonnaise gives a salad sandwich.

Leftover peas may be mashed and mixed with mayonnaise and peanuts for interesting variety.

Fruit Sandwiches

Grind ½ cup dates with ½ cup figs; add some chopped nuts and moisten with pineapple and lemon juice.

Slice bananas thin, dip them in orange juice. Place on buttered bread, covered with lettuce, then sprinkle with a few chopped nuts.

Thinly sliced apples, spread with mayonnaise mixed with chopped celery and nuts, gives a salad type sandwich.

Egg Sandwiches

Mix hard-cooked, chopped eggs with mustard and mayonnaise. Add catsup to taste and enough chopped cucumber or cucumber pickles to make the spread crisp.

Chopped hard-cooked eggs combine well with chopped watercress or finely shredded lettuce and salad dressing to moisten.

---

Baking-powder biscuits take on novel interest when made with orange juice replacing milk. Add some of the grated rind, too, if you want to sharpen the flavor.

Finely chopped pecans, two tablespoons to a cup of rice, will do much more than you expect to that delicacy which is already such a favorite.

Fillets of fish take on festive airs when they're served with chopped almonds cooked until just slightly browned in salad oil.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

'True Mates' Don't Exist

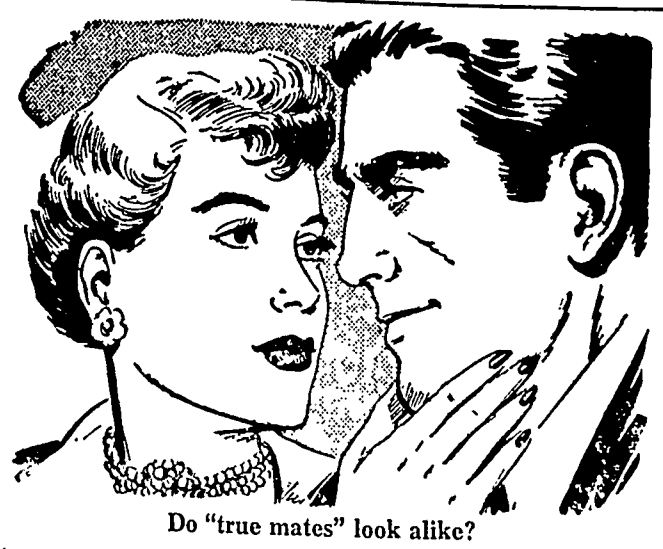
By Lawrence Gould

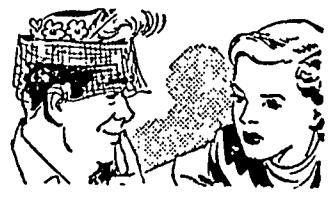


Do "true mates" look alike?

Answer: There are no such things as "true mates" in the sense of people who have been "made for each other," and the fact that a man and a woman are of the same physical type has no bearing on their chance of being happy if they marry. As a rule it is unwise to marry someone whose appearance is unpleasant to you, but whether you are attracted to a person who looks like you or to one who is as different as possible depends upon your unconscious feelings and standards of beauty. "Physical affinity" is an exploded notion.

Is classical music good for mental patients?

Answer: Different types of music affect mental patients very differently, report two psychiatrists from Warlingham Park Hospital, Surrey, England. Played to groups of patients, the musical classics roused a feeling of security and group cohesion, where "romantic" music tended to revive their individual problems. But the best effect on patients, both in calming their disturbed emotions and in fostering group harmony came from familiar airs and folk songs —probably because these bring back happy memories of childhood.



Do some men crave to wear women's clothing?

Answer: Yes. Every so often I hear from a man who admits a compulsive urge to dress like a woman, either when alone at home or (if he dares) in public. Called "transvestitism," this comparatively mild perversion is said by the psychoanalysts to express an unconscious desire on the man's part to "identify himself" with a mother to whom he was overly devoted. The desire of girls or women to dress like men— which is much more common—is also essentially neurotic but less deeply rooted and involves no serious personality disorder.

A New Treatment for Psoriasis

By Dr. James W. Barton

I WRITE FREQUENTLY about psoriasis, the skin disease in which there are pearly white scales on slightly raised white patches of skin. On removing the scales with the fingernail the underlying spot bleeds slightly.

These little spots or patches of scales may begin as tiny as peas and increase to the size of silver dollars. The little spots or patches may run together and form large patches. They look like patches of mortar. While there is a small amount of itching present, it is primarily the appearance of these unsightly patches on elbows, knees, and head that causes embarrassment and distress of mind.

While an attack may disappear, the disease is recurrent and up to the present, skin specialists state that they know of no cure, although sunshine usually causes temporary disappearance of patches.

In previous days arsenic internally and a 5 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment externally, was routine treatment. Today cutting down on fat foods, the use of vitamin B1 and various ointments, is the usual treatment. Of course various methods of treatment of psoriasis have come and gone, some of which still give good results in a few cases. However, as there is no special or specific treatment, there is no reason why new methods should not be tried.

In the "Journal of the American Medical Association," Drs. Harris Perlman and Irving L. Milberg, New York, state that their use of undecylenic acid with a few private cases of psoriasis, caused such "dramatic" improvement that they were prompted to use it in cases of psoriasis in patients of the New York skin and cancer unit. They have treated 41 cases to date.

The undecylenic acid given by mouth in capsules had no toxic (poisonous) effects in 41 cases although slight disturbance of the stomach occured in 19 of the 41 cases. These disturbances occured at the beginning of the treatment but disappeared within a few days even with continuance of the treatment. Of the 41 patients 12 were improved, 15 somewhat improved, 10 unchanged, and three were worse.

It is worth much to those with skins so sensitive to the sun they cannot go swimming that they can be desensitized by antihistaminic drugs.

U. S. Motorists Learn To Drive More Safely

CHICAGO.—American motorists are learning to drive more safely, according to the 1949 edition of the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts."

The 1948 traffic volume was the greatest in the nation's history—8 per cent greater than 1947. Yet the mileage death rate—deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles—was the lowest in the nation's history The 8.0 rate was 30 per cent lower than the average rate of 11.5 through World War II. If the higher rate had prevailed last year, 14,000 more lives would have been lost.

However, there still were 32,000 traffic deaths in 1948—only 700 fewer than in 1947

JUNIOR HI NEWS

In arithmetic the seventh grade has been drawing graphs. The eighth grade has been trying to learn decimals over again.

The eighth grade has been writing stories and reading them before the class.

Thursday night was our party. We had our party in the room because the high school boys had basketball practice in the gym. We had a scavenger hunt and afterwards went through the funhouse which the game committee built on the stage. Then we played truth or consequences. The food committee served a nice lunch of two sandwiches, a cup cake and a cup of cocoa. By each plate stood a nut cup and a name card.

Our motto for this week is "Do not criticize others; praise them if you can do so; if cannot honestly commend them remain silent."

BETTER QUALITY CREAM COMBINED EFFORT GOAL

Cream haulers, creamery employees and fieldmen will soon be teaming up with Iowa State College extension dairymen in a new approach to help the Iowa farmers solve their problems in producing hig-quality cream.

The extension dairymen and creamerymen recently held four area meetings in the state in which they visited farms to find out what farmers want to know about production and the quality. They found that farmers are interested in how they can save butterfat losses through proper separator operation, how to determiine whether a strainer is a good type, how to use a strainer pad as and index of milk cleanliness, and other phases of high-quality milk production.

Already arrangements have been made to provide this kind of information to farmers in northwest Iowa and in Linn and Jones counties as a result of these studies. There, the cream haulers, creamery employees and fildmen will give demonstrations to farmers on various phases of producing high-quality cream. They will first attend an Extension Service training school, several of which will be held soon.

Creamerymen in other parts of the state can help establish local programs along the same line by requesting such programs from the Extension Service of Iowa State College.

1949 CERTIFIED SEED DIRECTORY NOW READY

"Know The Seed You Plant," the 1949 Iowa certified seed directory, is now available to farmers on request to the certification office at Iowa State College or from county extension directors.

The directory includes a list of all growers of certified seed in Iowa, their addresses, and the number of acres of each crop which was field-inspected for certification this summer. Its purpose is to help prospective buyers locate sources of certified crop seed.

According to the directory, supplies of certified seed for 1950 planting in Iowa will be available in large quantity.

Thirty-nine varieties of corn were certified this year. A total of 14,031 acres passed field inspection. U. S. 13, Ohio C 92, Iowa 4316 and Iowa 4297 were among the corn varieties having the largest acreage inspected.

More than 7,000 acres of resele ct Clinton oats and 1,222 acres of Moore barely were inspected.

About 5,500 acres of soybeans were inspected for certification. That includes about 2,000 acres of Adams, the new variety being distributed to farmers for seed increase purposes through county seed distribution committees.

Fischer bromgrass with 396 acres, Emerson red clover with 118 acres and Lincoln brome with 53 acres led the forage crops inspected. Eight acres of Madrid sweetclover and 5 acres of Ioreed canarygrass passed field inspection.

Clipping First Step In Quality Milk Production

First step in producing clean milk is the clipping of udders, flanks, bellies and thighs of your cows, says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

Done properly, cows should be clipped about every two months. That means clipping them soon to let them get accustomed to it before the cold weather sets in. Then winter clippings are not likely to cause ill effects.

Clipping results in less dirt clinging to udders and bodies while that which does stick is easily brushed off. It is much simpler to keep sediment from getting into milk than to remove it once it is there.

Henderson recommends clipping both sides of the cow from the tail head to the front of the flank, and clipping all the hair from the udder. With that hair out of the way, the second step to proper milking—washing and massaging the udder -- becomes simpler and more effective.

Change To Winter Grade Lubricants

Farmers using their tractors for winter choring and belt work will get more satisfactory service if both gear and crankcase lubricants are changed to winter grades, says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

Many winter jobs require only a few minutes time. The result is that the lubricants never gets warmed up. Best oil to use is that recommended by the manufacturer for winter.

When the tractor will not be used regularly, gear lubricant can be thinned satisfactorily. It is recommended to use 10 percent by volume of either kerosene or fuel oil. Thinned oil should be drained and replaced in the spring.

At the same time, it is good to get a new filter catridge for crankcase oil and change the oil to a heavy duty winter grade. In short winter jobs, there is a tendency for moisture to condense in the oil. A filter will help keep it out, Henderson says.

TAKE IT EASY— METHODS COUNT IN HOUSEWORK

Your efficiency might make quite a turn for the better if you sat down to do as many tasks as possible. Grandmother wasn't so wrong when she rested in her rocker and peeled the potatoes.

Many a modern homemakers★ with her washing machine, irons, range and running water is still using methods handed down to her from grandmother. Certainly grandmother was a marvelous homemaker—you'd be the first to admit it. She spent hours polishing her 10-room home and concocting steaming dishes in her spacious kitchen.

But today's homemaker has to be as streamlined as her modern equipment if she's to find time for all the outside duties grandmother never dreamed of doing.

Motion-Minded

This means that the present-day homemaker must do away with useless stooping, stretching, walking and standing. She must be motion-minded and step-conscious, says Fannie Gannon, home management specialist at Iowa State College.

Where to begin in this business of counting steps and saving time? First, Miss Gannon says, before you start a job, ask yourself, "Am I doing this the hard way?" You may discover you're putting in too much effort on some tasks that could be saved with a little planning and organizing.

A good starting place to begin running your home insted of letting it run you, is in the job of housecleaning. There's no need to be like the homemaker who goes to the basement for a bucket and scrub brush, then up to the second floor only to discover her broom is still on the back porch At the end of the day she's exhausted. A centrally located cleaning closet complete with every item that's needed for shining dust-free home is one of the best solutions. Even handier is a box to cary brushes, rags, waxes and polishes from room to room.

There are also steps you can save in making the bed, taking clothes off the line or getting ready to sew—if you take a few seconds to think. You can make sewing equipment easy-to-find in a special cabinet. You can fold clothes which don't need ironing as you take them off the line. You can learn to walk around the bed only once or twice as you make it.

Look at your kitchen—not just casually, but really critically Must you walk across the floor a hundred times in the process of baking a cake? Perhaps the counters are too high for comfort. Maybe the frequently used flour bag is in the fatherest corner of your lowest shelf while the spice you use once a year is right next to your fingertips.

Step-Savers

Miss Gannon has many other suggestions for cutting housework short. Lap-boards, carts for stacking dirty dishes, a desk for household business and a place for repair tools are only a few.

When you're working in the kitchen, she says, try these well-known but not always practiced ideas. Rinse or scrape dishes even if you'll wash them right away. Scald dishes with boiling water and let them dry without wiping. Before you start to cook, get all the equipment assembled. Make large quanities of some foods, such as mixes, ahead of time. Dovetail other jobs too. You can often have a onedish meal on busy days while the house is getting a clean-up job.

On the next task you do, whether it's making coffee or laundering a week's soiled clothing, count all the movements you make. It pays.

Audit Budgets

Al J. Scherer, Minneapolis, from the tax department of the M. and St. L. railroad and Ed O'Dea, Chicago, from the tax department of the Rock Island railroad, were auditing school district budgets at the Hancock County courthouse Tuesday.

JOLLY WORKERS CLUB HELD MEETING

The Jolly Workers Club met at the home of Jenny Nelson on Wednesday, October 12, with 17 members present. We answered roll call by telling a superstition and if we were superstitous. We ordered our Christmas cards from Irene Marshall. Luella Boelman said she would have the Christmas party in December and Lois Schlichting said she could come to her house too.

Louise Pearson and Nettie Roths thanked the club for the plants sent to them while they were in the hospital.

Maude Bachman, Edith Kramer and Luella Boelman were chosen to plan the Christmas dinner and to give out the slips telling each one what to bring Bingo was enjoyed by all, with Irene Marshall in charge of the game and giving out the prizes. Mrs Carl Green and Mrs. Earl Bachman were visitors.

The November meeting will be at the home of Mae Blumer with Edith Kramer as co-hostess, on Wednesday, November 9th. Election of officers will be held so come prepared to vote.

REPORTS SOME IMPORTANT EXPERIMENTS WITH
A. P. F.
(Animal Protein Factor)
FELCO MIXERS
HAVE ALREADY INCORPORATED ALL THIS IN THEIR FEEDS.
WHEN AMES KNOWS HOW TO MAKE BETTER FEED
FELCO WILL MAKE IT.

YES, WE HAVE ANIMAL PROTEIN FACTOR in Felco Feeds but do not get the impression that we are selling it on the strength of that claim alone. We must still have the proper balance of proteins, vitamins and minerals or APF is wasted.

A. P. F. alone is not a feed.

They have found out that the Animal Protein Factor is the thing, in all proteins, that helps growth.

It is found in many feed ingredients but in small amounts. Animal and fish proteins are the best natural sources but far from uniform under present day methods.

Then they found that they could make this growth factor, so manufactured A. P. F. was produced for market.

The results have been mixed, some firms are able to show wonderful results, some only fair while some of the products offered are proven, by Iowa State College tests, to be harmful rather than a benefit, so simply saying APF does not guarantee results.

The right kind of APF brings out the value of the feed but the values must first be in the feed and the tests at Ames were to find out what kind of combinations of proteins, vitamins and minerals would respond best to the addition of APF.

I Love You, Adore You—Will You Divorce Me?

. . . AND BEST MAN AT DIVORCE TRIALS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MY HUSBAND AND I are parting on the friendliest terms. I am very sorry to say we have been parted for some time," said a charming star of the stage and screen the other day. The mood was that of numerous recent divorce announcements. What's become of the old-fashioned couple who used to part with the crash of pots and pans, mutual cries of "Sez you!" and a stern demand from the cops: "Make way for the wagon. They're both all cut up?"

In Hollywood a husband announcing that he is through with his bride says, "she is a very fine person. I have the highest regard for her. We just agreed to disagree." A New York society gal, enduring matrimony for a couple of years, announces: "We are both very fond of each other."

What goes?

Away with these folk who announce a separation in tones and manner of making known a decision to cancel a magazine subscription or change the brand of white shoe polish. Let's demand some harsh words, a few swings and a blow by blow of the fight leading up to the parting.

Divorce has been a sufficinct blight on the social fabric without this nonsense about it entailing merely a slight drop in friendliness. It is getting routine to read of marriages being busted up because he and she like each other so much! If matrimony must go on the rocks, let's cut the business of fitting the ship with loveseats and assigning a flock of harpists to sit on the rocks and play "When We Come to the End of a Perfect Day," and "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

• • •

What is civilization coming to, mates? There was a time when the marriage state was regarded as sufficiently binding to command a little respect and nothing to be smashed up witout a rousing battle, some broken furniture, a few shattered window panes and mutual shrieks of "Oh, Yeah! I was warned about you three months before the wedding."

• • •

You couldn't get a good lawyer to take the case if neither side had an arm in a sling.

• • •

Not even a gossip reporter would credit a rumor of divorce proceeding if the principals were still capable of exchanging tender looks. No court would go on with the hearing if there were no dirty looks.

• • •

No self-respceting neighborhood would stand for a couple breaking up a home on the friendliest of terms, and a sweet "please don't get the idea we dislike each other." It would regard such a mood as definitely tougher on community morals than if all the kids had seen him throw her from the second-story window, and if what she said to him withered the leaves on the backyard maples.

• • •

Parting on the friendliest of terms! The very thought is corroding. It cheapens marriage. You wish to break up your home? Gwan, get in there and do it right away! There should always be an excuse for divorce.

*The picture of the year was Art Whitaker's recent flash of the Sonja Henie wedding showing the kids "under the tent" with expressions which painters strive to catch . . . . When Jesus Saw Their Faith

THERE are phrases running through the word of God
That strike the ear, that gleam to catch the eye:
These simple words, "When Jesus saw their faith,"
Ring out as clear and startling as a cry.
He saw their faith, the one thing he required
Before he granted what their hearts desired.

When Jesus saw their faith, the lame arose,
And darkened eyes were given sudden sight;
The dead were quickened into life again,
And hearts bowed down with sorrow were made light.
Because of that white inner burning flame
He changed the world for everyone who came.

Lord, Lord, I, too, have faith; behold the fire
That burns in me and grant my heart's desire.

God Our Comfort

Lesson for November 6, 1949

AS THE ENGLISH language keeps on changing, words do not always keep on meaning what they once did. "Comfort" is one of these. When our Bible was translated into English in 1611, the translation most English-speaking people use, the word "comfort" had a bigger meaning than most people attach to it nowadays. We think of it as meaning soothing; but it is a bigger idea than that. God is not merely a soothing God. We think of "comfort" as meaning to make comfortable; but it is a stouter word than that. God does not always make his people comfortable. The word means to strengthen, to steel against fear and despair, to put backbone into people.

Dr. Foreman

"Fear Not, O Worm!"

AT THE TIME of the prophecies we study this week, the Israelites had been kicked around a good deal. They had felt the conqueror's boots, they were discouraged, as all good people are when somehow God seems to be letting evil forces triumph. Their little world had split wide apart, their little nation had been blown to the winds.

To those people, torn by terrors and bowed down by wretchedness, people who were in serious danger of developing a once-for-all "inferiority complex," people who were about to lose all their backbone, the great prophet brings his messages: "Comfort ye my people, saith your God."

The whole idea is in this one sentence (Is. 41:14): "Fear not, O worm Jacob! . . I am your helper, saith the Lord."

God does not indulge his people in foolish pride. Beside the Almighty they are worms, insects. Nevertheless, worm though he may be, the man who trusts in God will not be afraid. He will not trust in his own powers, he will trust in luck, he will trust in God.

A worm by itself is nothing; but with God on his side, the weakest of men can say with Paul, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" God's men do not get their courages up by flexing their muscles or admiring themselves. They grow in courage as they grow in the knowledge of God.
